Dwarf and Giant
$20 a Month Per Room
Where Are the Blue Chips?
Capt. Hawks Again

By Arthur Brisbane

REPUBLICANS and Democrats in Congress, not certain which side really has control, are enjoying a love feast.

"Our country is in danger," the Democrats say, with tearful earnestness, "and we shall help you Republicans to bring back prosperity. No partisanship, no selfishness, on our side of the House."

Senator Watson, for the Republicans, accepts the generous offer. And on the theory that "a dwarf standing on a giant's shoulder can see farther than the giant," something pleasing may happen.

One radical senator, Mr. Brookhart, sounds a hostile note which will find a sympathetic welcome in many places. He is convinced that the Republicans deserve all they got in the election, but he isn't sure the Democrats deserve any of their victories.

New York builders discover that they can supply "white collar" workers with rooms at $20 a month each. That is no great discovery. Mr. Ecker, president of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., long since built excellent apartments to rent at $8 per room, giving first chance to his own employes, to school teachers and policemen. And he earned six to eight per cent net on the investment for his policy holders.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., has since done the same.

Where are the snows of yesteryear, and where are the "blue chips" stocks selling at $200, $300, $400, $500 a share and higher, so recently?

They have vanished from the stock list and the ticker that knew them knows them no more.

It is sad for those that bought "blue chips" to find them suddenly changed to red and white chips. But that means opportunity for a new generation of optimists.

Captain Hawks continues to make other distinguished fliers look like estimable "has beens." He flew from Havana to New York in 8 hours 44 minutes, averaging 190 miles an hour, doing 600 miles at 210 miles an hour, not using top speed at any time.

Hawks came bringing letters from Ricardo R. Lancis, brilliant editor of the Havana El Mundo and wearing a rubber life preserver jacket given to him by our ambassador, Harry F. Guggenheim. It's a jacket that every flier over water should wear, easily inflated on the way down, by parachute or otherwise.

The great imperial coronation in Abyssinia is over, and the Emperor announces that the festivities have bankrupted him, and he would like to borrow $1,000,000 to build himself a fireproof palace. Americans desiring to acquire Abyssinian concessions will get bargains. There ought to be oil, or gold, or something in those hills.

The favorite of the Empress, most influential woman in Abyssinia, is Frieda Haetel, German woman, simultaneously lady-in-waiting to the Empress and her midwife.

To the dark Empress, who has children, the midwife perhaps gave a comforting whiff of chloroform at the right time. Anybody who wants to dine with the Empress must dine with the midwife.

The diplomatic corps decided to accept the midwife when the Empress is present, but not to invite her to their own parties.

Tommy West danced and sang on the vaudeville stage for 27 years, always hoping that some day favorable criticisms would put him among the "headliners."

On Sunday, in Philadelphia, he wrote his own last notice thus:

"If anybody wants to know where I am, just tell them that at last I'm with the big timers —Bert Williams, Jack Donahue, Caruso and the rest of the crowd."

Then he killed himself. It probably comforts many to know that time and death will take them to join the "big timers," or at least remove them from the ruck of nobodies.

FIRE CAPTAIN, WIFE, SISTER HIT BY TRAIN

Three From Boston on Danger List in Concord Hospital; Auto Is Demolished

Capt. Charles A. Wolfe of the Boston fire department, his wife and his sister, Mrs. Margaret Wilson, were seriously injured today when their automobile was struck by the Berkshire Flyer of the Boston & Maine railroad at the West Acton crossing.

The automobile was demolished. The injured were rushed to the Emerson Hospital in Concord, where the names of all three were placed on the danger list.

Capt. Wolfe is a veteran of many years' service and is in charge of engine 34, Western ave., Brighton. The Wolfes live at 20 [illegible], Allston, and Mrs. Wilson lives with them.

The train, leaving Albany at 9:30 a. m., was bound for Boston over the Fitchburg division and was due at the North Station at 2:35.

It was going at high speed between stops at Ayer and Waltham, but, according to railroad officials, the crossing where the crash occurred is protected by flashing light signals which were in good working order.

When the engineer saw the automobile moveing directly into his path he aplied the brakes, but the train was half a mile beyond the crossing before it could be halted. The train crew hurried back to aid the injured.

$50,000,000 Tube Under N. Y. Harbor

New York, Nov. 11 (AP)—First steps toward construction of a $50,000,000 vehicular tunnel under New York harbor, to connect the Battery with Governor's Island and Erie Basin, Brooklyn, were taken today by the board of estimate. It will have two or three traffic lanes and be operated on a toll basis.

FRANKLIN D., JR. GOVERNOR ROOSEVELT JOHN ROOSEVELT

THE HAPPY GOVERNOR of New York, Franklin D. Roosevelt, who came to Boston today to deliver two Armistice Day addresses as a guest of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the Gold Star Mothers, went with one son, James of Cambridge, to Groton school to visit his other two sons, students there. He is shown there with the boys, Franklin D., Jr., and John. Smiles indicate it was happy meeting. (Staff photo.)

SECRET COUP REVEALED TO POLICEMAN BY CHANCE

Overhears Secret Service Operators Plan Raids and Rushes to Chinatown

Information that a Boston policeman tipped off the Chinatown drug ring in advance of a series of raids made by Washington narcotic agents early Sunday morning was obtained today.

Evidence to the effect that the officer informed Loretta Chin, one of those arrested, is understood to have been forwarded to Washington.

As a result of the policeman's warning the raids were only partly successful and it is expected that he will be compelled to explain his action to a trial board.

HOTEL IS DOPE DIVE

This information divided interest with the revelation that a downtown hotel is headquarters for opium smokers, that the local federal narcotic unit and possibly one police division will be shaken up, and that death threats have been received by Irene Harrington, "Queen of Chinatown," and an unnamed Chinese operative.

The Boston policeman, it was learned, was placed in a positon to warn the drug ring through the failure of federal agents to identify themselves to a house detective of a local hotel.

Several weeks ago a woman agent of the narcotic bureau came to Boston, accompanied by a Chinese operative through whom she expected to establish contacts.

They made their headquarters at the hotel revealed as the scene of opium smoking orgies, and operated from there.

DETECTIVE BLUNDERS.

The woman agent eventually moved to another hotel in which narcotic men from Washington had established themselves. On Saturday morning it was decided to have the Chinaman, who had remained in the first hotel, brought to the second hostelry for a conference.

A Federal agent escorted him to the woman's room and then left them to work out plans. The house detective saw the Chinaman enter the woman's room and ignorant of the fact that she was a Federal operative, notified two policemen.

The officers listened outside the door, overheard talk of opium and money and then forced their way in. They questioned the woman, but as the proposed raids were only a few hours away she refused to make known her identity, insisting

TECH MAN KILLS SELF IN POND

The body of Ernest M. Clark, 35, of Newtonville, graduate of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, was found today in 18 inches of water in a brook at Tyringham, near Pittsfield, according to advices from there. He was a suicide, according to the medical examiner.

Clark vanished mysteriously November 2, and although his body was found today by two boys not far from the home of his cousin, Mrs. Clarence Hale, where he had been a guest while recuperating from a nervous breakdown, previous searches had failed to reveal it.

American Saint May Be Canonized Soon

Vatican City, Nov. 11 (AP)—Canonization of another American saint—Fr. Felice de Andreis, first superior-general of the Lazarist Fathers in the United States—may result from a process initiated today by the Sacred Congregation of Rites. Fr. de Andreis worked in the diocese of St. Louis, Mo., and died there in 1820. He was born in Piedmont, Italy.

Roosevelt Here for 2 Armistice Addresses

By BERT FORD.

Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York isn't discussing his possible candidacy for President or any other national issue which savors of politics.

He said so today on his arrival in Boston as Armistice Day guest of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

The only issues of national scope which he consented to touch upon were prohibition and unemployment.

He said repeal of the "Baby Volstead" law in Massachusetts and other states indicated a general trend against national prohibition.

Outlining the Empire state's program for relief of unemployment Governor Roosevelt said free employment bureaus were being increased and a public fund established from which the heads of families can borrow to tide them over at a low rate of interest.

"The fund plan was inaugurated," he added, "because we found that the rank and file of workingmen do not wish to be classed as beggars. They prefer to borrow and be independent, if money is available."

The first persons admitted to the car at 9 o'clock were former Mayor Andrew J. Peters and Mr. and Mrs.

TUNNEY WINS $526,000 SUIT

New York, Nov. 11 (AP)—Gene Tunney, retired boxing champion of the world, does not owe Timothy J. Mara a cent, a supreme court jury decided today.

Mara claimed a $526,812.42 share of Tunney's ring earnings for helping to arrange the match at Philadelphia in 1926 in which Tunney won his championship from Jack Dempsey.

Persons from all parts of the building flocked to the room and pushed up to shake his hand.

As soon as he could free himself, Tunney telephoned to his wife, the former Polly Lauder. Outside the courthouse more than 3000 persons yelled and cheered as the ex-champion left the building.

In an instant he was engulfed in the milling crowd. Four policemen forced their way to his side.

'Wage Peace as You Did War'—Hoover

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service Staff Correspondent

Washington, Nov. 11—"We must wage peace continuously—with the same energy as they waged war."

Twelve years to the day and hour after the guns ceased firing on the western front, President Hoover advanced this thought today as a solemn obligation which the nation owes the memory of the dead and the well-being of those who survived the great war.

"A solemn obligation lies upon us," he said, "to press forward in our pursuit of those things for which they died. Our duty is to seek ever new and widening opportunities to insure the world against the horror and irretrievable wastage of war."

The President chose to deliver the annual address to an organization engaged in a world-wide effort to promote peace through religious organizations, the World Alliance for International Friendship through the Churches, now in conference here.

Mr. Hoover appraised at some

Search for Kaufman Now Seems Hopeless

Over the snows with bloodhounds and in the air from a plane, search for Mitchell B. Kaufman, missing Malden rubber manufacturer went on in the woods near Jackman, Me., today, with conviction growing hourly that he never will be found alive.

The number of searchers on the ground was increased from 80 to 150 today and Deputy Sheriff True Ellis, from a seaplane, scanned closely the terrain beneath.

Despite the almost hopeless search, however, confidence that her brother will be found was expressed today by Mrs. Albert Wechsler of Jamaicaway, Jamaica Plain.

Wechsler, the brother-in-law, with D. R. Bremmer, understood to be a relative of Kaufman, and Sam Sherman, an official of the Converse Rubber Company, chartered a plane today at Boston Airport and flew to Skowhegan, Me., to join the search.

The Curtiss-Wright Flying Service Thrush was piloted by Adolph Backstrom, and the men were to be met at Scarboro with an automobile and

The reception committee, representing the Veterans of Foreign Wars, was made up of Joseph M. Weidmann, chairman; Charles P. Mosely, Julian D. Lucas, State commander, and Wilfred Jacobs, Suffolk County commander.

The Governor's son, James, who was graduated from Harvard last June, and who married Barbara Cushing while a senior, arrived in a green roadster, which the terminal authorities allowed to run down the platform to Track 27 for the convenience of his distinguished father.

Governor Roosevelt explained his own itinerery for the day, which included a family reunion. He said he would be driven to his son's home, 18 Coolidge Hill rd., Cambridge.

"From James' home I shall motor to Groton school to see my two sons, Franklin, Jr., who is 16, and John, 14. It was just 30 years ago that I was graduated from Groton. My other son, Elliott, has become a bread-winner. He has gone into the advertising business in New York.

TWO ADDRESSES HERE

"From Groton I shall return to James' home, and at 5 o'clock I am to address 300 Gold Star mothers at Hotel Statler. In the evening I am to address the Armistice Day meeting under the auspices of the Veterans of Foreign Wars at Symphony Hall.

Mayor Curley, Lieutenant Governor Youngman, and State Commander Lucas will also make addresses. The entire program at Symphony Hall is to be broadcast from WLEX, under the auspices of the Boston Evening American's station.

"Professor Albert Bushnell Hart of Harvard said the other day that you were the logical nominee of the Democratic party for President. What have you got to say about that? Would you accept?"

"Remember, boys, I'm just discussing state affairs and that is distinctly national."

LAUDS ELY VICTORY

"What did you think of Ely's victory in Massachusetts?"

"What has been the effect in New York since the Baby Volstead law was repealed in 1922?"

"I don't think it makes much difference either way. It depends on public sentiment. If a county were dry, bone dry, violations would probably mean conviction, but in a wet county sentiment would be different.

AID FOR JOBLESS

"We are going through with a building program to relieve unemployment. We have a fund of $10,000,000 voted on referendum. We intend to enlarge and modernize the prisons at Auburn and at Clinton, which are about 100 years old.

"We have the public fund plan. Under our plan the Chamber of Commerce and large corporations advance money. It is estimated nine-tenths of the loans will be repaid.

Vatican Recognizes Brazil Government

Vatican City, Nov. 11 (AP)—The Holy See today informed the Brazilian government through the Papal Nuncio at Rio de Janeiro of its recognition. At the same time the Brazilian ambassador to the Holy See, who is functioning in that office until the arrival of his successor, conferred at length with Cardinal Pacelli, Papal Secretary of State.

Chicago, Nov. 11 (AP)—Terrence Druggan, the "Beer Baron," is dizzy in the opinion of Dr. H. M. Fogo of the United States Public Health Service, as a result of complications of various illnesses which have prevented his trial on a charge of income tax fraud. The case was continued until December 8.

Boston American in Silent Tribute to War Dead

The entire plant of the Boston Evening American ceased functioning for three minutes today at 11 a. m., while the workers stood in silent tribute for the war dead.

Not a typewriter clacked, no linotype machine whirred and no press rumbled during the period of homage to those who died in the world conflict.

Phelan Asks Banks to Pay Christmas Funds Early

In an effort to end business depression and increase employment, James J. Phelan, chairman of Massachusetts Emergency Committee on Unemployment, today wrote Francis Whittemore, president of Massachusetts Savings Banks Association, and advised that bank officials permit early withdrawal of Christmas Funds and thus increase sales.

"Our reason for making this suggestion is that it will stimulate early Christmas buying, which in turn will tend to abate unemployment in several ways," wrote Mr. Phelan.

He also addressed a similar letter to John F. Tufts, president of Massachusetts Bank Association.

In explaining his attitude today at the State House to William Phillips, recently appointed by President Herbert Hoover to handle the unemployment situation in New England for federal authorities, Mr. Phelan said:

"If every person in the United States capable of spending money by reason of being regularly employed were to start buying tomorrow in the manner in which they purchased prior to the business depression, that depression would be practically ended within a week."

Mr. Phelan urged Mr. Phillips to suggest to federal officials the necessity of widening and deepening the Cape Cad canal. He also suggested more work be given to Boston Navy Yard. He also suggested the speeding up of work on the Boston postoffice.

Helping Hand Slaps G. O. P. Not on Back

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

Democrats are going to cooperate with the administration.

We can't stand much more of that Republican prosperity.

Big bankers of both parties realize it is no time to squabble when the wolves are staging a rodeo in the vestibule.

Mr. Raskob is perfectly willing to help this administration out.

But the administration doesn't want to be assisted in that direction.

It's a smart move by the Democrats. And when the Democrats make a smart move it proves there is a first time for everything.

We don't think that Andy Mellon will accept any assistance.

But the rest of the government will operate with a Democratic line and a Republican backfield.

And 1932 is only a pebble's parabola away. That's why the Democrats are going to help the administration.

3500 Veterans Parade in Worcester Fete

Worcester, Nov. 11 (AP)—Armistice Day was observed here today with a parade of 3500 World War veterans, National Guard units and veterans of the Civil and Spanish wars. Brig.-Gen. Thomas F. Foley, retired, was chief marshal. Later two aviation beacons were dedicated. The address was given by Senator David I. Walsh. The beacons are a memorial to Warren T. Hobbs, Worcester aviator, killed during the war.

25,000 CHEER ELY VICTORY AT PARADE

Westfield, Nov. 11—"I hope you may have no reason to regret your vote," said Gov.-Elect Joseph B. Ely in concluding his address last night from an open air wooden stand while 25,000 persons from this, his native city, and neighboring towns roared their approval.

It was a big night for not only Westfield, but a victory celebration for entire western part of the state, as "Joe" Ely will be the first Democratic governor to come from west of Worcester.

5000 IN PARADE

Thousands of men, women and children poured into Westfield by automobile for the celebration. They stood for more than an hour in front of the stand listening to various speakers.

A parade, in which 5000 persons participated, preceded the speaking, and a brilliant display of fireworks added to the evening's fun.

In his address Governor-elect Ely said:

"I have made a great many political speeches during the last three months and have talked to large crowds all over the state, but I must confess to you that at this time I have a greater feeling of trepidition than I ever experienced before in my life, and I am really at a loss as to what to say to you.

THANKS SUPPORTERS

"You know it was a difficult contest and we were obliged to meet new friends. We went through this contest in the hope that in this time of stress and suffering the people of the state would realize the need for a political change.

"I wish to thank and pay my respects to all the Democrats of Lynn, Boston, Lowell, Worcester, and Lawrence, who helped me win and I wish to tell them all that they will never be forgotten. I appreciate their loyalty and devotion. I am really overcome by this wonderful reception and I hope you may have no reason to regret your vote."

PIE BANDITRY IS FAILURE

The pastry department of banditry turned in a good account of itself last night—so good, in fact that two holdup men who were in desperate straits in Shawmut ave., South End, made their escape through apple and mince pies.

When the bandits entered the store of Barnett Fafel at 514 Shawmut ave., the proprietor proved a difficult subject, indeed. In fact, this difficult proprietor unhitched considerable temerity and began throwing fists in a large way.

He had one of the bandits in a worried way, down on the sidewalk, when Mrs. Fafel and her sister, Miss Dora Gold, arrived as reinforcements.

They were routed quickly, however, when the second bandit laid down a barrage of mince and apple pies in very ungallant fashion. Mrs. Fafel slipped on the apple and mince, fell and broke a wrist.

Then Fafel's two sons, Leo, 18, and Samuel, 16, students at English high school, appeared and the bandits fled—with no loot.

Carol Gets Liberals to Take Their Seats

Veteran Listed Dead in War Memorial Fetes Armistice

Bradford, Pa., Nov. 11 (INS)—As Private John Lakas, of Kane, Pa., tramped in an Armistice Day parade here he swung past the Bradford memorial. Lakas noted an inscription that he had been killed in action in France. He had been wounded and listed as dead.

Before he was able to convince the folks back home he was alive, Bradford had erected the memorial to its war dead.

Kiddies' Friend

AXEL BJORKLUND, "Hot Dog Santa" of the North End, who fed thousands of children every New Year's Day, died penniless in Cambridge City Hospital last night. (Staff photo.)

Never again will the children of the North End feast on New Year's Day on the hot dogs of Axel Bjorklund.

Year after year on January 1 he took his copper kettle down Hanover st. way and gave away between 2000 and 3000 red hot weenies, lavishly covered with mustard.

Now that he is dead, he is doomed a pauper's funeral, unless kind hearts intervene.

For several months Axel, who was 60 years old, was an inmate of the Cambridge Home for the Aged and Infirm, prior to going to the Hospital on November 1, and John T. Shea, superintendent of the home, offered today to contribute to a fund to give him a better funeral.

Axel was taken ill more than a year ago and was in dire straits for a time, until someone gave him a place to rest and regain his strength. He was back on the job last New Year's Day as usual, to the delight of the youngsters. Hard times or not, he was always able to scrape enough together somehow to provide his little feast.

DRUG RING GOT TIP OF RAID

that the police take no action until the return to the room of Deputy Commissioner Roy A. Darling of the Federal narcotic bureau.

TELLS LORETTA CHIN

Eventually Darling returned in time to clear the woman, and the police left. It was then about 3 p. m. Saturday afternoon, with the raids scheduled to begin shortly after midnight.

The woman agent is understood to have reported to Washington that she learned one of the policemen who entered her room had gone to Chinatown immediately afterward. There he found Loretta Chin, with whom contact had been established by the agents, and informed her the people she had been doing business with were government agents. He also warned her that a big raid was about to take place, according to information obtained by the woman.

Loretta went to the first hotel, where the clerk told her that the people she described were government agents, but that they had checked out.

CHINATOWN WARNED

The word was then spread around Chinatown, with the result that the raiding officers, hoping to make the largest drug seizure in the history of the city, found that their arrival had been anticipated in many places.

Yesterday Loretta, one of those taken into custody, is understood to have told the woman agent that the policeman had "tipped her off."

CLASH LOOMING AS INDIA ROUND TABLE NEARS

Britain Offers More Autonomy; the Radicals Seek Complete Independence

London, Nov. 11 (AP)—Vital problems of imperial unity pressed today for settlement as final preparations were made for the inaugural of the Indian Round Table conference tomorrow in the royal gallery of the House of Lords.

On the outcome of the conference, which is to be convened by the king-emperor, George V, probably will be depended greatly the future course of events in India.

It appeared that at least three plans for a future India status would be presented.

The first will be that broached in the Simon report, which advocated an Indian federation, offering greater degree governmental autonomy but with the British government still exercising the principal authority in such matters as military problems and foreign relationships.

It is expected that the government will offer a plan involving dominion status, or at least a much greater degree of governmental autonomy than is now the case.

The Indian princes and representatives from British India, although far removed from the radical Swarajist element already have indicated that almost complete independence will be sought by them.

Rochester, N. Y., Nov. 11 (AP)—Abe N. Spanel, president of the Vacuumizer Manufacturing Company of this city, hopped off from the municipal airport here late last night in a plane piloted by Harold F. Jackson, to assist in the search for Mitchell B. Kaufman, Boston millionaire, who has been missing for seven days in the forests near Skowhegan.

Spanel, a friend of Kaufman's, said he expected to land near Jackman, Me., before starting the search by air. They said they would probably make a stop at Albany.

Bathrobe Mystery Solved; No Suicide

Chelsea police today solved the "mystery" of the bathrobe found yesterday on the curbstone of the Chelsea bridge. The bathrobe was believed at the time to have been left by a suicide. Today it was learned it was the property of David Cougin of Cook ave., Chelsea. He told police he had placed it on the running board of his automobile. His chauffeur had taken out the car and the garment had dropped.

Four Share Estate of Great Grandfather

Worcester, Nov. 11 (AP)—By the will of Waldo E. Austin, 90, of Holden, filed for probate, $500 is left to the First Baptist Church of Holden and $100 to Juniper Hall Masonic Hospital, Shrewsbury. After making several bequests to his widow, children and grandchildren in sums of $1000 to $3000, he leaves $250 each to four great grandchildren, who in 1945, are to share the residue of the estate, which is to remain in trust up to that time.

Planes Collide at Airport, None Hurt

Mrs Mariel Oakes Ames Is Granted Divorce

Los Angeles, Nov. 11 (AP)—Mrs. Muriel Oakes Ames, former New York society girl and member of the Junior League, has obtained a divorce from Robert Ames, screen actor.

Mrs. Ames

The decree was granted in superior court yesterday on grounds of cruelty and habitual drunkenness. The case was uncontested.

"He was drinking all the time when we were married in Waukegan, Ill., Feb. 10, 1927," Mrs. Ames testified.

She said he stopped drinking until a year ago when he became "sulky, bad tempered and irritable" until they separated, Oct. 10.

Wales Writes Preface for Book on Commerce

London, Nov. 11—The Prince of Wales has written a foreword to a book entitled "Anglo-South American Commercial Annual."

Prince of Wales

The Prince in his preface states that he hopes the book will help to strengthen the long established bonds of industry and commerce between South America and Great Britain.

The book is expected to be on the market in a short time.

Farrar Tells Singers To Go To Hollywood

GERALDINE FARRAR

"Do not waste your freshness and youth as a mere gadget in a Ford establishment such as the Metropolitan Opera House," she is quoted by today's New York Times. "Go to Hollywood and make the most of your youth with quick returns in the talkies."

At the same time the former Metropolitan prima donna declined to practice her preaching, and said she never would sing for the sound films or the radio.

"I have never sung for the radio and never will," she continued. "Radio and talkies are like collodion solutions — they make medicated stars."

Darrow Predicts Repeal of Prohibition by 1933

Clarence Darrow

He also advocated relieving the "misery of the unemployed" by diverting to their use some of the huge sums now spent by the government in futile attempts to enforce the Eighteenth Amendment.

Darrow said that the present wave of unemployment here and the unrest in Europe have no connection.

PLOT TO OVERTHROW SOVIET GOVERNMENT NOW REVEALED

8 LEADERS OF CONSPIRACY FACE DEATH

More Than 200 Others in European Countries Implicated in Confessions

Moscow, U. S. S. R., Nov. 11 (AP)—A plot for the overthrow of the Soviet government was uncovered today with publication of an indictment charging eight anti-Soviet leaders with conspiring to overthrow the Stalin regime.

Poincare and Briand of France, Sir Henri Deterding, British oil magnate, Lord Churchill of England and prominent figures in Poland, Rumania and Finland were named as co-conspirators.

The counter-revolutionist leader, Ramsin, is alleged to have been the prime mover in the plot. His associates, three of them educators and the others engineers, are charged with having formed a central committee in the interests of the intrigue.

200 IMPLICATED.

The Russians, who will be tried on charges of high treason, for which the punishment is death, are alleged to have implicated more than 200 others in confessions.

The indictment charges they have been working for several years to disorganize industry, foment discontent among the people, and otherwise prepare the way for a counter-revolution.

Actual military force was to have been applied last summer, the indictment reads, but because of difficulties between France and Italy and because of the uncertainty of German support this move was postponed to 1931.

The alleged confessions were said to name Poincare and Briand as the leading supporters of the plot abroad, and the indictment charges the scheme was controlled from Paris.

PLAN WAR INCIDENT

There was to have been an "incident" on the Rumanian border as a result of which Rumania was to have declared war. Her ally, Poland, also was to have declared war and other countries were to follow their example.

The French were to provide supplies of arms and ammunition and Great Britain was to send her fleet into the Black Sea and the Baltic, taking over the Crimea and Leningard, while an army of 600,000 led by the former Russian Gen. Loukomsky would march on Moscow.

The new government was virtually chosen in advance. Ramsin or Miliukov, a former minister in the Kerensky Government, was to be Premier of a "bourgeois democratic republic, the White Russian general, Denikin, or Lukomsky, Minister of War, and Tarle, the Russian academician, Foreign Minister.

Britain was to receive control of the Caucasian oil fields and other valuable concessions were to have been distributed among France and the other nations, the confessions said.

Gandhi in Jail Prays for India's Freedom

Poona, India, Nov. 11 (AP)—With the Indian round table conference about to convene at London, the Mahatma, Gandhi, imprisoned leader of the Indian Nationalists, who have boycotted the conference, prays nightly for the liberation of India.

Gandhi is confined in the Yeroda prison, close to Poona. In 1923 and 1924 he also occupied a cell there.

Gandhi rises at 4 in the morning and retires at 8 in the evening. His diet is milk and fresh fruits. He never touches meat. During the day he reads, writes, talks.

Lest We Forget That the Lives They Gave Is the Price of the Peace That We Possess

IT IS FITTING that on the anniversary of Armistice Day we should pause in our celebration to remember our gallant soldiers who remained across seas in resting places like these—the American cemetery at Suresnes, France. (International Newsreel photo.)

TAPS. They'll be sounded again today in cemeteries throughout the nation and over there, where soldier, sailor, marine and friends gather to do honor to the World War dead.

11 O'clock-11th Day-11th Month 1918.

TWELVE YEARS AGO on the war torn fields of France, these happy Yankee soldiers tossed their tin helmets high in the air as they rejoiced. The news of the signing of the armistice had just come to them. The photograph was taken near Meuse, France. (I.N.R.)

Pershing Warns U. S. of Need of Preparedness

By GEN. JOHN J. PERSHING.
(Distributed by Universal Service.)

Washington, Nov. 11—This is a day of hallowed memory. Twelve years have elapsed since the ending of the greatest war of all time.

For America they have been years of peace and progress. It is well to recall on this day that these benefits have come to the American people through valor and heroism on soil that is the richer for the blood they gave it.

The dead comrades rest peacefully, for the living there remains the obligation of carrying on, of adhering steadfastly to those ideals of peace and justice which have ever been the inspiration of our people.

May there never be another war. But it is the duty of the living veterans of the great war so to guide the destinies of this nation that should war come it will find the American people prepared, materially and spiritually.

Profane Parrot in Demand; Women Want Handy Cusser

St. Louis, Nov. 11 (AP)—That red-headed, cursing parrot who, because he swears too fluently, cannot live in the St. Louis Zoo, will get a good home anyway.

Publicity he received from a little story telling of his swearing proclivities and his predicament has brought more than 500 letters to the Zoo from all parts of the country and Canada, and he is to be sold to the highest bidder. An offer of $50 has been received.

Most of the letters are from women, a lot from shut-ins and sick people, a few from sailors in the U. S. Navy, fraternity houses at colleges, several young men residents at Y. M. C. A.'s country clubs, and one from a wealthy man at St. Petersburg, Fla., who writes he has a 17,000 acre estate and the "parrot can use any language he chooses."

Most of the women say they believe they could reform the bird and one in Roanoke, Va., said she would teach the parrot "to pray instead of swear."

CABINET QUITS IN BELGIUM

Paris, Nov. 11 (AP)—A Havas dispatch from Brussels today said the entire Belgian cabinet has decided to resign.

The decision was reached, the dispatch said, after Liberal ministers had resigned as a protest against their party's adoption of a resolution disavowing M. Vautier as minister of arts and sciences.

The ministers resigned as a result of a meeting of the Liberal Federation last night, which unanimously refuted action of the minister of education in agreeing to a cabinet decision which prohibited professors of Ghent University—where the Flemish language is used—from teaching at the institute of advanced instruction in Ghent, where the language is French.

Worcester Youth Shot While at Play

Worcester, Nov. 11 (AP)—Albert Minns, 12, son of William Minns, of North Brookfield, is in Worcester City Hospital with his name on the danger list, suffering from a gunshot wound in the abdomen. The wound is believed to have been inflicted by another small boy at play.

London, Nov. 11 (AP)—Tim, the war office cat, which was placed on the payroll in Chancellor Snowden's last budget, has been bobbed. Somebody slammed a door on him and he now has only half a tail.

Leipsic, Germany, Nov. 11 (AP)—A tiger that he brought from India as a kitten is grateful to Alfred Kaden, tamer of wild beasts for a circus. A tigress went wild during a performance and pinned Kaden against a wall. The tiger leaped to the rescue and killed the tigress.

Ribeirao Preto, Brazil, Nov. 11 (AP)—Humberto Biancard is telling this one in the village store. When he was driving to town a wolf jumped through the windshield of his car. He shot the beast and brought the carcass to the municipal market.

HOOVER IN PLEA FOR PEACE

length the progress that has been made in promotion of peace since the war. He cited the Kellogg pact for the outlawry of war, in which 58 nations have now joined; our own arbitration treaties with virtually all the nations of the world; the setting up of such institutions as the League of Nations and the World Court, and the London naval treaty.

In connection with the court, Mr Hoover merely said:

"It's permanence is assured and from it there is steadily growing a body of precedents, decisions and acceptance of law in the formulation of which we should have a part."

He made no mention of his own immediate plans of re-submitting the court issue to the Senate, where a controversy awaits it.

While he emphasized that it is America's duty to co-operate with the rest of the world in the preservation of peace, he also emphasized that the basis of this co-operation must be essentially different from that of other nations.

OUR PART IN EUROPE

"The security of our geographic situation," he said, "the traditional freedom from entanglements in the involved diplomacy of Europe, and our disinterestedness enable us to give a different and in many ways a more effective service to peace.

"The nations of Europe, bordered as they are by the age-old dangers of which we in the western hemisphere have little appreciation, beset as they are by long-inherited fears, believe that they must subscribe to methods which in the last resort will use force to compel nations to abide by their agreements to settle controversies by pacific means. We, in our great state of safety and independence, should make no criticism of their conclusions which arise from their necessities.

"But we believe that our contribution can best be made in these emergencies, when nations fail to keep their undertakings of pacific settlement of disputes, by our good offices and helpfulness free from any advance commitment or entanglement as to the character of our action.

"The purpose of our government is to co-operate with others, to use our friendly offices, and, short of any implication of the use of force, to use every friendly effort and all good will to maintain the peace of the world.

WHAT WAR TAUGHT.

"The war that ended on this day 12 years ago taught us one thing, if nothing else, and that is the blessing of peace. When we look back upon its splendid valor and heroism then displayed when we remember the magnificent energies poured forth by young and old, when we recall the marvellous exercise of the greatest virtues that glorify the human race—unselfishness, self-sacrifice, co-operation, both by men and women—we are looking not upon qualities which war creates, but rather upon the traits with its own horrors. These same qualities are exercised, but are unsung and unheralded in time of peace. Those who died displaying them would have displayed them living, and would have wrought their fruits into the enduring fabric of our peaceful destiny.

"We can only pledge ourselves, in honor of their memory, to the task of making ever more unlikely that our youth hereafter shall be denied its opportunity to devote its idealism and its energies to the constructive arts of peace."

"November Eleventh"

By BILL CONNELL

There's a ghostly bugle sounding,
  And its echoes pierce the air
Where the hush of peace now reigneth,
  'Neath the autumn sky so fair.

  In review lines up today,
In the shell-scarred fields of Flanders
  Where the blood red poppies sway.

Now a silver band of silence
  Draws the whole world into one,
As we pay our tender tribute,
  For that mighty task, well done.

Peace to you, all ye comrades,
  And your spirit buddies true,
In that heroes' green Valhalla,
  Out there, beyond the blue.

Oh, we know that they must hear us,
  In the quiet light of morn,
For we feel them drawing near us
  As we pledge to carry on.

And we sense that they are watching
  Through the veil of death and pain,
And they know, as we salute them,

Legion Head Pleads for Naval Strength

Davenport, Ia., Nov. 11 (AP)—A plea that the navy be brought up to treaty parity strength was made in an Armistice Day address by Ralph T. O'Neil, national commander of the American Legion. He urged support for the legion's demand that Congress immediately enact the necessary legislation to build up the fleet to the strength provided by the London agreement.

He also announced that each of the 10,000 posts of the legion was to appoint an employment officer to help turn the tide of business and industrial depression.

Governor-General of Canada Fire Hero

Ottawa, Nov. 11 (AP)—The Royal Ottawa Golf Club was a charred ruin today but silver trophies and other valuables were safe as a result of the efforts of a rescue party led by Lord Willingdon, governor-general of Canada.

Fire was discovered in the attic while Lord Willingdon, Sir George Perley, acting prime minister, and Lady Perley were at luncheon.

"The vision which we are realizing in the planning and construction of the new Waldorf—is a New Way of Living. Literally, we intend that the new Waldorf-Astoria will mean to this era what the old Waldorf-Astoria did to its generation. It is interesting to note that in your process of manufacture, utilizing the Ultra Violet Ray in the 'Toasting' of LUCKY STRIKE tobacco, you are actuated by a similar impelling spirit of progress. Like the Waldorf, you are not content with your record of success but go on to significant new accomplishments."

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

Editor Boston American:

There are all kinds of voices over the radio. Some rasping, gruff, grating, harsh and unappealing to the average listener. Many of them keep up the same pitch and tone and naturally become monotonous.

There are few radio speakers who change their tones. Many of them keep on a high pitch, and not a few sound as if they were straining their voice to be heard.

Some, however, have winning, captivating voices that are easy to listen to and do not become tiresome, and because they have pleasant tones they become more convincing. Senator David I. Walsh over the radio has a voice that sizes up to this distinction. It would be well for some speakers to take their cue from him. It is evident that some radio speakers need voice culture so they will not distress nerves.

Boy Praised for Heroism in Stopping Train

Editor Boston American:

That boy who flagged a train with his red sweater, thereby averting a bad wreck on the Gloucester branch of the Boston & Maine R. R., has won a reputation. The tracks had been undermined and flooded by a broken city water main.

He used his mind. He saw the danger, facing the coming train. He thought quickly. He tore his sweater off. He waved it in sight of the approaching train. He met an emergency well. He saved the lives doubtless of 100 passengers and train help. This hero boy of 15 years, Alton Melanson, will always have something to remember by his act, and other boys will have something to imitate when the occasion arises.

Says Libraries Should Be Open Until 10 P. M.

Editor Boston American:

Branch libraries of the Boston Public Library should be kept open until 10 o'clock evenings, considering the present conditions of those out of work and not enjoying the comforts of home life.

The city of Boston can well afford to give such people this comfort, by permitting them to spend an hour longer reading evenings

Too many of the branch libraries are without lavatories.

This should not be. This is a public necessity, and should be provided for by the powers that be. MAX HENRY NEWMAN.

What can be done with Life Insurance

(3) Planning an Income for Old Age

SOONER or later all must lay down the burden of active work and retire. Who would not like to feel that his declining years would be spent in assured comfort, however long that period of his life might be?

We need to think actively along these lines,—to plan constructively and to lay aside funds regularly, with the definite purpose in mind of having sufficient income at that time to take care of ourselves adequately. The leisure period of life should not find us unprepared.

The John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Company offers LIFE, ENDOWMENT or ANNUITY contracts adaptable to any circumstances, and is thus ready to help solve at least a portion of the retirement problem.

Unitarians Lauded for Cheerfulness

Editor Boston American:

Last Monday I attended a meeting of Unitarian ministers in Eliot Hall, who were discussing unemployment. They tackled this subject from the right angle. They called upon all to be optimistic, that there was much money in this country, and that we were better off than any other country as far as the unemployment condition is concerned.

While not a Unitarian I want to pay this tribute to these ministers who always have a roseate view of conditions. They played up unemployment at this particular gathering, but they played it up with hopefulness. They are not like some merchants who are down in the mouth about lack of trade and sales. These men of the cloth just screwed their courage up to the sticking point and I left the meeting with a good lot to think about.

There is no use of going around and saying conditions are "rotten," for they are not.

Editor Boston American:

Several weeks ago I witnessed the closing scene to an accident in Commonwealth ave., in which the life of a little boy was crushed out by a street car. The sight of such a pitiful tragedy, together with a knowledge of the danger which for years has lurked increasingly at this very crossing, has led me to write to you. Influence on your part may serve to bring about some speedy action in this community in answer to the obvious demands for more humane protection of children and others crossing the avenue at this section.

The accident to which I refer took place opposite the Capitol Theater. The boy, after leaving the show, was probably hurrying across the avenue to catch a car and became confused in the rush of vehicles.

I have been watching for any possible changes that might be brought about since the time of this accident. Up to the present I understand that an officer has, now and then, been delivering lectures to the children attending the theater on safety rules; also two white lines have been painted across the avenue. Both of these are a help, but children are quite liable to forget such lectures, and white lines of themselves are usually seen too late to avert disaster.

One thing more, this boy's body passed completely beneath the forward truck of the street car. If a fender of any sort had been placed at a reasonable distance forward of the truck, such a device would no doubt have prevented the fatal results.

Man Confesses to Killing Girl, 15

Detroit, Nov. 11 (AP)—Ralph James, 33, married and father of a child, has confessed, according to Wayne county deputies, that he killed Alice Collier, 15, whose body was found three weeks ago in Wayne county.

The man, who is a laborer, said he invited Alice to ride in his automobile. Fearing she would report his conduct to authorities, the confession said, James choked her.

Wahibi Raiders Cut Victims' Beards

Jerusalem, Nov. 11 (AP)—Ancient historical times were recalled today by an attack of 1500 Wahabi horsemen on the Trans-Jordan Koweitat tribe.

The Wahabis, after robbing the Koweitat of their camels, cut the herdsmen's hair and beards.

"Go to your emir and tell him that next time your heads will be cut off," said the leader of the Wahabis.

AMMEL TO TRY HOP TO CHICAGO

Colon, Canal Zone, Nov. 11 (INS)—Capt. Roy W. Ammel, Chicago broker-aviator, who made the first successful non-stop flight from New York to the Canal Zone, expects to take off within a week on a non-stop flight to Chicago.

Capt. Ammel said he wants only two or three days' rest before he tunes up the motor of the low-winged monoplane that is his pride and joy for the 2300-mile flight back to his home city.

In completing the first non-stop New York-to-Pamama flight yesterday Capt. Ammel twice escaped death—once when he fell asleep over the Caribbean Sea and again when, on landing, he found his fuel was virtually exhausted.

Capt. Ammel landed at 2:45 p. m. eastern standard time, just 21 hours and 35 minutes after he took off from New York.

Berlin, Nov. 11—The 12th anniversary of the signing of the Armistice is expected to pass unnoticed in Germany, as has been the case each year.

Mixture of Gases Used as Cure for Pneumonia

New York, Nov. 11—A general attack upon pneumonia through use of inhalators of a public service company began here today.

Inhalators give a mixture of two gases, oxygen and carbon dioxide, and have been used with marked success, particularly among babies.

Announcement of the successful pneumonia treatments according to the new method was made by Mathew S. Sloan, president of the New York Edison system, as follows:

"The cure of numerous, serious cases of pneumonia, in which physicians of the electric companies of the Edison system cooperated with attending physicians of the patients, has been accomplished. The treatment consisted in the administration of a procedure for resuscitation from an electric shock.

Out of some 85 cases, with very slight possibility of recovery, 70 have been cured.

League Pauses a Minute for Dead

Geneva, Nov. 11 (AP)—In memory of the dead of the World War, the preparatory commission on disarmament of the League of Nations today stood in silence for one minute beginning at 11 a. m. Thirty-two nations were represented in the ceremony.

George Ade Is Ill in Chicago Hospital

Chicago, Nov. 11 (AP)—George Ade, the Indiana humorist, is ill in a hospital. He was taken there, it was learned today, when he came here Saturday to attend the Purdue-Chicago football game. His illness was diagnosed as neuritis by Dr. George H. Coleman.

"Why I changed to Chipso"

Mrs. A. H.—
"Chipso suds stand up in my washing machine"

"Suds of other soaps fell when I put soiled clothes in the washing machine," writes Mrs. A. H., of South Boston, "but Chipso suds are lasting. My clothes have a better color and my work is lighter, because these rich suds work so much harder and go so much further."

Mrs. E. L. O'C.—
"Children's clothes last longer"

"Since using Chipso I notice that the children's clothes last longer," this East Lynn housewife tells us. "My clothes are so white," she adds, "that I no longer need bluing." Chipso Flakes or Granules certainly do make white clothes dazzling — yet they keep colors bright as ever! That's because Chipso is a thorough soap, rather than a strong one. There's a difference.

Shorten your washing time! Save clothes and hands with Chipso Granules—

Think of getting suds—great, lacy billows of them—at the first touch of lukewarm water! Think of having these creamy suds stand up as long as you want—through two or three tub-loads of clothes or a long procession of dishes—with no "time out" for adding and dissolving new soap. Think of swishing everything washable through water that's soft and velvety with concentrated cleaning power! Think of the results—whiter, brighter clothes, sparkling dishes, thankful hands! Then ask your grocer for a package of Chipso Granules.

Mrs. J. C. S., Jr.—
"Chipso Granules save me one hour each Monday"

"It's such a relief not to have to dissolve soap in hot water," writes Mrs. J. C. S., Jr. "Chipso Granules dissolve immediately and completely in temperate water. They save me an hour each Monday. For clothes-washing and dishwashing, this is the most efficient soap I have ever used."

Mrs. R. T.—
"My hands had that rough appearance every woman dislikes"

"Before I used Chipso Granules for dishwashing, my hands were always rough and chapped. Now I think this velvety lather actually softens the skin. Or perhaps it is because the dishes are washed so much more quickly, my hands are in the water only a fraction of the time they used to be."

'WE MUST WAGE PEACE WITH ENERGY WE WAGED WAR'--HOOVER

PRESIDENT IN ARMISTICE DAY TRIBUTE TO HERO DEAD

Washington, Nov. 11—Following is the text of President Hoover's Armistice Day address at the annual conference and good will congress here of the World Alliance for International Friendship Through the Churches:

Upon this day all thoughts must turn to our heroic dead whose lives were given in defense of the liberties and ideals of our country. Their contribution to these priceless heritages was made without reservation; they gave the full measure of their intelligence and energy and enthusiasm, and life itself, forfeiting their portion of further happiness—all that we and our children might live on more safely, more happily, and more assured of the precious blessings of security and peace.

A solemn obligation lies upon us to press forward in our pursuit of those things for which they died. Our duty is to seek ever new and widening opportunities to insure the world against the horror and irretrievable wastage of war.

Much has been done, but we must wage peace continuously, with the same energy as they waged war.

This year 1930 has been rendered notable in peace annals in the achievement of the London naval treaty. That has disposed of one of those major frictions among the great naval powers—that is, competition in naval construction—and it has made a sensible advance in the reduction of warships.

58 RENOUNCE WAR

The promotion of peace and prevention of war, however, can not rest upon the accomplishment of any one year. The outlook for peace is happier than for half a century, yet we can not overlook the fact that nations in many ways are always potentially in conflict. There are not only the accumulated age-old controversies and ambitions which are alive with prejudice, emotion, and passion, but you may be assured that there will always be an unceasing crop of new controversies between nations.

Every shift in power, every advance in communications, in trade and finance daily increases the points of contact of one nation with another. The diffusion of their citizens and their property abroad increasingly penetrates and overlaps into the four corners of the earth. The many inventions of these citizens, their ceaseless energies, bring an hourly grist to our foreign offices of contested right or grievance. It is true that many of these contacts make for understanding and good will; it is indeed of the first importance to peace that these happy influences be cultivated and that the unhappy ones be disposed of with justice and good will.

The Kellogg-Briand Pact, signed a little over two years ago to further safeguard against the dangers from these conflicts, has already become a powerful influence in international affairs. Several further states have adhere to it since last November, bringing the total number of nations up to 58 which have renounced war as an instrument of national policy and have agreed to settle conflicts of whatever nature by pacific means. Five other states have expressed an intention to adhere, which will bring the total to 63, a figure comprising all but two nations.

By the recognition of this fundamental principle of peace and from the moral restraint that the covenant itself presents, this agreement has become one of the most potent instruments for peace which the world has ever forged for itself.

U. S. IN MANY PACTS

There has been much discussion as to the desirability of some further extension of the Pact so as to effect a double purpose of assuring methodical development of this machinery of peaceful settlement, and to insure at least the mobilization of world opinion against those who fail when strain comes. I do not say that some such further step may not some day come about.

Such a formula would be stimulative and would appeal to the dramatic sense of the world as a mark in the progress of peace. But less dramatic and possibly even more sure is the day-to-day strengthening and buttressing of the Pact by extension from one nation to another of treaties which, in times of friction, assure resort to well-tried processes of competent negotiation, of conciliation, and of arbitration.

And we can in our own relations record great advancement in these fundamental but less dramatic supports to the pact during the two years since its signature. Up to the signature of the pact our country was bound by arbitration treaties to seven other nations. It was bound to 26 nations by conciliation treaties, both bilateral and multilateral. Since that time we have completed treaties with 15 more countries, and in addition we have signed further arbitration and conciliation treaties with 45 nations, of which 26 have been ratified and the others are either before the Senate or in course of presentation to it.

By these treaties of arbitration we pledge ourselves to the acceptance of the judgment of a disinterested third party in all controversies of a justiciable character. By treaties of conciliation we pledge ourselves to submit all other types of controversy to negotiations or the mediation of commissions which embrace representatives of disinterested nations.

It is our purpose to develop in every way the use of arbitration and conciliation agreements in our relations with foreign nations.

Other nations of the world have likewise been engaged over years in the building up of the machinery for pacific settlement of controversies. There are hundreds of arbitration and conciliation treaties existing directly between them. Indeed the covenant of the League of Nations provides for arbitration and conciliation amongst 54 nations of the world.

PLEA FOR "COURT"

It is my belief that the world will have become firmly interlocked with such agreements within a very few years, and that it will become an accepted principle of international law that disputes between nations which it has not been possible to determine through the ordinary channels of diplomacy shall in future be submitted to arbitration or to international conciliation commissions.

In the development of methods of pacific settlement, a great hope lies in ever extending the body and principles of international law on which such settlements will be based.

The World Court is now a strongly established institution amongst 45 nations as a continuing body, performing and facilitating justiciable determinations which can only be accomplished sporadically under special treaties of arbitration. Its permanence is assured and from it there is steadily growing a body of precedent, decisions, and acceptance of law in the formulation of which we should have a part, not alone in our own interest but in advancement of peace.

A year ago I made a suggestion of a practical contribution in settlement of an age-old controversy of freedom of the seas. I proposed that food supplies should be made immune from interference in time of war, and that the security of such supplies should be guaranteed by neutral transport and management. I proposed it not alone upon humane grounds but that the haunting fears of nations who must live from over the sea might be relaxed and the sacrifices which they make for naval strength might be lessened. Our food supplies are assured, and it is therefore from us a disinterested proposal. It would make for prevention as well as limitation of war.

We, as a Nation whose independence, liberties, and securities were born of war, cannot contend that there never is or never will be righteous cause for war in the world. Nor can we assume that righteousness has so advanced in the world that we may yet have complete confidence in the full growth of pacific means or rest solely upon the processes of peace for defense.

LESSON FROM WAR

With the progress the world has made in the installation of the methodical processes for the settlement of controversies, the larger problem emerges as to fidelity to agreement to use these methods. The thought and anxiety of the world is rightly directed to the question as to what the nations of the world will do in case of a failure to use them. It is useless for us to say that we have no interest in such events.

Since our experience in the World War no one will deny the dangers which foreign wars bring to our shores or the interest we must have in the peace of the world at large. But I do not hold that our obligation in these matters lies wholly on the basis of self-interest. It is upon its moral and spiritual strength that the advancement of the world must rest.

Our basis of co-operation to preserve peace among nations must be different from that of the other great nations of the world. The security of our geographic situation, our traditional freedom from entanglements in the involved diplomacy of Europe, and our disinterestedness enable us to give a different and in many ways a more effective service to peace.

The nations of Europe, bordered as they are by age-old dangers of which we in the Western Hemisphere have little appreciation, beset as they are by long-inherited fears, believe that they must subscribe to methods which in the last resort will use force to compel nations to abide by their agreements to settle controversies by pacific means. We, in our great state of safety and independence, should make no criticism of their conclusions which arise from their necessities.

But we believe that our contribution can best be made in these emergencies, when nations fail to keep their undertakings of pacific settlement of disputes, by our good offices and helpfulness free from any advance commitment or entanglement as to the character of our action.

BLESSED PEACE!

The purpose of our government . to co-operate with others, to use our friendly offices, and, short of any implication of the use of force, to use every friendly effort and all good will to maintain the peace of the world.

The war that ended on this day 12 years ago taught us one thing, if nothing else, and that is the blessing of peace. When we look back upon its splendid valor and heroism then displayed, when we remember the magnificent energies poured forth by young and old, when we recall the marvelous exercise of the greatest virtues that glorify the human race—unselfishness, self-sacrifice, co-operation, both by men and women—we are looking not upon qualities which war creates but rather upon the traits of the human race which war makes seem more vivid by contrast with its own horrors.

These same qualities are exercised, but are unsung and unheralded, in times of peace. Those who died displaying them would have displayed them living, and would have wrought their fruits into the enduring fabric of our peaceful destiny.

We can only pledge ourselves, in honor of their memory, to the task of making ever more unlikely that our youth hereafter shall be denied its opportunity to devote its idealism and its energies to the constructive arts of peace.

Foreign Wars to Be Avoided, Says President

"The nations of Europe, bordered as they are by age-old dangers of which we of the Western Hempisphere have little appreciation, beset as they are by long-inherited fears, believe they must subscribe to methods which in the last resort will use force to compel nations to abide by their agreements.

"We believe that our contribution can best be made in these emergencies by our good offices and helpfulness, free from commitments or entanglement as to our character of action."

—President Hoover, speaking at Washington today.

ENDURING FATIGUE IN MID-AFTERNOON IS NOT ADVISABLE

Fagged System Invites Sickness, Inefficiency — Renew Vigor by Eating a Sweet

Medical investigations show that daily fatigue not only makes the system susceptible to illness and organic troubles, but also lessens one's efficiency. Tired people, especially those engaged in offices and stores, have difficulty in concentrating or "keeping awake" on the job.

Most business people find that four o'clock is their zero hour as far as vitality is concerned. To renew vigor at this time, many men and women take a moment to eat or drink something sweet. The results are surprising — almost instantly fatigue is overcome.

Medical men and food scientists who have experimented along these lines say that the renewed vigor is caused by the refined sugar in the food or beverage. Sugar nourishes the body very quickly and when this occurs fatigue disappears.

Americans, it is said, are more subject to business fatigue than any other nationality. However, American workers can quickly get candy, ice cream, cakes and beverages everywhere. A glass of water sweetened with sugar — the "athlete's cocktail"—is reviving. Most foods are more delicious and nourishing with refined sugar. The Sugar Institute.

The earth trembled, panthers squalled in the brake like babies and the Mississippi ran upstream a thousand miles, on the night John Henry was born. What a Man! Roark Bradford, upon whose Negro stories Marc Connelly based his fine play, "The Green Pastures," tells these tales of John Henry's prodigious exploits, beginning in December Cosmopolitan.

W. Somerset Maugham, who wrote "Rain" and "The Painted Veil," knows more of what goes on in a woman's heart than women do themselves. December Cosmopolitan gives you, in "The Human Element," the first of a group of long complete stories by Maugham.

RUPERT HUGHES is just getting under way with his new Cosmopolitan serial, "No One Man." In the December installment, false names on the hotel register get an extremely modern couple into a difficult situation.

MEREDITH NICHOLSON, in "Moonlight on the Susquehanna," takes you on an adventure in romance that has all the charm and mystery of his "The House of a Thousand Candles."

REX BEACH, in "Tiger-snake," tells of two white men and a white girl in the Malay jungle. It is a grim love triangle in which you are bound to take sides.

JOHN ERSKINE, in "The Private Life of Pocahontas," gives us an inside view of her relations with Captain John Smith.

BENITO MUSSOLINI says frankly in this issue that Italy must expand and be willing to pay the price of expansion. This article shows why he has all Europe worried.

ADMITS BUYING POSTAL JOB

Atlanta, Nov. 11 (AP)—The Constitution today published a statement from Joe B. Dove in which he answered charges contained in a federal indictment accusing him of soliciting and receiving $500 from John Park Benson in return for his influence in obtaining the College Park (Ga.) postmastership for Benson's son, Ernest.

Dove admitted receiving the $500 and asserted he turned it over in Washington to a representative of Postmaster General Brown to be used for the Republican national committee.

"This is no news to the administration at Washington," said the published statement from Dove, "Mr. Benson and I have been trying to get this money back for more than a year."

BONDSMEN BAN CAPONE GANG

Chicago, Nov. 11 (AP)—The Herald-Examiner today said that the Grand Central Surety Co., which has supplied bail for most of Chicago's hoodlums, was ordered by its president to surrender at once all gangsters it has bonded.

Leslie J. Tompkins, professor of law at New York University and president of the concern, was quoted by the paper as saying he had not known his company was bonding criminals.

Tompkins' action came after Judge John H. Lyle yesterday ordered all criminal bonds issued by the company brought into court for inspection. The Grand Central Surety, Judge Lyle said, had provided bond for several Capone gangsters.

Buck Going After Boynton's Record

Newark, N. J., Nov. 11 (AP)—Robert Buck, 16, flier who formerly held junior transcontinental flight records in both directions, said today he would attempt to regain them from Stanley Boynton of Lexington, Mass., the new record holder. He has not set a date for the attempt.

DRYS AND ANTIS TO REORGANIZE

Washington, Nov. 11—Reorganization of the whole dry movement and consolidation of the proposals of all wet bodies into one anti-prohibition program will be proposed at two national gatherings of opposing forces in Washington next month.

The conference of the anti-prohibitionists is slated for December 8 and the dry meeting is on December 10.

Dry leaders say a sharp revision in the methods of the movements will be considered.

The wet convention is sponsored by Dr. F. W. Buck, secretary of the Federal Taxpayers' Dispensary League, which advocates federal control of sale of liquor.

American Housewives Often Overcook Macaroni

The delightful fluffiness and lightness of Mueller's macaroni products are realized in ideal form by following the directions on the package and boiling nine minutes. If especial tenderness is desired, 1 or 2 minutes more may be allowed.

WATCH him! 195 pounds of muscle, speed and courage! That's the kind of a boy to raise! Part of it may be inherited. But a great deal of it is correct, properly balanced, easily assimilated diet.

As Nourishing As Meat But More Digestible

No food is richer in strength-giving qualities, and yet more easily digested, than MUELLER'S MACARONI and SPAGHETTI. The Mueller processes, and the special farina-blend used as the main ingredient, give them an exceptional lightness and "fluffiness," attained by 9 minutes' boiling.

All the important food-elements are present—protein, mineral salts, carbohydrates. And the natural taste is so delicious that no special sauces are needed when serving.

Scores of New Recipes

MACARONI ROYAL

1 package MUELLER'S MACARONI; 7 slices lean bacon; 1 small onion, chopped fine; ¼ pound snappy cheese; 2 cans tomato soup. Parboil the macaroni 7 minutes in 4 quarts of rapidly boiling water to which 1 tbsp. salt has been added. Drain. Pan-broil the bacon. Place a layer of macaroni in the bottom of a baking dish, dot with pieces of minced cheese and bacon, add layer of macaroni; continue until used up. Mix the tomato soup and onion; pour over top. Bake in a moderate oven for 20 minutes.

Be sure to say "MUELLER'S" to your grocer, when you order. He has it, or can get it for you.

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

SEENA OWEN, talented toiler of the screen, brought familiar, but none the less interesting arts, to last evening's presentation of "The Blue Ghost" at the Majestic. As every fan knows, Miss Owen possesses a deep and honest knowledge of the flickering film; last night we discovered her riding high and clear through the mysteries of the spoken word. Miss Owen gave charm, beauty and becoming grace to this season's most exhilarating thriller. And if you happen to be one of those persistent followers of chill and tremulo in the drama, and have seen them all, may we recommend "The Blue Ghost" as something especially unique in the business of raising gooseflesh and lifting stray hairs.

* * *

NOT SINCE the good old days of Hanlon's Superba, when swinging doors, star traps and vanishing goblins stirred your imagination, has there been anything quite so eerie on the local stage. To a reviewer who once guided the destinies of "The Cat and the Canary" through a superstitious Southland, the shocks and surprises of "The Blue Ghost" came as a ghastly surprise. Any indifferent playgoer who thinks that the drama's last word in spooks and mystery had been spoken, will find himself happily stimulated by this newest venture in the drama, known as ghostly. It was all of that—and more. And yet in the end it turned out to be nothing more than a considerable joke on an applauding and highly delighted audience.

Nicholas Young

* * *

FOR "THE BLUE GHOST," while starting freshly as good old-fashioned mystery, hopped nimbly from its melodramatic texture into farce that left its mark in every corner of a theater. Once more it was brought home with full power that the paying playgoer asks only for a fair measure of entertainment and an opportunity to give it decent return in the shape of either laughs or cheers. There was much of both at the Majestic. The audience, you knew at a glance, or at least by proper sounding, was prepared for surprise and willing to acknowledge it. As the mysteries of the play grew and waxed noisily, though at times inconsistently, attention grew apace—and waxed even more noisily.

* * *

NOBODY IN THE THEATER was looking for literary perfection; nobody, apparently, cared a whit about dramatic finesse. Startling entertainment was the watchword—it was the call of the multitude and the dish was packed to overflowing. Many interesting characters gave "The Blue Ghost" a good reason for its enthusiastic house. Besides Miss Owen, whose exploits in filmland had brought both fame and favor, you had an actor named Nate Busby to show just how hard it may be for a timid colored gentleman to struggle through a mystery drama without totally passing from view with genuine fright. Mr. Busby labored incessantly; the honest sweat of his brow often threatened to wash away the layer of burnt cork that made him the busiest Negro of this time on the American stage. Dramatic art was never more strenuously expressed.

* * *

IF THERE IS ANYTHING IN the spook drama to arrest your attention, and by its actions the last night audience gave full embrace to "The Blue Ghost," the enduring drama of this particular day and hour must have mystery and suspense; splashes of humor and a few finely developed ghosts, skeletons and an easy means of egress. "The Blue Ghost" had all of these—besides many other mechanical mysteries that even a skilled reviewer could not fathom.

Made Fox Director

Seymour Felix, dance director, has been elevated to the position of director of pictures by Fox. Felix directed the dances for "Sunny Side Up" and the more recent DeSylva Brown and Henderson musical romance, "Just Imagine."

CHARLIE CHAPLIN'S LEADING LADY SIGNED BY FOX

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service

Copyright, 1930, by Universal Service, Inc.

LOS ANGELES, NOV. 11—Is this faith in Charlie Chaplin's work or isn't it? Virginia Cherrill, who has never been seen on the screen and has been working for two years as Charlie's leading lady in "City Lights" has been signed by the Fox company. The Fox company must have had every confidence in Mr. Chaplin's ability to make the young lady known, for she was signed before they so much as looked at "City Lights."

Her first picture under the new contract will be an original by Harlan Thompson. Little Miss Cherrill, who is blonde and very pretty, will play opposite Frank Albertson. Felix Seymour, New York director, will direct her. Do you recall the story of Miss Cherrill? She came out here to visit Sue Carol and sat next to Mr. Chaplin one night at dinner. He was so impressed with her possibilities that he asked her to come to the studio and make a test.

Louella O. Parsons

She is, perhaps, the only girl who has ever been signed on a contract and has worked on one picture for two years.

* * *

COLLEEN MOORE'S PLAY will not be taken into New York. Barney Glazer, the author, has returned to Hollywood and he says that while Colleen gives an excellent performance and has had wonderful experience the play needs changing. That is a rather frank admission for an author. He said the audience refuses to accept Colleen as the bad girl in the first scenes, but when she reforms and becomes good they love her. They do not want their hoyden turned into a hussy. There has been some talk of putting "Foam," the stage play, on the screen and in that event Barney says he will change the story. Colleen is playing in St. Louis.

* * *

A FEW LITTLE NEWS ITEMS picked up put Anita Page as the feminine lead in "Gentleman's Fate," with Mervyn Le Roy directing. Mervyn directs "Big Business Girl" when he returns to First National. Vivian Oakland and Virginia Sale are at Universal studios in "Babies Won't Tell." Speaking of Universal "St. Johnson" which was purchased many moons ago, a story by W. R. Burnett, author of "Little Caesar" and "The Iron Man," is scheduled for almost immediate production. Edward Laemmle and Charles Logue are now writing the script. Johnny Harron is in "The Easiest Way." Poor Johnny, what tragedy there has been in the Harron family, and what sadness.

* * *

A FEW LITTLE THINGS heard around town: Negotiations that Thomas Meighan has had with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. So far nothing has come of them; but with all the offers being suddenly made to Tommy, he will probably up and accept them one day. Mr. and Mrs. John Ford are planning a trip to China, Japan and the Philippines as soon as he finishes his present picture. "Up the River" seems to have put an added value on Mr. Ford, for he proves he cannot only do sob stuff, but comedy as well. Joseph Cawthorn, who was laid up with a bad sore throat, is back at work again, able to speak audibly. Lew Ayres goes into the star class when he plays his next picture, "Fires of Youth," which Monta Bell and James Whittaker will direct. Let's hope that stardom doesn't hurt young Ayres. Too many players are rushed into stardom without sufficient preparation.

* * *

THESE WARM DAYS have taken Norma Talmadge to her beach house, where she has been swimming, sitting in the sun and getting ready for her next picture. The story isn't selected yet, but Arthur Hopkins, who will come West when Norma is ready to go to work, will direct her and probably put his approval on the play. When we hark back to the good things Arthur Hopkins has done in New York and remember how he has always stood for the best and most artistic things in the theater it seems to us that he ought to be a valuable factor in motion pictures.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD collected at random: MARION DAVIES receiving many acceptances, not only from veterans but from film people who want to attend the ball given by her Tuesday night at the Biltmore Hotel. BEBE DANIELS, BEN LYON and a crowd of movie folk, dropping into Sam's Corner for sauerkraut and spare ribs and near beer. Sawdust and red tablecloths are the prevailing fashion in this place. MRS. OSCAR STRAUS, guest of honor at a luncheon given for her at the Embassy Club. MRS. EDDIE SUTHERLAND back in town, lunching with LILYAN TASHMAN and other friends at the Embassy. ANTONIO MORENO looking very well, glimpsed at the Stark restaurant. LEILA HYAMS, JACK MULHALL, RAOUL WALSH, HARRY GREEN there the same night. That's all today. See you tomorrow!

Continuing Shows

Coming Events

The Freiburg Passion Play will move into the Boston Opera House on Monday, December 1.

"Green Grew The Lilacs," a Theater Guild production, will begin its local engagement at the Tremont on Monday, December 8.

COMEDY STEPS on the gas to put laughs into that radio mystery tale, "Remote Control" based on the stage play, and now on screen at Loew's State. William Haines, as the star, mimes throughout in his own peculiar vein, and will probably satisfy all demands of his admirers. He must feel certain of his power to draw patrons to the box office; for he supplies antics from the same old stock he has been using with monotony, pleasing or painful, depending upon the attitude of the observer, for a good many moons.

THE SCENARIST injects Mr. Haines into the film romance of Mary Doran. She turns out to be the kin of a radio broadcasting station proprietor. For some reason or other Mr. Haines gets the job of managing the station; business must have gone blooey while he had charge, for he devotes his sole time and attention to the capture of certain clever burglars whose operations had fooled the police of the community. There are incidental events, like a Follies show given by a Junior League, and the use of the camera in revealing the inner workings of a broadcasting station. Mr. Haines smart-alecks his way through all the plot ramifications, to a heroic finish with Miss Doran in his arms.

* * *

JOHN MILJAN, as the villainous professor, is the best actor; J. C. Nugent, always turning in a sterling performance, is seen for a brief time during which he shines brightly. Polly Moran is humorously in evidence; she wears horn-rimmed spectacles in the manner of Harold Lloyd, and gets away with it. Also in the cast is Charles King who sings a song in his winning way. Miss Doran is beautiful and clever.

THE STATE has a number of excellent short features; among them "Love Business," an Our Gang number; and a colortone revue, "The Clock Shop."

BILLY WATSON AT HOWARD

Sporting fans flocked to the Old Howard yesterday to see the pictures of the recent La Barba-Kid Chocolate boxing contest held at Madison Square Garden. The films are clear and accurate. These films will be displayed every afternoon and night during the week.

A Mutual burlesque attraction stars the famous "Sliding" Billy Watson, with his own burlesque organization. Watson created much merriment. He has surrounded himself with a capable company of players and three clever girl principals, Mabel White, Judy Butler and Marion Lee.

In addition was a vaudeville and picture program. Gracie Smith and Her Buddies, scored. McManus and Hickey made a hit with their act, "The Sport and His Friend." The pictures included Kenneth McKenna in "Men Without Women"; also "Mexecali Rose" with Barbara Stanwyck. There will be a midnight performance on Friday night with special features.

"What a Widow" on Bowdoin Program

The rare quality of picture and vaudeville program at the Bowdoin Sq. this week proved attractive to a well-filled house yesterday. As the top feature Gloria Swanson is offered in "What a Widow." Another picture is "Shadow Ranch" with Buck Jones. Tomorrow night is cabaret night. On Thursday the entire bill is changed.

SYMPHONY IN FIRST EXTRA CONCERT

By MOSES SMITH

Serge Koussevitzky was warmly applauded by the capacity audience at Symphony Hall when he appeared to conduct the first of the Monday evening concerts. The program, chosen from pieces already played at the regular subscription concerts, included Pick-Mangiagalli's arrangement of Two Bach Preludes, Respighi's "Metamorphoseon" and Beethoven's Seventh Symphony.

The performance by the orchestra of each of these works achieved the level set in Monday evening concerts of past seasons, which is to say that the works were even better played than they were at the regular concerts. Almost flawless was the work of the strings in the Bach Preludes, though one might offer a mild demurrer as to the intense excitement of the fast movement. Similarly the Beethoven Symphony was brilliantly rendered, and on the whole the interpretation seemed more plausible than any Mr. Koussevitzky has given of the work in Boston.

But the writer's principal interest was centered on Respighi's Theme and Variations, performed, for the first time in the world, at last Friday's concert. At that time the writer liked the newest score of the celebrated Italian, and apparently I was alone in my opinion. A second hearing strengthened that opinion for the most part.

It is true that the work is spotty—there are measures written for orchestral display, others of sentimental padding. But once the theme was stated, the development of the early movements seemed again beautiful, in an unearthly sort of way. Nor did the closing apotheosis seem quite so banal last night. It seemed to stem more naturally from the roots of the theme. The orchestration, needless to say, is ingenious.

Vitaphone Writers

With the addition of Weare Holbrook, creator of "Clarence," the newspaper comic strip, Vitaphone's writing staff now comprises five authors, the others being Stanley Rauh, Burnet Hershey, A. D. Otvos and Casey Robinson.

Moscovitch Opens Here Tonight

Maurice Moscovitch, noted actor of the Yiddish Theater, will bring his talents to the English-speaking stage at the Tremont tonight with a presentation of "The Merchant of Venice." Mr. Moscovitch, of course, will be seen as Shylock. In the supporting company are such excellent players as Selena Royle, Dorothy Tree, Judith Elder, Frank Howson and Louis Polan. The production was staged by Andrew Leigh.

On Two Screens

BARBARA KENT

MISS KENT has a leading role in Harold Lloyd's latest film, "Feet First," now at the Uptown and the Washington St. Olympia.

Jose Iturbi Wins Applause at Benefit

Jose Iturbi, Spanish pianist, gave a concert in the Hotel Statler ballroom yesterday for the benefit of Denison House. Playing with the same astonishing brilliance of mechanical equipment and elegance of style as he displayed here first last year, the pianist aroused the large audience to excited applause.

An interesting program included two works performed for the first time—Alexander Tansman's "Spiritual and Blues" and Infante's "El Vito."

'BOZO' SNYDER GOES BIG AT SCOLLAY

Another fine vaudeville show is on hand for Scollay Sq. Theater patrons this week. The shining lights of this bill prove to be two extremes, one in the person of Tommy "Bozo" Snyder, with his rough and ready "hoke" comedy, the other a charming prima donna recruited from the musical comedy stage, Margaret Merle.

"Bozo" was the recipient of a great reception, and his offering, "Baby Golf," was superb. He has assembled a company of five entertainers, who clown with him in great shape.

Miss Merle proved to be a very talented singer, and the audience applauded her to the echo, in her song offerings.

The "Scollayettes," the eight charming dancers featured weekly, have two new song and dance routines staged by Ada Kaufman, which bear the stamp of musical comedy excellence. Other turns of this show are contributed by the favorites of the air, "The Wilson Bros." in "Hello, Emma," Monroe and Adams, expert jugglers, and the Zelda Brothers, who round out the bill in snappy fashion.

"Laughter," starring Nancy Carroll and Frederic March, is the screen hit.

HINDA WASSAU GAYETY HIT

Hinda Wassau, coming direct from Hollywood to Boston as an extra added attraction to "Radium Queens," burlesque show at the Gayety, stopped the show cold yesterday. She is reported to be the highest paid burlesque star in the country. Her voice is fine. She had a lilting way of singing which held the audience. In addition she offered a cycle of dances. Most of them were based on Oriental movements. Her song cycle was novel, too, for her ditties were lively. The result was immediate success. The applause was long and loud.

Doris Birmingham, the star of "Radium Queens," proved herself no mean performer. Her mannerisms and dances were effective, while the comedy of Benny "Wop" Moore was subtle and novel. The Perry Twins and Taris had an unusual dancing act which traveled at lightning speed.

Other favorites in the cast were Lew Lewis, John Kane, Dolly Davis, Gaby Fields and Syd Burke. The chorus was peppy. Holub's Jazz Hounds scored another hit.

WESTERN EPIC ON ORPHEUM SCREEN

"Billy the Kid" is on the screen at Loew's Orpheum this week in the person of John Mack Brown, who gives the best performance of his career.

Wallace Beery gives an unforgettable characterization as Sheriff Garrett. Other actors are Kay Johnson, Karl Dane, Wyndham Standing, Russell Simpson, Blanche Friderici, Warner Richmond and Roscoe Ates.

Kay Johnson

Eddie Pardo, rollicking singing comedian, is leader of the excellent variety bill, the audience finding him much to its liking. The popular headliner brings with him Broadway's newest wisecracks and "gags" and gayly frolics on the stage in a clever mixture of songs, steps and patter.

Donald Kerr and Effie Weston, favorite vaudeville funsters, are the features of a colorful revue that is highlighted by the comedian's witty dialogue and farcical acrobatic antics. They have three youthful, talented assistants in Bert Weston, Harry Keen and Edna Barrett.

A hilarious satirical comedy built around "the black art" is the offering of Henry Regal and Company. William El Cota displays ability in a repertoire of xylophone numbers. Jerome and Evelyn complete the bill.

BRUINS SET FOR SEASON'S OPENER

FANNING WITH George Underwood

Wuxtra! Paolino in the Hoosegow! Maloney Mill Off! ↕ Sammy and Andy Will Fight for Charity, Anyway

France Gets Excited About Shamus' Opponent

When Sammy Fuller, New England lightweight champion, crawls through the ropes to defend his title in a return match against Andy Callahan, the man from whom the North Ender won the crown, in the big Christmas Fund boxing show at the Arena, next Monday night, it may be the only big boxing show in aid of the great charity. The Maloney-Paolino bout, which was scheduled for the Boston Garden on December 5, temporarily has been knocked into a cocked hat. Jeff Dickson, the young Tenessean, who went Over There during the late unpleasantness and liked gay Paree so well he decided to stay along the Rue de La Paix promoting fights a la Tex Rickard, more or less, with the accent on the less, has tossed a large sized monkey wrench into the works.

George Underwood

It's a sad tale, maties, and a bit exciting. Paris and Jeff Dickson got so excited about it, in fact, that the gendarmes yesterday seized the Basque Woodchopper and tossed him into the hoosegow, or mayhap it was the Bastile. Dickson got out papers suing Paolino for $16,000 he claims he spent arranging a Paolino-Carnera bout for Barcelona. He induced the French courts to forcibly restrain Paolino from rushing off to America to fight that dear M'seu Malonee here in Boston.

When Matchmaker Alex MacLean heard of it he wanted President Hoover promptly to declare war on France. Right on Armistice eve, too. What Dan Carroll, manager of Maloney, said would have made the armless Venus de Milo there in the Louvre cover her face with her dimpled knee and blush for shame. For 300 consecutive seconds Danyell thought up a new cuss word every second.

The sight of the hairy, wide mouthed, gold tusked Paolino, raging behind the bars, gave Francois Descamps, who hasn't made a sous since he last Georges Carpentier, an idea. He wanted to advertise Paolino as the wild baboon from the African jungle and charge admission to the populace. Francois and the prison authorities, however, couldn't agree on the cut.

RACKET IS RIGHT

All airy persiflage aside, for ways that are dark and tricks that are vain this fight racket has Bret Hart's heathen Chinee lashed to the mast. This fight racket is harder to understand than the Einstein theory.

Jeff Dickson signed Paolino to box Carnera in Barcelona on November 5. Carnera wouldn't keep the date. Dickson failed to emit a peep.

Thinking Dickson's failure to produce Carnera, "not later than November 5," as the contract read, automatically released him from the contract, Paolino accepted terms to box Maloney for the Chrismas Fund here in the Boston Garden on December 5.

Whereupon Dickson decided that he would compel Paolino to remain in France and go through with a bout with Carnera on November 23.

Being "in good" with the French politicians Jeff had little trouble in detaining Paolino, who had no one there to fight his political battles except Trainer Whitey Bimstein, whose New York Yiddish the Parisian gendarmes utterly failed to parley-voo.

Before Dickson had Paolino tossed in the hoosegow yesterday, he sent a long radiogram to Lou Brix, Paolino's manager, in New York. Dickson sent copies of the Brix radiogram to the Massachusetts State Boxing Commission and Matchmaker Alex MacLean of the Boston Garden. Dickson's cable follows:

"Received your long cable. You asked me October 29 what was the date of the Paolino-Carnera bout in Barcelona. I answered the same day, November 16 or 23, sure. So your cable of October 29 asking me to confirm date kills your long cable this morning about verbal agreement, newspaper reports, etc. You are looking for any kind of an excuse to call off the Carnera-Paolino bout, but I am telling you for the last time I have a signed contract. I have posted $5000. I have spent more than $10,000. I have receipt signed by Paolino for expenses for three contests in Europe. I have sold tickets. The match will take place or Paolino will not leave Europe.

HATE TO DO IT

"I hate to act like this, but you would do the same thing if you were in my place. Read copy of all cables you have sent me and you can see you have tried everything possible to break my contract signed by you and Paolino. The judges and referee are being named by the boxing board of three different countries. I have talked with Paolino and told him he had to go through with his contract or I would hand the matter over to my lawyers, who can take action today in Paris and San Sebastian.

"Waiting until tomorrow noon to receive your final answer. If you refuse to fulfill my contract I swear I will stop Paolino. Am sending copy of this cable to Boston promoter and boxing commission. I have just come back from press headquarters and can assure you Paolino even can be arrested if I wish. But why all this scandal? I am willing to release Paolino from his December date in London after his contest with Primo, if you need him urgent. He can sail on the Paris, November 26. Kind regards. Signed, Jeff Dickson, 2 Rue Gretry, Paris, France."

"Kind regards." Heh! heh! Ha! Ha! Ha! It's the way they have in that dear Paree.

Betcha when Jeff politely had Paolino tossed in the hoosegow, yesterday, he just as courteously said:

"Draw up a chair, Paolino, old fellow, and make yourself right to home. Put your brogans on the bars if you want. Anything to make yourself comfortable, old deah. And what will you have for lunch—bread and water, or water and bread?"

And so the Maloney-Paolino match appears off. But like off ag'in, on ag'in, gone ag'in Finnegan, maybe the Paolino-Maloney match may yet be on ag'in. Who knows?

Whether it is on, or off, you'll see a whopping good Xmas Fund boxing show with Sammy Fuller and Andy Callahan furnishing the main fireworks in the Arena, next Monday night.

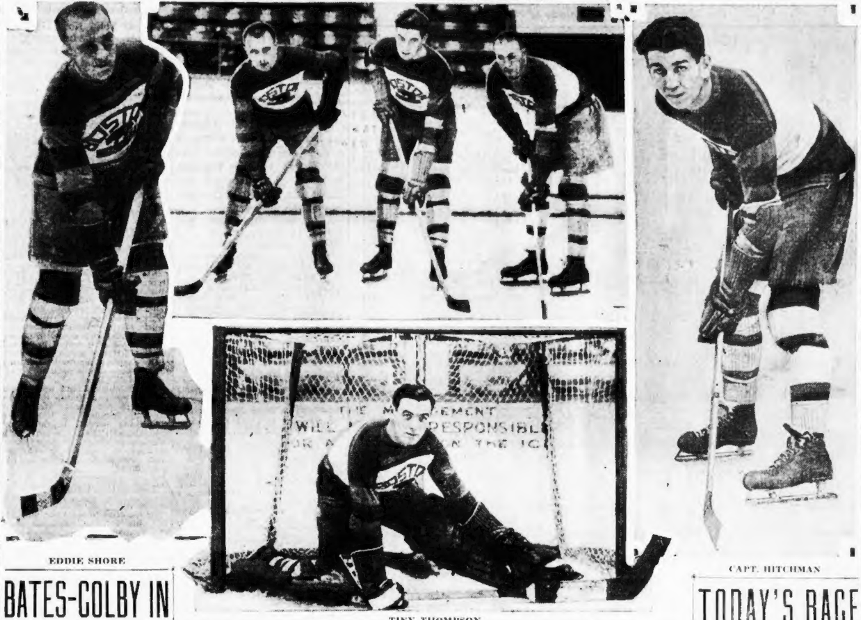
ARMISTICE DAY FOR SOME---BUT NOT THE BRUINS



HARRY OLIVER MARTY BARRY PERCY GALBRAITH

EDDIE SHORE

TINY THOMPSON

CAPT. HITCHMAN

BATES-COLBY IN TITLE FIGHT

Lewiston, Me., Nov. 11 (AP)—Bates College was fighting for its second successive Maine State College football championship while Colby hoped to beat the Bobcats and go into a tie for the title as the two elevens met at Garcelon Field today.

It was the final tilt of the state series.

FIRST PERIOD.

Neither team was able to gain consistently and McCluskey and Walley Donovan, Colby ace, engaged in a punting duel with Donovan holding the edge.

Near the end of the quarter, Shapiro shot a bad pass to McCluskey and the latter's kick was blocked, Colby taking possession on the Bates 34-yard line. The Mules were stopped by the Bates line, however, and lost the ball on downs and McCluskey punted out of danger.

The ball was in midfield most of the time and the one forward pass attempted by Colby, was incomplete.

Score first period: Colby, 0; Bates, 0.

SECOND PERIOD

The Mules were constantly threatening the Bobcats as Donovan's punts put them in the danger zone, but when efforts were made through the line gains were negligible.

Score first half: Colby 0; Bates 0.

THIRD PERIOD

Bates scored twice on runs of 76 and 27 yards by Sid Farrell and added the extra points on drop kicks by Valicenti.

Farrell's first touchdown came soon after the start of the half when he broke through the left side of his line and then raced through the secondary defense to be tackled as he crossed the goal line.

A short kick by McCluskey which caught Colby unawares and gave them the ball on their 20 yard line and a 15 yard penalty against the Mules for holding put them on the defensive after the next kick off.

Score: Colby 0, Bates 14.

28 B. C. PLAYERS TO MAKE TRIP

After a long practice session this morning Coach Joe McKenney picked the players who will make the trip to Chicago, where Boston College is playing Loyola next Friday evening.

McKenney will take 28 players West with him. Together with coaches, trainers and managers the whole group will number 35.

The quarterbacks are Billy Boehner, George Colbert and "Buggy" Warren. Chessy Antos, oJe Kelley, Mike Vodoklys, Ralph Mallet, Joseph Ryder, Johnny Marr, Pete Chesnulevich, and Jopey Shea are the other backs.

The team will be accompanied by Fr. Roddy, faculty director of athletics; John P. Curley, graduate manager; Arthur Norton and John McManus, student managers; Dr. Ben Godvin, team physician and Frank Jones, trainer.

The squad will leave Boston tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock and will arrive in the Windy City early Thursday night in time to work out under the lights.

The Eagles are favored to win since Loyola was defeated earlier in the season by Georgetown. But night football may prove a disadvantage to the Eagles, who have not played at night before.

Joe Kelley and Mike Vodoklys, who received leg injuries in the George town game, are expected to be in shape by Friday night. Both are still hobbling a bit but they are confident that they will be able to play.

Horween Decides to Start Regulars Against H. C.

Coach Arnold Horween, taking advantage of the fact that he has no hospital list, and several returning gridmen, plans another full day's work for the crimson-shirted gridmen across the Charles.

And there will be no holiday for the Crimson regulars next Saturday, either, according to Horween's latest football bulletin. Every Harvard player will be expected in togs when Holy Cross comes to the Stadium, and Horween further states that he will start his regular eleven, contrary to expectations.

Plenty of work will occupy the Cantabs from now until the day before the Yale game, two weeks hence. Horween believes that the best preparation for the Eli battle is lots of stiff scrimmages and drills for Harvard.

While Horween will start his first string team, Saturday afternoon will see plenty of reserves in action. Horween plans to give his substitute backs a final testing against McEwan's Crusaders.

To this end it is expected that Sam Batchelder, substitute halfback, will get a lion's share of the work Saturday. Batchelder has been on the verge of breaking into Harvard's A team all season, and Horween now thinks that the Milton boy is ready to go places against opposition.

Harvard Reserves Due for Final Testing

Several other Harvard reserve backs will get their final testing for Yale against Holy Cross. Sumner Putnam, third on the Harvard quarterback list will be given a chance to direct the Harvard eleven Saturday. Attention is focussed on Putnam's ability as a quarterback more than ever now, since it is evident that Horween intends to make Art Huguley a first string halfback.

Something resembling the famous "pony" backfield will also get into stride Saturday when Paul Fullam, Dana Greeley, Dave Forbes, and Paul Leonard appear in the Harvard lineup.

Horween is not worrying so much about players as plays. The Harvard head coach knows exactly what he can expect of his various ball carriers, and the job now is to teach these backs to pack a scoring punch.

From the performances to date, the Harvard quarterbacks, either from choice or necessity, have been very sparing of scoring plays. No Harvard team looked better than the present one when they were 20 yards from the enemy goal line, and no Harvard team looked any sadder than the present edition when they get inside the foe's 10-yard stripe.

Holy Cross is convinced that this year will be their year, and 10,000 ducats have gone the way of Holy Cross, the Purple rooters taking nine entire sections.

A crowd of 54,000 fans, several thousand larger than witnessed the battle between Harvard and Michigan, will pack the Stadium, according to estimates of Harvard Athletic Association officials. Holy Cross games always attract a record crowd, and this year will be no exception to the rule.

Winchester Girls Beat Watertown

The Nichols sisters' fine passing game scored the goals that gave Winchester high a 2-to-0 victory over Watertown high in a field hockey game at Watertown. One goal was scored near the end of the first period and the second after 10 minutes of play in the second period.

Veteran Mackmen Pass Out of Baseball Picture

Mack announced that he had given old Jack Quinn and the veteran catcher, Wally Schang, their unconditional release and had obtained three young players from the Pacific Coast league to fill the gaps.

After Mack won his fifth world title last month at the expense of the St. Louis Cardinals, he announced he would keep his team intact except for certain of the older players, so it came as no surprise when the A's manager announced that Quinn and Schang were no longer with the club.

There have been reports that others would go or be benched for younger men, but Mack was noncommittal about this.

The three young players who will join the team are Robert L. Johnson, outfielder; Hank McDonald, right-handed pitcher, and Joe Palmisano, catcher, all of the Portland, Ore., club.

Chicago Won't Let 'Strib' Fight in N. Y.

Chicago, Nov. 11 (AP)—Even if W. L. "Young" Stribling, Georgia's boxer, did desire to appear on a Milk Fund card in New York next month, the Chicago Stadium would not hear to it.

Stadium officials yesterday informed Stribling—although he had not even asked—that they would not release him from his contract to meet either Gerald Ambrose (Tuffy) Griffith of Sioux City or Paulino Uzcudun in the Stadium Dec. 12 on a charity card.

Stribling had been suggested as an opponent for Jack Sharkey, who offered to fight the southerner for nothing. Stribling asserted, however, that he is willing to meet the Boston sailor any time later, either in Chicago or Miami.

Hockey Should Be Played in Ring, Tiger Pilot Thinks

Hockey, plus plain and fancy fighting, according to Manager Eddie Powers of the Boston Tigers, continues to be the rule in the Canadian - American Hockey League, whose season the Boston team opened against the New Haven Eagles Sunday night in New Haven.

Dissatisfied with the heavyweight situation, and himself in particular, Von Porat decided today to sail for his home in Oslo, Norway, Nov. 12, for an indefinite stay.

HARD BATTLE LOOKED FOR AT GARDEN

BOS. BRUINS	N. Y. AMERICANS
Galbraith, lw	rw, Patterson
Barry, c	c, Hines
Oliver, rw	lw, Burch
Capt. Hitchman, ld	rd, Simpson
Shore, rd	ld, Brydge
Thompson, g	g, Worters

Game starts at 8:30 p. m.

Fitted for its debut by two hard weeks of practice and an exhibition game with the Springfield Indians, the Bruins start the National Hockey League season against the New York Americans tonight at the Garden with excellent prospects of getting away to a fast beginning and an opening game victory.

Eddie Girad's New York team is somewhat of a mystery. Veterans have been strengthened by much new material, particularly an entire new forward line from the Winsor Club of the old Canadian league, and the squad in its preliminary work at Galt and Kitchener impressed its critics.

The Bruins look for a hard game, but there is great confidence in the Boston ranks that the old scoring punch of the marvelous 1929-30 campaign will make up for any lack of condition or imperfections of the dazzling combination play that distinguishes Bruins' teams.

Unlike the custom in other cities, there will be no opening game ceremony. The season will be officially opened when the Bruins' song, "Paree," is played as the team comes on the ice, about 8:25 p. m. Five minutes later Barry and Himes will face and another season will be under way.

Ross to Follow Last Season's Strategy

Manager Ross has decided to follow his 1929-30 strategy and start the line made up of Marty Barry at center, Perk Galbraith at left wing and Harry Oliver at right wing. On defense will be Eddie Shore and Capt. Fred Hitchman and in goal the greatest net minder in all hockey, Cecil Tiny Thompson, who has so endeared himself to Boston fans.

George Owen will spare for Hitch and Shore, and the dynamite line will be used to relieve Barry's line, with Cooney Weiland at center, Dutch Gainer at left wing, and the sharp shooting Dit Clapper at right wing.

Manager Ross also has two other forward lines to use, which he will make up from among Art Chapman, Peaches Lyons, Jack Pratt, Paul Runge and Bill Hutton. All except Hutton are new comers to the Bruins' ranks this season.

Americans come here with a squad in which there will be many new faces. Billy Burch, George Patterson and Normie Himes probably will be the starting line, with Joe Simpson and Bill Brydge on defense, and Roy Worters in goal.

The play of Worters has been brilliant on Boston ice for many years, and the Bruins never are keen about facing him, but they beat him twice by decisive scores a year ago and probably have chased the jinx he always had for them.

New Players Here With Americans

Red Dutton will make his National League debut in a New York uniform and Girad will introduce a number of new players. There are Ellie Pringle and Eddie Convey, defense players, and the brand new forward line of Happy Emms, left wing; Mike Neville, center and Frank Carson, right wing. Among the Americans veterans are Johnny Sheppard, Rabbit McVeigh, Bert Hughes and George Massecar.

The Garden doors will be open at 7 p. m. for reserved seat holders. At 5 p. m. the doors at the Haverhill st. entrance to the Garden will be thrown open for those who occupy the 50-cent rush seats. At 8 o'clock 2000 admissions will go on sale.

Alabama Won't Play for Charity

Tuscaloosa, Ala., Nov. 11 (AP)—The athletic committee of the University of Alabama today noted not to accept either of two proposals before it for post-season appearances of the Crimson Tide on December 6, for the benefit of the unemployed.

Dr. J. J. Doster, chairman of the university athletic board, made public a statement from the athletic committee in which it said that the action was taken to give the players "reasonable opportunity to prepare themselves for the forthcoming examinations."

The proposals included one from Mayor Walker of New York, for a game between the Crimson Tide and New York University, and the other for a game in the South with one of the outstanding Southern Conference teams.

Football Fine Training for Boys, Says Cantab Coach

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

MENTOR SAYS GAME GOOD TEACHER

Editor's Note: This is the seventh of a series by Bill Connell, Schoolboy Sports Editor of the Boston Evening American, on veteran school coaches and their views of football.

By BILL CONNELL

"I consider football a fine kind of training for a schoolboy," said Leander MacDonald, Cambridge Latin football coach and one of the foremost school sports authorities in the country.

"Football can teach a boy to take the bumps without crying, and that is the ideal thing for a youngster. There is a lot of good in every boy, and by bringing out the best that is in the lads a coach can do a great work.

Bill Connell

"Here at Cambridge Latin we have a bunch which is without a doubt the best spirited group anyone could want. They take their reverses without a whimper, and are always ready to go in and fight against any club. These boys would tackle a strong college team with a laugh and battle against tough odds without ever losing heart."

That quality of courage and fight has been a noticeable thing about Cantab teams of the last dozen years. And though he doesn't claim the credit Coach MacDonald is the reason for this fine spirit.

MacDonald Gets Good Results

Leander MacDonald started his school career at South Boston high. Then he spent four years at Bridgewater Normal school, followed this with special work at Harvard and took an extra degree from Tufts later on. While at Harvard he was a member of the second squad as he was ineligible to play varsity football. All through his school years he was an outstanding basketball, baseball and football player.

Marlboro held Leander for two years and Peabody claimed his services for four years more. For the past 13 years MacDonald has been head coach at Cambridge Latin. Though lack of seasoned material has handicapped him for the past two years, he has always turned out capable, clean, hard fighting teams.

"Conditions are better now," he continued. "Years ago you never knew who would officiate in a game until the contest was almost ready to start and then they might have any kind of officials working.

"Now I could leave it up to any of the schools we play to pick the officials. I know we would get a square deal. Two of the teams I have especially enjoyed having as opponents are Salem and Lawrence. From these, as from the others, we have received wonderful treatment. Officials, especially those in the Suburban League, are good.

"Football is all right now. I can't see the advantage of making any more rules changes. For the point after touchdown I would like to see the ball placed on the 10-yard line and give the team four rushes to get the ball over, whether by rushing, passing or kicking. Outside of that one change everything is fine," he concluded with a smile.

The next article in this series by Bill Connell will appear in tomorrow's editions of the Boston Evening American.

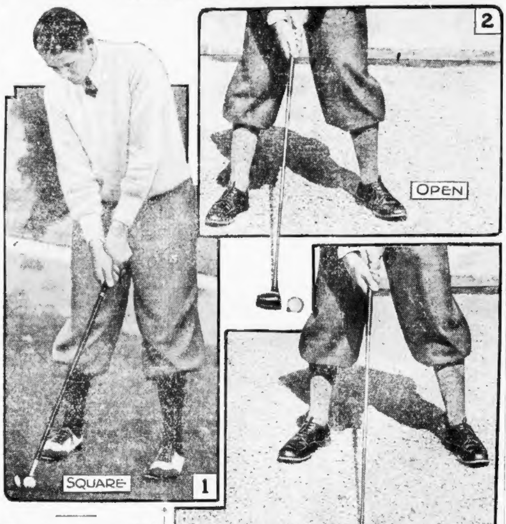
HORTON SMITH'S GOLF LESSONS

Famous Young Missouri Professional Illustrates and Describes the Mechanics and Technique of Play

SOME DETAILS OF THE STANCE



The modern stance in golf is square as shown in Picture 1, with the ball just to the left of center. In photographs the appearance of the position of the ball is often misleading because the photographer sometimes does not stand square in front.

We frequently read that Bobby Jones has the ball opposite the inner side of his left heel. He has the ball just to left of center. It really doesn't make any difference to a master golfer like Bobby Jones, but these articles are written to help those who are trying to break 100.

The swing of a golf club is not unlike the swing of a pendulum and the lowest touching point is the square stance, all you have to do is swing parallel with your feet, which is a perfectly natural thing to do.

The old-fashioned stance was open as in Picture 2 (the left foot slightly back of the right), probably because Taylor or Vardon stood that way. Nowadays we still have fashions, but the simplification of the golf swing is well under way.

The trouble with the open stance is that the player has to swing diagonally away from himself to offset his unnatural stance. This is a complication you can do without because the less compensations you have to make, the more likely you are to become a good player.

The opening stance is a good way to stand for an intentional slice, because the club tends to swing parallel with the feet. In other words, the club head, at the moment of impact, is being drawn across the ball. A bad thing about the open stance is that it cramps pivoting.

You will notice that the player is addressing with the toe of the club like Bobby Jones—playing from the inside out.

The pose in Picture 3, with the right foot back, is called the closed stance. It is too bad that golf has so many inappropriate names for things. Most beginners think that the open stance is one in which the feet are spread wider apart, and, conversely, that the closed stance is with the feet closer together.

George Von Elm and Jess Sweetser both have decidedly closed stances and we all know what great golfers they are.

The closed stance certainly helps slicers and promotes pivoting; in fact, I am surprised it is not much more popular because it tends to give a longer ball. You can come more from behind. It needn't encourage a hook, because, after all, we can follow through straight, and then there can't be a hook.

The closed stance ought to help in playing from the inside out, which seems so popular. Get the right shoulder well down in the address, because that is the way it has to be at the moment of impact.

Mission-St. Mary's in Scoreless Tie

Mission and St. Mary's high schools battled to a scoreless tie on a sloppy gridiron at the Brookline high school field this morning.

Through four periods the Catholic League rivals waded up and down the limed ladder that was in poor shape after the frost of last evening had been thawed and neither team was able to score.

St. Mary's made a march down the field in the final session and carried to the Mission five-yard line but the latter team tightened.

Saugus Noses Out Milton High, 7-6

Saugus High School defeated Milton High at Saugus this morning after a hard-fought battle by the score of 7-6.

Milton scored first when a forward-lateral was worked successfully in the second session. But Milton missed the point after and that failure hbrought about the defeat.

Saugus came back strong in the third period and ran from midfield to the Milton 32-yard mark in two rushes. On a fake forward, Templeman ran around the Milton end for 22 yards and a touchdown.

Change of Field

The Forest Hills A. A. and Wellesley Town Team game will be played at Hunnewell Field today instead of at Wellesley, as announced last Saturday.

LATIN-ENGLISH WINNERS IN TWIN BILL

Charley Fitzgerald's Boston Latin school eleven scored an upset this morning at Braves Field when the team defeated the heavy Dorchester eleven, 7 to 6, in one game of the twin bill played at the Wigwam. Boston English defeated Mechanic Arts, 20 to 0, in the other fray of the program.

A 30-yard forward pass, Paul Wilson to Arnold Weiner, was good for the Latin score in the first period. Another pass, Bilodeau to Weiner, added the winning point to the Latin total.

The teams battled along until the third period without further scoring. Then Capt. Meany of Dorchester carried the ball from midfield for a touchdown, in a series of rushes. The try for point failed.

Ryan-to-Carey Pass Scores for English

In the English-Dorchester game the initial score came in the second period when Mike Ryan threw a 35-yard pass to Jerry Carey, who scored. Try for point, by rushing, failed.

In the third period, Dick Freno of English ran 65 yards to the Mechanic Arts 12-yard line, where he was stopped by Paul Ryan. Freno went over for the score on the next play. Malocca rushed the ball over for the extra point.

St. Charles Whips Cathedral by 7-0

St. Charles defeated Cathedral High by a score of 7—0 at Stoney Batter Park, Waltham this morning.

The St. Charles touchdown came in the second period. Gallant made six yards from midfield and just as he was stopped he chucked a lateral to Boudreau, who raced to the eight-yard stripe.

Two tries failed but on the third Boudreau smashed over for the score. Harold hooted the seventh point between the uprights.

Warner Falls for Grid Shift

Stanford University, Cal., Nov. 11 (AP)—Coach Glenn "Pop" Warner, nationally known as a bitter opponent of the shift system, has adopted a line shift for his Stanford football team, it became known today.

Under Warner's new idea, the line makes a quick shift from the "C" formation, which featured the open, balanced line, into the old "A" formation, with the closed, unbalanced line.

Barnard to Fight Sacrifice Fly Rule

Chicago, Nov. 11 (AP) — Back from his annual vacation, President Ernest S. Barnard of the American League today began preparation of his annual report to be submitted to club owners and officials next month.

President Barnard said he was ready to make a fight to eliminate the sacrifice fly rule.

DAMON RUNYON SAYS:

Copyright, 1930, by Universal Service, Inc.

New York, Nov. 11—Young Stribling hopes to fight Max Schmeling for the heavyweight championship of the world.

Max Schmeling has promised the New York Boxing Commission that his first defense of his title will be in New York State.

Young Stribling has refused to meet Jack Sharkey here for the American heavyweight championship, intimating that he cannot get a square deal in New York.

Damon Runyon

If he doesn't think he can get a square deal in New York with Sharkey, I am unable to see how he figures he will get any better deal with Schmeling.

The reason for his refusal to meet Sharkey must go deeper than that. Some intimate that Stribling is afraid of Sharkey, which I do not believe.

But the fact remains that Sharkey holds a decision over Stribling and on the basis of that decision Sharkey is the ranking American heavyweight, and unless Stribling wipes out that defeat, I see small hope of Stribling getting the match with Schmeling for the title, if only for one very simple reason:

It wouldn't draw.

And Schmeling isn't apt to get tangled up in a match that obviously will not draw. He is too shrewdly handled for that. The ringworms would laugh at a Schmeling-Stribling match with Sharkey holding a decision over Stribling, no matter how many galoots the latter flattens in the meantime.

Stribling Has Greatest Opportunity Ever Offered

By his offer to meet Stribling for just his training expenses in a charity match, Sharkey has suddenly stolen the play from Stribling.

The latter says he is signed up for matches on the date suggested for a Sharkey-Stribling bout, but he forgets to mention that he was offered $50,000 to fight Sharkey some weeks before he made the other matches.

He can still have 25 per cent of the gate for a match with Sharkey in December, and that gate is almost certain to run upwards of $200,000, Sharkey taking nothing but his training expenses.

By beating Sharkey, he can win the title of heavyweight champion of America, and a get a contract to fight Max Schmeling in June for the heavyweight championship of the world.

No fighter in all the history of the prize ring was ever offered a greater opportunity. By meeting and beating Sharkey the Georgian would add $250,000 to the heavyweight championship gate.

When you consider that Schmeling and Sharkey, neither a champion when they crawled into the ring, drew $750,000, you can see that an estimate of over $1,000,000 on a Schmeling-Stribling gate is reasonable enough—assuming that Stribling had disposed of Sharkey.

Fifteen Rounds and No Fouls Would Be Only Conditions

The last is important. The fight would necessarily be determined by decision or knockout.

Pa Stribling, manager of the Pride of the Southland, is quoted as saying in reply to Sharkey's offer, that he—meaning his son, as I take it—would fight for nothing, too, if he had disgraced himself as Sharkey did in the Schmeling fight.

It has been some years since Young Stribling took down a nice five-figure purse for that horrible exhibition with Paul Berlenbach, and I have never yet heard of the Striblings offering to reimburse the ringworms who paid that money, by a fight for nothing, or in any other way.

CANTABS BEAT LAWRENCE, 7-0

Lawrence, Nov 11—Cambridge Latin's football team fought its way to a 7 to 0 victory over Lawrence high here this morning in a game played at the Lawrence Memorial Stadium as part of the American Legion Armistice Day program.

The teams battled on even terms for most of the contest. In the second period a forward pass, Barry to O'Keefe, gave Cambridge Latin a long gain which put the team close to the Lawrence goal. A couple of rushes sent the ball to the one yard line. On the next play Cambridge Latin fumbled and Lawrence recovered.

The punt out was poor and a Cantab back returned the ball to the Lawrence one-yard stripe, where he was forced out of bounds. The half ended before Cambridge Latin was able to score.

In the third period Barry shot a 20-yard pass to Conlon, Cantab end, who ran over the goal line for the touchdown. Lekakos placekicked the extra point into the Cambridge total.

Maloney Offered Bout With 'Strib'

Miami, Fla., Nov. 11 (INS)—This season's battle of the palms probably will be between Young Stribling, the Georgia heavyweight, and Jim Maloney, conqueror of Primo Carnera, it was announced here by Ed Douglas, promoter for the Florida National Guard.

Douglas said Dan Carroll, Maloney's manager, had agreed to Maloney fighting twice in Miami this season, in January and again in February.

SHERRY SURE HE CAN BEAT 'SONNY'

Jack Sherry, Ohio State wrestling champion, says he has a surprise in store for Gus Sonnenberg when he makes a bid for the latter's title in a finish bout, best two out of three, at the Boston Arena on Thursday night. Sherry declares he has mastered a defense for the champion's flying tackle.

Instead of trying to sidestep Sonnenberg, as most of Gus's opponents have tried to do, Sherry intends to keep crowding Sonnenberg and in this way prevent him from scoring with his winning hold.

Sherry has noticed that Sonnenberg is able to employ his flying tackle best when his mat rival is going away from him. Gus is then able to get set for his spring and usually sends his opponent to the mat.

If the Ohio grappler persists in his plan to force the issue and keeps crowding Sonnenberg the champion will not be able to get his usual amount of power behind his tackles. It is necessary for Sonnenberg to travel at least five feet through the air to get the most amount of effectiveness out of his tackle.

Sonnenberg realizes he will meet serious opposition when he clashes with Sherry and is prepared to put up hard battle. Gus recently upset Ed George in a bout in Los Angeles and is of the opinion he will be successful in turning back the Sherry surge.

Rosario Impellitier, giant Italian wrestler, will have George Rogoff of Russia as an opponent in another bout. The youthful Italian is six feet seven inches tall and weighs 283 pounds. He has won 11 bouts in a row and is confident he is destined to climb to the heights in the wrestling game.

Army-Navy Charity Game Now Up to Pres. Hoover

Washington, Nov. 11—Intervention of some supreme authority like President Hoover is the only hope of settling the squabbles of army and navy authorities over the prospects of a charity post-season football game between the two institutions.

Negotiations between Secretary of War Hurley and Secretary of the Navy Adams have reached an impasse.

The "game of the century" that promised to gross $1,000,000 for relief of the unemployed will not be played unless some decisive and authoritative action is taken, it became apparent.

Following a conference between Secretary Adams and Secretary Hurley, this joint "communique" was issued:

"At a conference between the Secretary of War and the Secretary of the Navy this morning, it was agreed that no mutually satisfactory plan had been found for renewal of football relations between the army and the navy."

Some slight shred of hope was held out by Secretary Hurley when he declared that further conferences between him and the Secretary of the Navy were probable. "Officially" the Secretary of War knew nothing about a proposition for such a game.

Members of Congress Demand Game Be Played

Rising resentment in congressional and senatorial circles has been expressed at the attitude taken in connection with the proposed charity game by athletic officials of both institutions. A prominent member of the Senate declared:

"Taxpayers of the country are entitled to a spontaneous exhibition of good sportsmanship by the leaders of West Point and Annapolis when such a cause as unemployment relief is at stake."

Even in the event of no Army-Navy post season football game, it may yet be possible to salvage a game between either the Army or the Navy and some college team yet to be decided on. Representations have already been made on behalf of New York and Chicago for such a game.

Stribling to Meet De Kuh at Atlanta

Atlanta, Nov. 11—William Lawrence Stribling, fistic pride of Macon, Ga., was confident of adding Arthur De Kuh, New York Italian, today to a knockout list which bears the names of Otto Von Porat, Phil Scott and K. O. Christner.

Stribling's 10-round afternoon match with De Kuh in the Atlanta baseball park, marks his first ring appearance in his native Southland since he began a knockout campaign by flooring Von Porat.

Stribling and De Kuh, who have been working out here since last Thursday, both said they were in good trim and De Kuh with 222 pounds, contemplated having a big weight advantage over Stribling. Stribling will tip the beam a few pounds over the 190 mark.

BLOCKING AND TACKLING WEAK

By BILL GRIMES

During the next 10 days, Head Coach Arnold Horween will bend every effort to whip his Harvard squad into shape for Yale. The outcome of the Holy Cross game on Saturday will have no bearing, one way or another, on the Crimson's standing for the season.

Bill Grimes

Although set back by Army, Dartmouth and Michigan and held to a tie by William and Mary, Capt. Ben Ticknor's team still has an opportunity to redeem itself in the Yale game. There is no denying that Harvard has not received the breaks this season. In fact, in its three major games, the fates have been against the Crimson and a trio of touchdowns cost them as many games.

Harvard is by no means a great team, but even so, should have fared better. The Crimson's failures can be contributed to glaring weaknesses in the fundamentals of football, blocking and tackling, and faulty judgment in the selection of plays when inside their opponents' 20 yard line.

Unless Coach Horween can field a team of blockers and tacklers in the Bowl there is little chance of a Harvard victory over Eli Yale. Regardless of the calibre of its ball carriers, no offense can hope to function, unless the enemy is cleared out of the path of the runners.

Notre Dame's Success Due to Fine Blocking

Notre Dame is successful because its players have been taught to block. Rockne will not give a minute to any player who has not mastered the art of blocking. It is a treat to watch the Rockne Ramblers clean up. Never do they throw anything but a hard clean block and only on rare occasions do they fail to connect.

Even a team as strong and as finished a product as Notre Dame could not afford to carry a player who was unable to interfere. One missed assignment will jam the gears of even as smooth a functioning machine as "Rock" has at South Bend.

Harvard's running attack has failed because of the inability of the Crimson players to block. With the exception of "Pie" Trainer, there is not a real good blocker on the first varsity. The Harvard players know their assignments, but rarely do they hit an opponent with sufficient force to be of the slightest value.

Blocking is a tough and thankless job. As the public watches only the ball carriers, they seldom have been known to comment upon any clever interfering.

Jack Crickard is a great running back but he has not been offered any assistance from his teammates and therefore has not been as effective as he should. With Wood, Huguley and Schereschewsky running interference for him, Crickard's ball carrying performances could be billed as a solo act.

Harvard Must Improve Blocking and Tackling

Judging from the time and careful instruction given to blocking, at Harvard, good interferers are born, not made. Although Barry Wood could be of more value as a blocker, he is too light to even be a standout in that department. But Schereschewsky is ideally built for a blocking back. Wood's attempts at blocking was woefully weak, and noticeably half-hearted, while Sherry goes after his man with the earmarks of a Britten but misses connection too often to be of any great value.

The tackling of Harvard is as far below standard as the blocking. Time and again, in the Army, Dartmouth and Michigan games, Harvard players were shaken off without any apparent effort. They commit themselves upon the slightest feign on the part of a runner and have been easy victims. Capt. Ticknor, Jack Crickard and Schereschewsky are the only members of the secondary capable of bringing down a runner with hard tackles.

There are some real tacklers in the Harvard line, notably Moushegian, Kales, Trafford, Myerson and Trainer, but they seldom get an opportunity to bring runners down in the open and, therefore, little is heard of their ability in this line.

From the start of the present season, many protests have been registered against the late starting agreement Harvard has with Yale. Years ago when Harvard, Yale and Princeton were in their heyday in order to offset the cry of overemphasizing football, the Big Three drew up an agreement which prohibited them from starting practising until Sept. 15.

Feelers have been sent out as to how Harvard, Yale and Princeton stand on this agreement and although no official announcement has been made, it is justifiable to predict that all three will be opening practise on September 1 next fall.

TUNING UP TO TRIM OPPONENT

THE FIGHTING BARBER. Here is Vincent Trescott, who meets Stan Winneryck in one of the bouts in the Boston Evening American's Christmas Basket Fund program at the Arena next Monday night, fixing up a customer as part of his daily occupation in a tonsorial parlor. The Cambridge boy expects to trim Winneryck, too. But in a different way. Van says he'll cut him down—not up.

STIFF DRILL FOR GREEN TEAM

Hanover, N. H., Nov. 11.—Dartmouth commenced work for the Cornell game Saturday with one of the hardest Monday workouts of the season on Memorial Field. Coach Jackson Cannell sent the third team, which went two periods against Alleghany Saturday, into scrimmage against the fourth string group.

The scrimmage was purely an offensive one for the third team which was given the ball after each touchdown on the 10-yard line, and ordered to take it over from there. Cannell sent his first team ends, Harold Mackey and Forrest Branch, into the workout and they saw service for some time. None of the other regulars was used in the play.

Probably the best work of the scrimmage was contributed by Ed O'Connor, fourth string tackle, who was a regular player as a sophomore two seasons ago.

O'Connor, a Malden, Mass., boy, carried most of the defensive work for the fourth team, preventing score after score by the third string backs by his brilliant breaking up of interference to smash in and either wreck the play or tackle the ball carrier.

The work of Mickey Branch and Jay Whitehair, ends, was praised by the coaching staff, this trio of wingmen showing a great improvement in their blocking and charging.

While their mates were seeing contact work, the first and second team players were sent through a hard drill on fundamentals, the first two backfields facing the scrub ball carriers in a passing drill following the scrimmage.

Dartmouth will not leave for Cornell until Thursday night, and will have three days of practice before its departure.

Springfield Star Is Out of Opener

Springfield, Nov. 11.—The Springfield Indians of the Canadian-American Hockey League will probably have to do without the services of Wilfred Starr, wing, when they open their league campaign here Saturday against the New Haven Eagles. Starr sustained a fracture of the right wrist in the locals' exhibition tilt with the Boston Bruins at Boston last Saturday.

Newton high school girls edged Waltham high girls, 1 to 0, in a field hockey game at Newton. Jean Wilson scored the winning goal on a free try in the last minute of play.

"I'll K. O. Fuller in Five Rounds," Says Callahan

By JACK CONWAY

"I shall knock out Sammy Fuller inside of five rounds at the Arena on next Monday night," declared Andy Callahan after he finished a strenous training session at Jim Toland's Gym.

"I am in the best condition of my career," went on Callahan. "My plan of battle calls for me to set a terrific pace from the opening gong. I don't care how often Fuller hits me as long as I can get into position to get over some heavy punches. It is my belief that Fuller will tire and weaken after he has been subjected to a fierce body attack and that he will then be wide open for a kayo wallop."

Jack Conway

Callahan has ample reasons for having faith in the power of his punches. The Lawrence thunderbolt has won 17 of his 42 bouts by knockouts. He has only been defeated twice, once by Sammy Fuller and on the other occasion by Kid Kaplan.

Callahan is one of the greatest fighting machines to come out of the Merrimac Valley. He compares with the sensational Young Kloby who punched his way to a fortune of $100,000 when he staged a come back following service with the Yankee Division in France, and the rugged Al Mello of Lowell who still retains the New England welterweight and middleweight championships.

Callahan Popular Among Merrimac Valley Fans

Callahan is every bit as popular in Lawrence as Kloby was when the latter was sweeping all before him in the ring. Callahan reminds this writer of Kloby. Andy possesses the same kind of ring dash that enabled Kloby to draw so many record houses. Like Kloby, Callahan is also a terrific puncher and is blessed with a fighting heart.

The large crowds which have watched Callahan in his training sessions have been impressed by by the way he has battered his sparring partners around the ring. There has been something determined and relentless about Andy's work.

Callahan and Fuller have already engaged in two stirring contests. The first bout was held at Mechanics Building under the direction of Eddie Mack's Argonne A. A. and resulted in a victory for Callahan after a stirring engagement. This win gave the Lawrence boy the New England lightweight championship.

Unlike most champions, Callahan did not put his title in a glass case. Instead he signed to defend it against Fuller at Tiverton, R. I. In the Tiverton bout Fuller blazed his way to victory in a hurricane finish.

Capacity House Expected to See Pair Clash

Callahan and Fuller were signed for their third meeting by Matchmaker Eddie Mack of the Argonne A. A. Mack volunteered to stage the contest for the Christmas Basket Fund of the Boston Evening American. He was anxious to give the fans the best possible match and also do everything possible to bring Christmas cheer to the poor and needy.

There is tremendous interest in the clash between Callahan and Fuller and it is expected that a capacity crowd will be on hand when these sturdy knights of the ring collide next Monday night.

Dilboy Eleven to Play Peres Sunday

One of the best semipro gridiron clashes of the season will be seen next Sunday afternoon at Dilboy Field, Somerville, when the Lee Marquettes, New England champions, clash with Dilboy Post.

Both lineups are studded with former collegiate stars, including Al Weston, Fish Ellis, Tony Plansky and Eddie Melanson.

Here's a Chance to Help Worthy Cause

Brookline and Boston College high football teams are playing at Brookline high school field on Saturday afternoon. The game is a great sports attraction, with two fine school elevens battling. B. C. high has not been beaten in two seasons.

The game is being played for the benefit of the Boston Evening American Christmas Basket Fund, so there is a double return for the purchase of tickets—the chance to see a fine game and the chance to help a worthy charity.

Tickets are only 75 cents apiece and may be obtained in blocks or singly from Thomas Hines, director of athletics of Brookline high school, at Mr. Hines' office in the Brookline municipal gymnasium. Buy your tickets early.

DO-X SEA CONQUEST DESCRIBED

PEOPLE OF 7 NATIONS ON BOARD

ABOARD THE DO-X, CALSHOT, Nov. 11.—The world's first "flying AIRDROME" [illegible] Southampton, Eng. [illegible] ship [illegible] DO-X [illegible] Friedrichshafen [illegible] stationed at [illegible] by Dr. Claude Dornier [illegible] man [illegible] Swiss soil [illegible] by 12 American Curtiss Conqueror engines with a crew of Germans, Swiss and Americans made [illegible] first open sea flight today.

With [illegible] nations [illegible] represented in the 36 persons aboard of which 21 were passengers, the DO-X glided to the surface of the water at Calshot at 3:38 p. m. (10:38 a. m. E. S. T.) today. With a 30-mile [illegible] wind to buck part of the way the official flight time from Amsterdam was 3 hours, 51 minutes.

Dornier Makes Trip

Lady Drummond Hay, the British woman flier and journalist; Frau Dornier and Mrs. Adolph Burgerhout, representing the womanhood of Britain, Germany and Holland, had the distinction of being the first woman passengers on this new type of [illegible] plane.

Dr. Dornier [illegible] making the flight to Lisbon with his wife in order to give himself an opportunity to study this air monster of his brain in practical fashion.

Two [illegible] DO-X type planes are being completed at Altenrhein, Switzerland, for Italy. The fact that Italy has ordered two such flying [illegible] aroused the interest of Jugoslavia and the latter country was represented aboard today by Maj. Krakow of the Jugoslavian Air Ministry.

The flight from Amsterdam was made [illegible] beautiful weather. Our average speed into the head wind, according to Navigator Wilhelm Niemann, was 86 statute miles an hour or about 78 knots.

First Flight of Kind

This was the first time a heavier-than-air machine of 50 tons has flown from the European continent to England and also the first time 70 persons were carried from the Continent to England by an airplane.

The significance and importance to aviation of the DO-X type plane can only be judged in the further stages of the flight toward New York, but it is certain the plane will prove a revolutionary step in air progress.

The British gave the DO-X a cordial reception at Calshot. More than two dozen planes escorted the giant airliner to its landing place. Dr. Dornier and Mrs. Dornier went to London tonight as guests of Lady Swaythling.

The departure for Bordeaux is unlikely before Thursday, as so many people wish to visit and inspect the new wonder of the [illegible].

The Dutch navy and [illegible] police dispensed with all customs formalities and it was at 9:45 this morning when the mooring line to the buoy at Schellingwoude was dropped and a motorboat pulled the DO-X's bow around into the wind. One after another the motors were warmed up as the giant craft taxied out into the Zuyder Zee.

Hop Again Thursday

Dr. Dornier was in the pilot's [illegible] observing [illegible] Flight Capt. [illegible] Merz at the wheel [illegible] signal from Commander Christiansen opened the throttle and all twelve engines let out a tremendous roar.

Then Lady Hay, who once became a pilot, has added technical knowledge to her flair for flying and her ability to write, called attention to a strut on the oil cooler of the second motor on the left. It was flapping loosely and had already been observed from the pilot house. Five minutes later Merz glided the DO-X to an easy landing after only ten minutes in the air.

Four mechanics swarmed out on the wing and repaired the strut, which had snapped because of being too tightly fastened. It was of no great importance and the DO-X could have continued, but as the oil cooler might have been torn off by wind pressure Dr. Dornier and Captain Christiansen decided on a "stitch in time" and ordered Merz to land his charge.

At 11:47 a. m. (6:47 a. m. E. S. T.) we lifted out of the water once more, again in 35 seconds. We sped along over the ship canal from Amsterdam to the North Sea, which we reached in a few minutes.

The DO-X was on the air perfectly quiet as she bored into a 30-mile head wind, cutting down the ground speed. Frau Dornier curled up in one of the large comfortable chairs and took a nap. Other passengers patronized the "American Bar" in the front of the ship and made visits to the tiny kitchen. Dr. Erich Tilgenkamp, the press secretary, passed around plates of sandwiches when he was not busy gathering technical information.

Lady Hay Is Thrilled by Giant Plane's Conquest of North Sea

Lady Drummond Hay

Aboard the DO-X, Calshot Airdrome, Southampton, Eng., Nov. 11.—Across the North Sea from Amsterdam to Southampton like a flash with 21 passengers [illegible] the biggest [illegible] liner in the world. And [illegible] we will [illegible] cross the Atlantic in New York.

As the DO-X swung out over the rough sea which dashed [illegible] the Zeebrugge Mole, speeding along at [illegible] miles an hour through the winter sunshine 900 feet above the ocean and the rocking ships on its surface, Dr. Claude Dornier, designer of the DO-X, remarked to me:

"This is the beginning of a new era of world communication."

Dr. Dornier is a happy man today. He sees in the success of this first open sea crossing by his colossal flying boat the promise of fulfilment of his life's dream and ambition. Frau Dornier is sharing it all with him; she is aboard, sitting almost silent in the intensity of her emotion. To me she said:

"It seems too wonderful to be true. My husband's vision, a will-o'-wisp faith inspiring years of study, research and experiment, at last has materialized into reality.

Only 3 Women Aboard

"This flight is making history. It seems so inadequate just to sit still. I envy Capt. Christiansen, the pilots and the crew, taking an active part in this pioneer flight."

With Frau Dornier is Mrs. Adolph Burgerhout, the wife of the Dutch representative of the Dornier Works. We three are the only women among the 21 passengers.

I, too, am thrilled, happy to be again participating in a [illegible] pioneering triumph in the air. This recalls my emotions on my first long Zeppelin flight in 1928.

Confident elation and the undisguised joy of triumph prevail on the bridge, the navigation and engine rooms of this unique "air marine" craft, reminiscent of those memorable pioneer adventures in the Graf Zeppelin. Another similarity is the utter feeling of security and comfort in the passenger deck.

There is practically no movement and much less noise than I expected from the 12 motors roaring above us. We can converse comfortably and easily.

[illegible] o'clock this morning the [illegible] with interesting DO-X [illegible] flying [illegible] to the huge DO-X [illegible] waters.

Planes Circle Overhead

Police boats patrolled the [illegible] and beyond them flitted the red, brown and white sails of fishing boats and beyond them the picturesque silhouette of ancient Amsterdam. Above circled airplanes like tiny hummingbirds compared to the gigantic proportions of the majestic DO-X reposing on the water.

A careful testing, checking and rechecking of each of the 12 motors impressed the passengers and it was not until 11:03 o'clock that the silver DO-X rose from the greenish-gray waters toward the brilliant azure patch of winter sky.

At 2:15 p. m. the chalk cliffs of England at Dover showed up white in the sunshine. It was there that the first British scout planes met us and from then on we had a beautiful flight along the English coast. Giving England's great naval base at Portsmouth a wide berth we then turned up toward Calshot eight miles from Southampton. It was 3:38 p. m. when the DO-X, escorted by a swarm of planes, glided gracefully to the smooth waters near the airdrome.

We circled over Amsterdam at 12:1[illegible] o'clock and pointed toward the North Sea. The passengers were eager to explore the [illegible] craft and were allowed one by one to go into the control cabin and engine room on the lower deck. Then they all looked into every corner of the seventy-four-foot passenger run.

They soon "initiated" the supplies in the kitchen and the American bar as everybody had been up since daybreak. While the crew dressed in full winter leather flying kit and helmets, the passengers discarded their overcoats and hats in the warm corridors.

The passengers busied themselves tremendously with maps, cameras and notebooks, just like they did on the Graf Zeppelin's [illegible] but there was a professional [illegible] photographers [illegible] representing [illegible] and [illegible] of the Frank[illegible] staff.

Carries Three Americans

Seven nationalities were presented on the personnel list. There were nine Germans, three Swiss, three Americans to comprise the crew. Nine Germans, five Dutch, three Americans, two Italians, one [illegible] and one [illegible] made up the passenger list. [illegible] and Jugoslavia [illegible] officially [illegible] on the DO-X. Their representatives were Maj. [illegible] Berta of the Italian air ministry and Maj. Krakow of the Jugoslavian air ministry, and they are among the keenest observers aboard.

Long before the DO-X approached England airplanes and seaplanes, big and small, curvetted around [illegible] a most graceful [illegible] the smooth waters of Southampton, which were [illegible] with little boats and naval tenders.

At 3:38 a perfect landing brought the DO-X to the water. As we [illegible] landing, Frau Dornier [illegible] to me:

"I have enjoyed every minute of it."

Frau Burgerhout, for whom today's flight was her first experience [illegible] said [illegible] but added:

"After the DO-X, I'm likely to be spoiled for smaller aircraft."

U. S. WON'T CUT NAVY BUDGET

Geneva, Nov. 11 (AP)—Unalterable American opposition to [illegible] tion of armaments through budgetary restriction was announced by Hugh S. Gibson, Washington representative, at the session of the preparatory commission on disarmament here today.

Gibson's announcement was made during discussion of the budgetary method of limitation which the British and Italian representatives said their governments favored.

He said the American Government, after recent examination of the question, had found it could not change its attitude of opposition and that the United States was not likely to sign any convention imposing this method, although not objecting to other nations signing a treaty to limit their expenditure.

"We already practice a system of limitation by direct means, plus full publicity for expenditures," Mr. Gibson said. "We believe this the most effective method of limiting armaments. In short, we believe it easier to conceal the application of a dollar than to conceal the existence of a rifle.

"Direct limitation of armaments with full publicity is the most practicable and useful method of limitation that exists, we believe."

Brother-in-Law of Edison Takes Bride

Unionville, Conn., Nov. 11 (AP).—Charles F. Stilwell, 69, brother-in-law of Thomas A. Edison, and his bride, the former Mrs. Minnie L. Latham of Atlanta, Ga., were on a honeymoon today. They were married here Saturday.

Drying Up Fall River

Fall River, Nov. 11.—Despite the repeal of the Baby Volstead act the local police and headquarters liquor squad will continue to dry up wet spots as usual, according to Lieut. Daniel F. Murphy.

1500 Veterans Guests of Marion Davies Tonight

Los Angeles, Nov. 11 (I. N. S.)—All arrangements [illegible] complete [illegible] party [illegible] of the World War, which Miss Marion Davies [illegible].

[illegible] 1500 [illegible] of the American combat [illegible] will be present, most of [illegible] with their wives and sweethearts. Every detail for the entertainment has been taken care of by the [illegible] committee which [illegible] Miss Davies in preparations.

Coast-wide broadcast of half an hour of the high lights of the Armistice Night party has been arranged in response to an interest in the event that has spread [illegible] the Pacific coast.

HALF-HOUR BROADCAST

Through station KHJ [illegible] and the Don Lee broadcasting chain broadcast will go forth from [illegible] Biltmore from [illegible] to 11 o'clock tonight. It will include a brief address by Gov.-elect James Rolph, Jr., greetings from Col. Marion Davies and probably her words presenting to the First Division Society, A. E. F., new colors and standard, a bit of the entertainment feature by celebrated stars and something of the [illegible] the dance and the [illegible] of the veterans.

[illegible] to be reminded of the ex-service men among whom are many who need employment and encouragement in this period of depression.

NOTED ENTERTAINERS

The party will begin at 8 o'clock with a [illegible] in the Sala de Oro [illegible] Music for the dances will be furnished by the celebrated Patrick and Marsh Orchestra [illegible].

Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey have consented to give a close-up of the "Half Shot at Sunrise" comedians.

Cliff Edwards and Benny Rubin [illegible] on the incomparable program—mixing up these names [illegible] Duff [illegible] Jimmy [illegible] Jr. [illegible] member of the [illegible] Association [illegible] will be present [illegible] will give their popular [illegible] reception.

A brand new military composition—the "Colonel Davies March"—will be heard for the first time in public tonight.

With its composer, Bandmaster Morris Chernoff, directing, its lively rhythm will be played as one of the events of the gay evening.

The title page is inscribed: "To Colonel Davies [illegible] Dedicated to Miss Marion Davies, honorary colonel 26th U. S. Infantry, with compliments of the disabled veterans of the World War."

Possibly no phase of the party will be as unusual as that of the [illegible] as guests of honor, of so many Congressional medal of honor men and distinguished service cross men.

NAVAL OFFICERS INVITED

Elinor Glyn Advises Non-Stop Courting

London, Nov. 11 (INS).—Elinor Glyn, who summed up woman's allure in the single word "it," warns that to be happily married a couple must never stop courting one another.

She has laid down six cardinal "don'ts" for newlyweds. Here they are:

"Don't be jealous and suspicious without substantial cause.

"Don't disillusion your mate—be attractive at all times.

"Don't give way to habits such as 'nerves' or drinking or anything indicating weakness of will and lack of self-respect.

Newton Clubwomen Start Tap Dancing Class

(Picture on Page 14)

By NANCY BREWSTER

Newton [illegible] tap dancing.

Regardless of the reason, weight-reducing or oth[illegible], the Newton Center Women's Club organized a tap dancing class and, under the direction of the instructor, Mrs. E. E. Whittredge, w[illegible] ditto the pedal variations of Ruby Keeler for the next 14 Mondays—the first lesson having taken place yesterday.

FIRST TO ORGANIZE CLASS

One of the [illegible] in the State to [illegible] this year the Newton Center Woman's Club [illegible] public health committee, of which Mrs. George Willard Smith is the chairman.

Tap dancing, for all its advantages and interest, [illegible] a favorite with Bay State clubwomen. Many clubs pursued [illegible] last year, but it [illegible] the Newton Center group to be one of the first [illegible] season to revive the fancy.

PRACTICE TO RADIO

To the radio tunes these mornings, clubwomen of Newton will rehearse seriously and patiently the taps they learned yesterday, [illegible] house to pursue advanced tap steps.

Among the women who attended the opening class were Mrs. E. A. Hodgkins, Mrs. H. H. Crabtree, Mrs. F. J. Martin, Mrs. C. W. Eaton and Mrs. James B. Hobbs. Mrs. W. Ratcliffe Waldo is handling the finances of the dancing course.

Governor's Infant Made Life Member of Daughters of Mass.

A lecture on "Romance and Reality of Boston Harbor," illustrated by 100 original slides, highly colored, will feature the tercentenary meeting of the Daughters of Massachusetts, Thursday, when at the Hotel Kenmore, Mrs. Sarah Lee Whorf will present this interesting fantasy. In addition, Peter J. Tague, representing Mayor Curley, will tell of further accomplishments of Boston harbor at the present time.

An informal reception by the officers will follow. Mrs. Channing H. Cox, Mrs. William S. Youngman, Mrs. Alvan T. Fuller and Mrs. Frederic W. Cook, all members of the Daughters, will serve as pourers.

Mrs. Joseph C. Otis heads the group and it is her earnest desire to measureably increase the membership, which now numbers 125.

Because of the interest of Mrs. A[illegible] in the organization, the Daughters of Massachusetts have conferred honorary life membership on Marjorie Wallace Allen, infant daughter of the Governor. She is to be the "mascot" of the Daughters.

6th District Clubs Will Hold Business Conference Monday

The State Federation's influential [illegible] sixth [illegible] Mrs. William [illegible] will meet [illegible] at the Hotel Statler with the Daughters of Massachusetts as the hostess organization. It is to be an all-day session with the honor guest the state president, Mrs. Carl L. Schrader.

Larger Fur Collar for Small Hat

By ANN ARDEN

AFTER LEAVING the brim of summer, it is always a bit hard to get used to the smaller hat. And this year it has been harder than ever because the decidedly unbrimmed hats to which we were immediately initiated left us so in the public gaze! Everyone has become so forehead-conscious that one hardly ever thinks of looking below the browline in the mirror any more.

* * *

REGARDLES of a deep yearning for the flattering shelter of brim the practical qualities of the small hat cannot be denied. Huge bulking fur collars have an irritating way of tilting a brimmed hat askew. A brim, in return, has a most destructive habit of worrying away patches of the fur. The little hat is the only answer to the problem.

* * *

PARIS HAS evolved the 1930 tricorne with obviously mixed feelings. Sometimes there are the triumvirate of peaks—other times you search for a third point to discover that it is barely hinted or has slid off into a longer side. Some of the tricornes are severely simple—only a tiny cockade of feathers, a bow or a buckle for trimming. Others are delightfully veiled or plumed as elaborately as a cavalier's hat.

* * *

TRICORNES have to be worn with dash. They are young but they are sophisticated to boot.

MODELS FROM LAMSON & HUBBARD

If you are the type that can wear a veil with spirit—choose your tricorne with one. They [illegible] so many intriguing things. Some just cover the eyes, some reach to the nose, some are short in front, sweeping longer to the nape of the neck and still others are worn draped up off the hat in front and down to the neck in back. They are great fun to wear—and they can be tremendously chic.

* * *

* * *

* * *

TWO INTRIGUING hats of Russian inspiration were seen recently. One was a Goupy turban in felt combined with quilted velvet. The other was a tiny Cossack cap in smocked velvet.

Make No Mistake
when you buy sanitary pads
—specify Kotex

Kotex is five times as absorbent as surgical cotton; it is designed to fit perfectly; it deodorizes. Hospitals use it—so should you.

YOU can't be too careful in choosing sanitary pads. Your health, your comfort are at stake. Old-fashioned methods are trying, uncomfortable, unhygienic. Substitutes for the best are unnecessary. Specify Kotex. It costs so little that women in every walk of life are using it. And once they try it, they never go back to other methods again.

Kotex is safe. Plenty of women have discovered that. Women who are on their feet all day, working hard, busy socially. They find that it gives a feeling of security you can't duplicate.

Designed to fit

It is designed to fit perfectly. Corners are rounded and tapered to fit inconspicuously under all types of frocks. It deodorizes. It is unbelievably soft and yielding. And—what is more—it stays soft. Indeed, Kotex is guaranteed to stay soft longer, to last longer than any other sanitary pad.

Kotex is made of Cellucotton (not cotton) absorbent wadding, laid in many air-cooled layers which you can adjust to your own needs. Each of these delicate layers is a quick, complete absorbent in itself—and tests have shown that Kotex is actually five times as absorbent as surgical cotton.

Hospitals use Kotex

Hospitals discovered that fact shortly after Kotex was invented and immediately they began to use it in preference to cotton. Today, 85% of our leading hospitals use Kotex absorbent. They specify Kotex for their women patients. They use millions and millions of pads a year.

Surely you could ask no safer guide in your own choice of sanitary protection than this overwhelming preference by hospitals, where hygienic safety and the greatest possible comfort are essential.

KOTEX IS SOFT . .

1 Not a deceptive softness, that soon packs into chafing hardness. But a delicate, lasting softness.
2 The Kotex filler is far lighter and cooler than cotton, yet absorbs 5 times as much.
3 In hospitals . . . The Kotex absorbent is the identical material used by surgeons in 85% of the country's leading hospitals.
4 Deodorizes, safely, thoroughly, by a special process.

JACK DONAHUE: From Charlestown to Broadway

2ND SECTION

In the Act But Not on the Bill

When Dancing Jack mastered the drum corps heel and toe step it seemed that he had reached his pinnacle. Things began to move. One man in his pickup audience bought up all his papers as a reward. Then he advanced to the amateur stage, and he took the $2 prize and the cleanup without even seeing the "hook." Walter Sproule, manager of the old Union Theater in Charlestown, gave Jack that start, little realizing that the boy was on the way to a $1000 a week job—dancing

Wednesday, June 24, 1903, soon after 9 o'clock of what, for Jack Donahue at least, was a very bright morning, he bid farewell to the inside of the Harvard grammar school.

Jack was one of 20 boys in his graduating class of 52.

The exercises were quite elaborate. The late Dr. J. A. McDonald passed out the diplomas. Principal Eaton and Miss Sarah Leonard, teacher of the graduating class, said a few words and Arthur W. Dolan, now a judge of the probate court, made the address.

Some of the students took a leading part in the affair. Margaret M. Tegan gave a reading, "Learning to Think." Grace A. Greene gave another, "Independence Ball," and Mary P. Clark recited the "Charcoal Man."

The boys weren't called upon for any special performances; the school authorities knew better. Jack Donahue's name did not appear upon the program—one time he was not billed

One for the Boys
Joy, Joy, Freedom Today

It is a matter of record in the diary of Harry McCormick, fellow graduate and now a Boston newspaperman, that none of the boys shed any tears on the occasion. The class sang several songs.

"Praise Ye the Lord" was the first, mostly in soprano voices. "The Oak Tree" was the second and here again the soprano voices dominated.

But the third song on the program was one into which the score of boys threw their heartiest efforts.

"You couldn't hear the girls for the noise we made," Jack used to say, chuckling about it later.

"Joy, Joy, Freedom Today," was the name of the song into the singing of which Mrs. Donahue's son and his pals entered with a wholehearted and genuine zest that nearly lifted the roof of the school into Devens st.

Who were Jack's classmates?

Many of them still live in Charlestown, many more of them are scattered over the face of the earth. A few, like Jack, have passed to their reward.

Remember Them?
Everyone Knew Jack

Here they are, girls first:

Mary F. Borges, Catherine M. Cassidy, Mary P. Clark, Margaret E. Conlon, Margaret G. Curren, Elizabeth M. Denton, Mary E. Dillon, Eva V. Doherty, Nora L. Dourney, Agnes M. Finn, Alice V. Gillooly, Grace A. Greene, Honora A. Morgan, Elizabeth F. Joyce, Helen L. Keeley, Anna C. Kelly, Nora F. McCabe, Katherine V. McNulty, Mary E. A. Murphy.

Alice A. Murray, Katherine A. Murray, Frances B. Mullen, Catherine C. Nixon, Helena A. Ryan, Mary C. Sullivan, Bernice O. Taft, Frances E. Taft, Margaret M. Tegan, Edna B. Thompson, Annie M. Tiernan, Catherine A. Walsh, Eva F. Wyman.

A Real Sick Boy
Pneumonia Nearly Got Him

As their names indicate, nearly every one was a son or daughter of Irish extraction.

It was "Joy, Joy, Freedom Today" but not for the rest of the summer for Jack after graduation. He went to work in a cheap jewelry store in Hanover st. for a few weeks before he was stricken with pneumonia. Mrs. Donahue nursed him through it.

Before fall he was fully recovered, still growing taller and

News of Hospital Fire and Theater Robbery Attempt Also Gets Rewards

A "tip" on the secret marriage of Rev. Alexander J. Chandler, 23, formerly of Lynn, and Miss Nina Barton Strout of Hollis ave., Atlantic, a Boston stenographer, won first prize in last week's $50 News Tip Contest of the Boston Evening American.

The young lady who gave the "tip" asked that her name be withheld. She supplied a good picture of the couple and upon investigation her story proved correct.

Rev. Mr. Chandler, who has recently been appointed to a pastorate at Warner, N. H., and his bride had kept their marriage a secret for nearly two months. Last Thursday evening they revealed it to a few friends and through the "tip" it became known to the Boston Evening American. It was a good story. The prize is $15.

HOSPITAL FIRE TIP

An almost equally good "tip" was received on the three-alarm fire which drove out the occupants of the nurses' home of the Brooks Hospital on Corey Hill, Brookline, Friday morning. Three nurses were rescued.

This "tip" was from J. Connors of 70 Lincoln st., Charlestown, who wins the second prize of $10.

Third prize, $5, goes to H. J. McIntyre of 75 West Eagle st., East Boston, who gave the first "tip" on the attempted robbery at the Seville Theater in that section.

The News Tip Editor once again reminds amateur photographers that prizes of at least $2 await those who bring in pictures of accidents or other occurrences, or photographs of interesting things, which are good enough to publish and are published. At least $2 will be paid for every photograph so published.

OTHER PRIZE WINNERS

Mrs. Keenan, 9 Reeds ct., Roxbury. Fire at Yoemans school.

Mrs. William Rattray, North st., Foxboro. Quarter-pound hen's egg.

Name withheld. S. S. Carmania crushes tug.

25,000 WATCH LYNN PARADE

More than 25,000 in Lynn today saw one of the largest Armistice Day parades ever held there.

Eleven blasts on the fire alarm called for a two minute silence by everyone in the city in memory of the World War dead.

Then the parade led by Mayor Fred Manning and City Council started.

One of the features was the Boston Firemen's Band, which received an ovation all along the line.

Roundup of Runaway Steer in Brighton

The second single-steer roundup in two weeks was staged in Brighton today when a steer tore out of Brighton stockyards after being teased by boys who were playing bull-fighter. Through a number of streets, the steer led more than 40 adult pursuers, finally being captured with a lariat thrown on McNally Farm, Faneuil st., by one of the stockyard workers.

LAST RITES FOR C. B. LANE

Funeral services for Cornelius F. Lane of Revere, father of Fred C. Lane, member of the sporting staff of the Boston Evening American, will be conducted in the Church of the Immaculate Conception, Revere, Thursday morning.

He had been a resident of Revere for 20 years and was a member of the Revere Lodge of Elks and the Massachusetts Catholic Order of Foresters.

$50 Weekly for News and Picture Tips

Do you want to get money for being alert? If so, the Boston Evening American offers the opportunity. Each week $50 in prizes will be given for news and picture tips telephoned in to the News-Tip Editor, at Liberty 4000.

And what is a news tip? It's the information that something of interest to Greater Bostonians has taken place or will take place. Do you know, for instance, that an interesting picture is to be obtained, that an accident or an unusual event has happened, that there is going to be a business merger? That's a news tip. If you have a camera, take a picture of some news event, while it is happening. Pictures of unusual animal poses are wanted, too. Bring your action pictures to the American quick. Delay often spoils them for use in the American.

There will be $15 given weekly for the best or an unusual event news tip received, $10 for the next best, $5 for the next best, and $2 prizes for each of the 10 next most valuable tips. Of course, the first one who turns in the tip in an interesting event receives the award on that particular item. Anyone who is alive and alert can win.

TELL ME, WHAT DO YA THINK ABOUT OUT HERE?
WELL, I TELL YOU. YOU GOT THAT WHOLE LINE OF HORIZON AS FAR AS YOU CAN SEE IN ANY DIRECTION, AND BEAUTIFUL CLOUDS ROLLING OVER. IT KINDA FILLS YOUR MIND WONDERING WHERE THEY'RE GOING, AND BY THE TIME YOU THINK OF HOW BEAUTIFUL THEY ARE, THE STARS COME OUT. YOU SORTA GET TO LOOK ON THEM AS SORTA..WELL, I DON'T KNOW.. SORTA FRIENDS, AND WHEN YOU THINK YOU'RE ALL ALONE, THEY SORTA COME DOWN TO YOU OR YOU GO UP TO THEM..I DON'T KNOW.. BUT THEN YOU'RE NOT ALONE AND ALL OF A SUDDEN YOU GO TO SLEEP. THEN YOU WAKE UP THE NEXT MORNING AND AS FAR AS YOU CAN SEE IT ALL LOOKS DIFFERENT AGAIN. IT'S LIKE A GREAT BIG PICTURE ONLY IT'S A DIFFERENT PICTURE EVERY DAY. I'M KINDA LIKE THE ARTIST PAINTING IT. EVERY DAY IT'S BETTER.. I WAKE UP AND WONDER WHAT I'M GOING TO PAINT, BUT SOMEHOW IT JUST COMES—A BETTER PICTURE THAN BEFORE.
WELL, THAT MAY BE, BUT IT'S A WEEK NOW SINCE I'VE BEEN LOOKIN' AT THE SAME PICTURE AN' I'M GETTIN' TIRED OF IT.

BILLS PILE UP AT HOME AS "LITTLE SOLDIER" GOES TO GRAVE

CASH NEEDED BY STRICKEN FAMILY

Grief follows grief in the Green family.

At 122 George st., Roxbury, where Eleanor Green, 5, sleeps peacefully in death, the mother of Roxbury's "Little Soldier" faces a problem even as the once pain-wracked body of her child rests in its casket.

There are bills to be paid.

The principal one, of course, is that which will provide fitting burial for the girl who struggled so patiently, withal so vainly, to smile away her sorrows for mother's sake.

NEIGHBORS SYMPATHIZE

Sitting silently in that impoverished flat, the mother bows as glassy eyes tell her of their pity.

But back of her wrinkled forehead she wonders. Jumbled thoughts grapple vainly with bills—and find no solution.

Kindly neighbors want to help but are not overburdened with worldly goods as the Green family knows only too well.

Eleanor fought a brave battle for life. She was aided by milk and other necessities given by readers of the Boston Evening American.

If she could but appeal with those great wistful eyes.

MOTHER WORRIED

Not the kind to treat bills lightly, Mrs. Green bears the burden stoically but with deep concern.

The eyes that watched with mingled joy and sadness as the tiny mourners played can bring them no more cheer.

She sleeps not knowing that mother has bills—and mother is worried.

Man Injured in Arlington Crash

A man was injured and several persons were shaken up in a collision between a Boston Elevated Railway trolley car and a truck on Massachusetts ave., near Lowell st., Arlington Heights, yesterday afternoon.

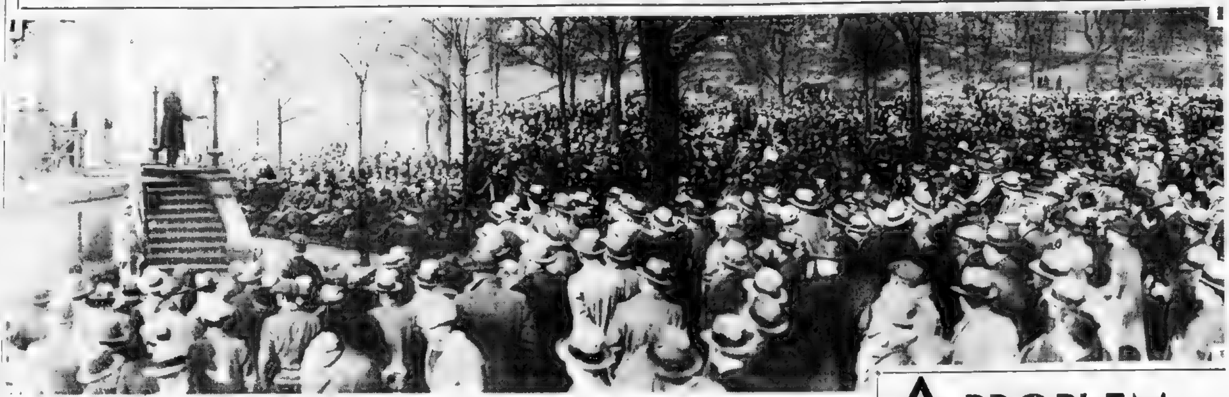
Boston Crowds Pay Solemn Homage to Nation's Valiant Dead in Services on Common



SCENE ON THE COMMON from 11 a. m. today while Boston paid its Armistice Day tribute in glowing praises to the men who died so gloriously for peace. The ceremonies were under the auspices of the Military Order of the World War in conjunction with the American Legion. This picture was made while Capt. Benyaurd B. Wygant spoke for the various branches of the naval services that did such noble duty till the guns were silenced 12 years ago today. Lieut.-Gov. Youngman spoke for the Commonwealth; Brig.-Gen. Alston Hamilton for the military services; Mayor Curley for the city; Commander R. F. Paul for the veterans; Mrs. Arthur T. Buswell for the mothers, and Capt. Wygant for the navy. The Armistice Day address was by Bishop Henry Knox Sherrill. Rev. George P. O'Conor offered invocation and prayer. (Staff photo.)

ADAMS TABLET DEDICATED

Forty-five years after his gift of the playground, a bronze tablet to the late Charles Francis Adams, uncle of Secretary of the Navy Charles Francis Adams, was dedicated today at Merrymount pk., Quincy. The site was presented to the city of Quincy in 1885.

Mayor Thomas J. McGrath, in behalf of the city, dedicated the tablet before 200 spectators, among whom were the aged widow of the donor and her daughter, Miss Elizzabeth O. Adams, both of Lincoln.

CITY FLAG SENT TO MUSSOLINI

A silk City of Boston flag, 4½x7 feet in size, was today sent by Mayor James M. Curley to Premier Mussolini of Italy as a memorial of the 438th anniversary of the discovery of America by Columbus.

On Columbus Day, last month, Mayor Curley promised Nobile Giacomo de Martino, Italian ambassador to the United States, while the latter was guest of the City of Boston and of local Italians that he would send the flag to the Italian premier. At that time the ambassador accepted the gift on behalf of the premier.

Four Added to Poor Relief Visiting Force

To speed up distribution of poor relief at the public welfare department at Chardon st., Mayor Curley yesterday appointed four additional visitors to the regular staff who will be employed temporarily at salaries of $1500 a year. Further additions to the staff will be made within a few days as provisions were made in the budget for eight temporary workers.

Those appointed by the mayor were George P. Donovan of 508 Broadway, South Boston, William F. Leahy of 10 Forest st., Roxbury, Miss Rose Coughlin of 112 Tyndale st., Roslindale and Augustine Mulvey of 2 Cambridge ter., Allston.

Tree-Sitting Pussy Loses Chance for Championship

The latest aspirant for tree-sitting honors is a one-year-old gray and white cat, name unknown.

Pussy completed her 55th hour in the uppermost branches of a tree in the back yard of a house at 18 Hildreth st., Dorchester, today, and no doubt would be there yet had not Warren Ford, 11, of Middleton st., Dorchester, climbed the tree and carried her down by the aid of ropes.

Neighbors had been unable to coax the cat from her perch. A vote of thanks will be given to Warren by neighbors for his act.

War Veteran Ends His Life Under Cambridge Train

On the 12th anniversary of his release from the horrors of war, William M. Sheehan of 13 Cooney st., Somerville, found death today under the wheels of an Elevated train in Central sq. subway station, Cambridge, a suicide.

Shortly after 11 o'clock when thousands of his comrades were standing at silent attention in memory of war dead, Sheehan, a member of Dilboy Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, hurled himself into the path of an inbound train.

On the testimony of eye-witnesses, Medical Examiner David C. Dow pronounced death due to suicide.

The station was cleared while the mangled body was being removed, inbound passengers being forced to use surface cars and traffic in the tunnel was tied up half an hour.

Sheehan, who served in France with the A. E. F., was 38, and lived with his wife, Mary F., and their two children at the Cooney st. address.

This morning he left home apparently to take part in the exercises of the Military Order of the World War on Boston Common, in which the Veterans of Foreign Wars and American Legion joined.

About 11 o'clock he appeared on the inbound platform of the Central sq. station.

With some 100 others he waited for the next train, which pulled in within a few minutes in charge of Motorman Patrick J. Morgan of Willow ave., Somerville, and James Reed of 750 Belmont st., Watertown, guard.

As the train slid into the station, Sheehan, according to Starter Morgan J. Meara of 95 Dudley st., Cambridge, flung himself from the platform.

CAMPBELL WILL QUIT N. HAVEN

Benjamin Campbell who rose from telegrapher to vice-president in charge of traffic of the New Haven Railroad will retire December 1, it was announced today.

He will be succeeded by Frank J. Wall, who will serve as general traffic manager of the railroad, the New England Steamship Co., the Hartford & New York Transportation Co., and the New York, Westchester & Boston Railway. Wall will make his headquarters in New Haven.

Campbell has been vice president of the road since 1907 when he resigned as vice president of the Great Northern Railroad to join the New Haven. He was born in Liberty, Ind., on June 10, 1858, and began his railroad career at the age of 17.

Jim Maloney to Take Up Flying

While a prize fighter is supposed to be able to stand on both feet and keep his eyes open, if he wants to be an aviator he must also be able to stand on one foot with both eyes closed.

This was brought out yesterday when South Boston's Jimmy Maloney appeared before Maj. Claude Cummings, U. S. army flight surgeon, at the airport for physical examination for a student pilot's license.

This test did not turn out so well for Maloney as the other routine stunts had and he swayed, revolved, gyrated and several times appeared about to swamp the office furniture. The fighter stuck to it, however, and demonstrated enough equilibrium to satisfy the doctor.

Two Youths Jailed in Attempted Break

Patrolmen Royal Atwood and Francis Harrington of the Field's Corner station captured two youths who they charged were trying to break into a restaurant at 1236 Dorchester ave., early today. They were booked as Nicholas Savos, 26, and Charles Sorenzo, 22, both of Shawmut ave. South End.

Truck Fire Burns 2 in Somerville

Gasoline overflowing from a truck tank, which was being refilled, caught fire today in Washington st., East Somerville, and burned Charles Marden, the driver, of Shrimpton st., East Boston.

Hoseman John V. Sloan also was burned extinguishing the blaze. Damage to the truck was $200.

OLD CARS WILL GO UP IN SMOKE

Work began today on the burning of a snowplow and 15 obsolete street cars at the Wyoma car barns of the Lynn division of the Eastern Mass. Street Railway.

The cars, which are the bankrupt stock of the Nahant & Lynn Street Railway, recently taken over by the Eastern Mass., have been replaced by buses and are of no further use to the company.

Most of the cars are about 25 years old, but one of them, according to Thomas Glynn, superintendent of the Lynn division, is an old horse drawn car, almost 50 years old, which was made into a repair car when the road was electrified.

The trucks and motors will be salvaged and the bodies burned.

A PROBLEM IN SIMPLE ARITHMETIC
"MAKING" a fire insurance rate, and "computing" it, are two very different things. The property owner helps to make it by maintaining certain conditions, good or bad, which in part determine what the rate must be.
The trained experts of the inspection bureau for your locality, after surveying those conditions, compute the rate after giving credit for good points in the risk and making charges for the ones that constitute fire hazards.
Structure, occupancy, character of private and public fire protection, exposure from other property, general loss experience: These are some of the things the inspector takes into account when measuring a risk for the purpose of computing the rate.
Surveys and Counsel Available
Instead of attempting to handle fire prevention problems your own way, seek the counsel of the inspection and rating bureau for your locality. Its officials and employes will be glad to help you without charge.
The agent who writes your insurance, or your insurance broker, can tell you just how to reach the inspection organization serving your community.
STOCK FIRE INSURANCE companies solicit your interest in this matter. These companies generally prefer risks eligible to a low rate rather than those which must carry higher rates. The stock companies support the inspection and rating organizations and, through the National Board of Fire Underwriters, publish information upon which risk measurements are based.
In Massachusetts fire insurance rates are computed by the New England Insurance Exchange for all parts of the state outside of Boston, and by the Boston Board of Fire Underwriters for Boston only, with their extensive staffs of trained engineers.

AUTO RAMS POLE WHEN CLIMBING CHILD DISTRACTS DRIVER

TWO WOMEN, GIRL, 5, ARE INJURED

Driver's Attention Diverted as Youngster Attempts to Leave Rear Seat

Two Waltham women and a five-year-old child were injured today when an automobile, driven by Mrs. Edward Eaton, 39, of 205 Bacon st., Waltham, ran into a telegraph pole on Lexington st., Waltham.

Also in the car were Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Webster of 20 Cutting Lane, Waltham, their son, Bruce, and daughter, Jean, 5.

Mrs. Eaton, Mrs. Webster and Jean Webster were taken to Waltham Hospital with severe cuts and bruises about the head and face.

The accident happened when Mrs. Eaton's attention was diverted from the road as Jean Webster attempted to climb from the back seat to the front. Mr. Webster and Bruce were uninjured.

Collision moved the pole several inches from its foundation.

Historical Society to Fete Centenary

The Boston Society of Natural History will observe its centenary at 8 p. m., November 18, in the lecture room of the society's museum on Berkeley st. Prof. Julian Huxley, biologist and writer, will speak on "Natural History and Biological Science." William Morton Wheeler, one of the trustees of the society, will have for his subject "What is Natural History?"

As part of its centenary observance the society is raising a fund for construction of a new and larger museum building.

Three Sons Conduct Driscoll Funeral

Funeral services for Timothy J. Driscoll, for nearly half a century an employe of the Boston Customs House, were held yesterday with a solemn high mass of requiem at the Mission Church, Roxbury.

Three sons of Mr. Driscoll, all members of the Redemptorist Order, were the officiating clergymen, Rev. Joseph H. Driscoll, celebrant; Rev. Harold H. Driscoll, deacon, and Rev. Stanley J. Driscoll, sub-deacon.

Mr. Driscoll is survived by a widow, eight children and 12 grandchildren.

Jack Donahue Tried Many Schools, Navy Yard, Too

THE SECOND WEEK FOUND HIM AT ENGLISH HIGH—AND THE THIRD WEEK HE ENROLLED AT MECHANIC ARTS HIGH
THE FOURTH WEEK WITH A HEAVY WRENCH ON HIS SHOULDER, HE WALKED WITH HIS FATHER TO THE NAVY YARD TO GO TO WORK

MALDEN PARADE HALTED BY FIRE

Twenty persons were driven from luncheon in a restaurant and Malden's Legion parade was delayed an hour by a $3500 fire today in the basement of the brick building at 203 Pleasant st., caused by an overheated furnace.

It was from the restaurant of M. T. Carr at 209 Pleasant st. that the patrons fled.

An error on the recording tape at fire stations listed the box as 37 instead of 27 and the latter was rung a second time bringing out much more fire apparatus than ordinarily would have been the case. This delayed the start of the Legion parade, which was forming on Pleasant st.

The damaged building is owned by Hyman Shapiro of 6 Lowell st., Boston and is occupied by the Art Novelty Co., of which Tracher Brothers of 149 Stamford st., Boston, are proprietors.

Armistice Day Baby Named for Dad's Old Commander

The rejoicing that filled the heart of Legionnaire Leonard Stanton, 53 Bowen rd., Winthrop, when the armistice put an end to his soldiering in France was brought back to him twofold this morning as the day of commemoration ushered in the birth of an 11-pound son to his wife.

The little newcomer will be named Clarence Edward Stanton in honor of Gen. Clarence R. Edwards, father of the Yankee Division.

Clarence Edward is the fifth member of the Stanton family. Both mother and son are reported as doing very nicely.

A 'Dud' at School

Jack Tried Three Times

Jack's father was adamant in his stand that his first born should follow in his footsteps and learn a trade.

His mother held out for more education for the boy and secretly hoped his ambition for the theater would be realized.

Between his "Mud" and his "Pa," Jack dared not insert his own desires which were to have a try on the professional stage at once.

Mrs. Donahue won a hollow and short-lived victory in her demand for a higher education for Jack. That fall he started in at Charlestown high school. He lasted a week there. The next week he attended English high and the third week he went to Mechanics high.

The fourth week, in a black shirt, with a heavy wrench over his shoulder, he started for the Navy Yard with his father. To learn a trade.

Gangster Girl

By JACK LAIT

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Polack Annie, Chicago gangland's most attractive gangster girl, flees to New York and becomes the sweetheart of "Silk" Freeman, racketeer. In a night club, Freeman is jealous of Annie when Tom Gillespie, son of the wealthy trucking man, admires her. He plans to racket the Gillespie business. Young Tom employs "Cyclone Tim" McCloskey, tough river gang leader, to protect his father's interests. "Silk" gets Polack Annie to pretend to make love to young Tom. He falls easy prey to her charms. "Silk" has Alice, Tom's fiancee, kidnaped. Young Gillespie asks Polack Annie to marry him. He arranges with Cyclone Tim to liberate Alice.

CHAPTER 16

EXCLUSIVE PARK AVE lies like a lustrous, myriad colored serpent at nine o'clock at night. Like two huge moving serpents really, for the steady stream of traffic is moving up and down, back and forth, on either side of the tiny parks that divide the broad thoroughfare. Down the [illegible] which begins around 72nd st., the boulevard apparently comes to an abrupt end at the tall and graceful New York Central Building, but here the cars shoot in and out of the very building itself, for the street enters it on both sides.

This dignified and beauteous avenue is flanked on both sides by stately and snobbish apartment houses where people live at yearly rents which would pale a bank president's salary—society folk, gamblers, bootleggers, racketeers, stars and actresses. And in one of these structures lived Silk Freeman, in a structure that he himself had planned and built for the sole purpose of providing a [illegible] of his station in life and way of life.

"Silk's" Doorman

Before this building, under its illuminated marquee, stood [illegible] one of a regiment of uniformed puppets up and down the street dressed like [illegible] generals.

[Silk']s own doorman, a huge damaged man who had run the gamut of vice and murder. This [illegible] Cerberus guarded the portals of Silk's palace. And the [illegible], hairy paw which opened the doors of the limousines that [stopp]ed there was more fitted to [han]dle a gat or a blackjack.

On the evening that the Big Boy had set as the deadline for final negotiation for the ransoming of Alice [illegible] and a short time before the appointed hour, a smart delivery truck with [illegible] stopped directly in front of the service entrance. The doorman, to whom suspicion was second nature, strolled warily toward, and as a man, garbed in smart uniform, leaped down from the driver's seat.

"Whatcha want?" growled the doorman.

"Got a desk here to be delivered to the third floor—to Mr Freeman," snapped the other, going around as if to open the rear door of the truck.

"There ain't no Freeman here," bristled the doorman. "What address you want?"

The other took a slip of paper from his pocket and handed it to the doorman. The latter read it and grunted.

"Must be some mistake," he said.

"I was told to speak to the elevator man—he knows about it—this desk is to be put in tonight, and I was told not to leave here until it was."

The doorman looked hesitatingly at the driver a moment, then turned and walked into the building. Three other cars, just then slid up to the curb behind the truck, and as the doorman went inside a dozen men leaped out. Six of them followed him in. In a moment one came out.

Two others wrenched open the door of the truck and took out a new and shiny desk. Cars were streaming by the door and people were leisurely walking up and down—some with dogs, some with canes, some with only bored looks.

The desk was carried into the foyer and pushed onto the elevator. Seven men crowded in behind it. Five more, tough and well heeled, loitered in the lobby. Outside three more cars had drawn up and inside them were a dozen more, but they remained in their seats, grim visaged and prepared for anything and everything.

So Far, So Good

As the elevator shot up to the third floor Tommy Gillespie looked at Cyclone Tim McClosky, [who] was beside him and smiled.

"So far so good," he chirped.

The elevator stopped. The desk [w]as carefully, noiselessly carried [o]ff. One man was strapping on [a] pair of goggles, such as an [avia]tor might wear. Another [lifte]d the lid of the desk which [ca]me off, and two others drew [fr]om its vitals a tank, coils of [h]ose and a long, twin-tubbed, [s]pider-like instrument.

Tommy stood back admiring [th]e trained swiftness of the work[er]s. The acetylene torch was rigged. Cyclone Tim had carefully inspecting the steel door which shut out the Big Boy's apartment. With a piece of chalk he drew a circle around the lock, and then turned to the be-goggled man.

"Cut 'er around here," he ordered. The torch spat and sputtered, and then from the two tips there shot a businesslike, element-defying blue flame.

"Don't watch that—it'll blind you," grunted Cyclone Tim, and he took Tommy by the arm and led him down the hall. Behind him Tommy could hear the fire bite and sizzle into the metal. Cyclone Tim was fitting on his murderous brass knucks. Tommy clenched his fists, his blood coursing his veins hot and fast.

For Emergencies

"Take dis, but don't use it unless you have to," and Cyclone Tim pressed into his hand the cold metal of a pistol. Tommy stuffed it in his outer coat pocket.

"Oke!" came a voice and Tommy turned to see the huge steel door swing open. It had been a matter of seconds to him. Cyclone Tim rushed in first with Tommy close at his heels. Th[ree] [illegible] men [illegible] Pete [illegible] girls. The guns spat fire and lead. Tommy felt something touch his leg, but he sprang forward upon one of the two bigger fellows and they fell to the floor in a mad tussle.

Tommy had the man by the wrist of his gun hand and they rolled over on the soft carpeted floor, breaking chair legs and overturning tables. The tough was cursing and putting all his strength in an effort to free his right hand from the vise of Tommy's mighty left. Now Tommy had him on his back, his knee in his chest, planting blow after blow on his head and face. But the other only grunted as each hard [blow] landed.

Suddenly, before he knew what had happened, the man twisted his body and sent Tommy spinning. He lost his grip on the other's wrist and as he fell he saw the man take aim. But just then there was a terrific crack as a chair crashed on the gunman's skull and as he fell Cyclone Tim sent his huge foot into his face.

Alice Safe

"But Alice—where's Alice?" he questioned, looking around anxiously.

Tommy felt the blood trickling down into his sock. There was no pain. But he knew he had been hit.

One of Cyclone's men was writhing on the floor. Tim picked him up and slung him over his shoulder. The elevator stopped at the handsome lobby. A cordon of gangsters, who had been herding in a corner all those with innocent business in the building who had come in during the affair, escorted the three to the curb.

The Cyclone turned his wounded over to two of the boys, who carried him into one of the other cars. Tim led Tommy to the one where Alice crouched in the rear seat, a hoodlum with a big, black gun beside her.

Tommy tumbled in at Alice's side. McClosky swung himself in beside the driver. The car lunged quickly ahead turning sharply at the first corner, just as a police emergency squad car drew up to Freeman's house. Someone, hearing shots, had 'phoned in a riot call.

"Alice—are you all right?" Tommy asked, leaning toward her and gripping her cold, white hand.

A Big Surprise

"Yes, I am now," she answered with a haughty toss of her head. Tommy looked at her in wonder. In the flickering light he saw only her cameo-like profile as she stared straight ahead.

"And this is the way you act—the way you treat me when I risk my life to free you—Alice, I can't understand you. I can't——"

"Tom," her voice was ice, "I think you forget that my life was in danger—for you. You and your tough ungodly friends. You can keep that sort of friends and that sort of associates—you belong better among them. I don't want to get into any of your dirty messes. It may sound cruel, but, remember, I had long hours in that hideous place to think about these things. I have decided to break our engagement."

"You mean it, Alice? You mean that our engagement is off! Alice, I can never tell you how glad I am that this—this has happened."

Alice turned and looked at him now and as he sank back with a smile on his lips, she knew that his words were true.

Harmonizing Ties, Hose, Handkerchiefs

Directed by AMOS PARRISH

NEW YORK, Nov. 11—Armistice Day today. Fighting out of fashion. Peace and harmony in fashion. A good day to talk about things that ought to harmonize like a man's necktie, hose and handkerchief.

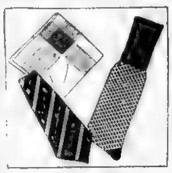
They shouldn't fight with each other. They should agree. Agree in pattern and color. And agree doesn't mean to match exactly. Exact matching would be monotonous—maybe even effeminate.

But two-tone combinations—dark and light blue for instance—are good. And brown and green—gray and dark red—black and almost any color—blue and dark red—light blue and gray—these are all in harmony. Yet they allow enough variation in the color scheme to give it interest.

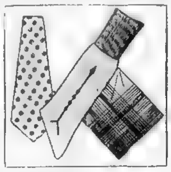
And here are some good combinations that group effectively the most fashionable ties, handkerchiefs and hose being worn today. Combinations worn by some of America's best dressed men.

Combination No. 1

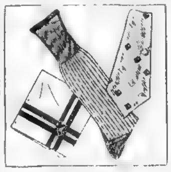
No. 1 (illustrated above). The small closely-grouped pattern is the most worn tie of the season. And that's the kind of tie illustrated. It's popular because it is so easily tied—the pattern showing to good advantage both in the knot and the ends.



Combination No. 2



Combination No. 1



Combination No. 4

The handkerchief has a combination of fine hairline stripes and broader stripes. It makes a nice contrast with the circular design of the tie.

For a combination to wear with a suit of blue-gray, gray or navy blue, the tie could be dark blue with red design accented by white. Then the handkerchief would be gray and the hose dark blue with red clock.

Combination No. 2

Here's a combination good with a suit of dark or medium brown (illustrated above). The tie with background of rather dark green has a striped design combining a lighter green and yellow. And it's not gaudy, since the design is simple and small.

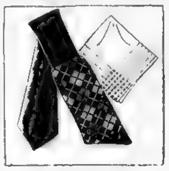
With it a handkerchief that gives the impression of being almost solid color makes a good combination. The one illustrated is white with a cross-barred center of hairline stripes in dark green or tan or brown.

Good socks to wear with this combination of striped tie and almost solid-effect handkerchief are of lightweight wool or lisle with a small pattern effect. The one illustrated is brown . . . the weave so small as to give the effect of stippling.

Combination No. 3

Now take a solid color, dark red or Burgundy tie. The kind that look so good in the heavier silks and crepes. And the kind that both Wall Street and the college campus find so satisfactory.



Combination No. 3

Combination No. 4

[illegible] with its double [illegible] has been chosen for [illegible] to wear with a [illegible] brown or greenish gray suit, the tie in dark brown with lighter brown and yellow flecks in the [illegible].

A [illegible] handkerchief with two pronounced white cross bars is [illegible] enough to ensemble with this tie. And dark brown or dark green hose of ribbed lisle or silk make a good finish.

Dry Milk Good for Child

Sometimes Cow's Milk Cannot Be Had

By R. S. COPELAND, M. D.

Dr. Copeland

WHEN MOTHER and infant are so fortunate as to depend on breast feeding, the future of the child is bright.

But when it becomes necessary to resort to artificial feeding new troubles come along. Then the mother must know just the best thing to do.

When weaning time comes for the baby, cow's milk forms the basis of the diet. Pasteurized milk is sure to be safe. The only substitute is certified milk of the best kind, milk from a clean dairy of unquestioned standards, promptly delivered.

Unfortunately there are times when it is not possible to get cow's milk. In case of a milk shortage, if one is traveling or if for some other reason dependable and safe cow's milk cannot be had, dry milk, milk powder or evaporated milk may be used.

These preparations are made from fresh cow's milk. They contain all the normal ingredients of milk except water. One method of manufacture depends on passing the liquid milk over revolving cylinders, heated to a high temperature. The heat is quite sufficient to dry up the water, at the same time leaving the solid elements. Another process consists in spraying the milk into a hot cylinder. The result in all methods is practically the same.

Dried milk is good for many reasons. It is practically sterile. Its vitamin content is not lowered materially. It is valuable as an addition to milk formulas when a concentrated food is desired.

Dried milks are easily digested. Because they are sterile, they have advantages over fresh milk unless the product comes from an unquestioned source. Of course the dried milks are more expensive than the fresh milk and are not likely to be used when good fresh milk is available.

Fresh milk possesses intangible qualities that make it of paramount importance in the baby's diet. But the good food mixture made of the dried milk can be supplemented by giving the infant orange juice or tomato juice and, if necessary, cod liver oil.

We have to be careful to protect the babies from rickets and conditions like scurvy. For this reason we build up the diet with added vitamins and minerals supplied by the fruit juices and cod liver oil.

Everyone should benefit by a doctor's advice in making up the infant diet. However, there are some practical points which the young mother should know. Indeed such knowledge is a most important thing, for upon it depends your baby's present and future well being.

"What's the matter?" asked the clerk.

"Well, a month ago you sold me a chain for my watch, and you told me it was solid gold and would last a lifetime. I've worn the chain only a month and all the gold is worn off."

"Well," said the clerk, "when I sold you the chain you looked as if you wouldn't live more than a month."

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

WHEN shampooing the hair, begin with a warm rinsing with a bathspray. Never rub the bar of soap directly on the hair; particles are sure to cling that no rinsing will remove completely. Place a small bar of soap in a quart glass jar, fill with hot water and add a salt-spoonful of borax. Keep this on hand all the time. The longer the soap stands, the richer the suds will be, the more quickly it will cut oil and dust.

Dear Birdie's Playboy: I am glad to print your side of the question, and hope Birdie sees it and takes the hints to heart.

Are They All Gold-Diggers?

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

We are two girl pals who are always together. We always manage to find plenty of young fellows to go out with when we have a car; but when we are afoot it is a different proposition. I do not believe we look worse walking than we do riding. I dare say we are rather attractive and very sociable. We are of the same height [illegible] [illegible] They always expect more the next time we see them.

Dear Paul and Norbert: I wonder just what the attraction [o]f a car can be? Anyone of even common sense can figure that possession of a car doesn't mean a perfect boy friend. Financial Market News, Stocks, Bonds, Commodities and Comment

Stand Taken by Democrats Is Beneficial

High Finance, Big Business Reassured; Wall St. Weakest Spot

By B. C. FORBES

New York, Nov. 11—"To the extent of its ability, it will steer the legislation of the nation in a straight line toward the goal of prosperity."

B. C. Forbes

That pledge, published assurance by Democratic leaders on behalf of their party, is calculated to have beneficial influence in high financial, industrial and business circles once the latest spasm of acute nervousness in Wall Street passes. Not a little of the caution exercised this year by high financiers [illegible] has been [illegible] the political changes and [illegible] unsettling political [illegible]. The drastic political changes have occurred the solemn pledge that no disturbing action will be attempted comes as a welcome relief.

The new political turn may do more than at the moment expected to bring about a more hopeful and confident attitude upon leading men of affairs.

* * *

Apart from Wall Street's fit of hysteria, the week's developments were fairly evenly divided between the favorable and the unfavorable.

Very gratifying were the gain in railway car loadings for the country as a whole and the substantial increases recorded by important Eastern lines. Improvement usually is first manifested in the East. The railroads have now secured control of their expenses and from now on should be able to return distinctly less unfavorable comparisons with a year ago.

Wheat and corn closed only slightly changed for the week. Cotton gained a little, but not much ground. Moderate rather than extreme weakness developed in the minor grains, in tea, in rubber, in coffee, in tin.

* * *

Several leading motor manufacturers are bringing out new models instead of waiting until the January Automobile Show. Consequently, production has been notably speeded-up, affording employment to thousands of additional workers. The trend is toward lower prices. This does not mean, however, that profits will be correspondingly reduced because there has been unprecedentedly vigilant and successful efforts by management to raise efficiency and cut costs.

Rubber manufacturers unhesitatingly predict a quickened demand for tires in the very near future. Authoritative statistics reveal that 1930 has used up spare [illegible] before. Motor mileage [illegible] increased rather than decreased.

The assumption—and it is a reasonable assumption—is that the whole automotive industry is nearing the end of its ultra lean period and that necessity very shortly will expand demand.

* * *

Christmas shopping has not yet gone far enough to determine its probable total. It is noteworthy, however, that our leading chain and mail order companies passed their low point weeks ago and are now reporting quite substantial sales gains.

Complaints multiply that retail assortments of merchandise [illegible] awkward [illegible] also [illegible] many retail prices have not been lowered commensurate with the wholesale declines. Shoppers say that they would be more willing to buy freely were prices more attractive [illegible].

* * *

Wall Street was again the weakest spot in the whole situation. Stocks were freely sold on the resumption of trading after [illegible] day's election [illegible] was the worst day of [illegible] day brought no relief from the persistent down trend. Average quotations fell a dozen points below the minimum touched on November 13 last year. Domestic bonds also sagged to a new low point for the year.

Of course there is no longer the overwhelming rush of liquidation witnessed a year ago—the market has been very thoroughly sold out.

* * *

Reason having been thrown to the winds it is impossible to guess how far the sacrificing of securities, regardless of the prices realized may go. Pessimism has gone so far that stock quotations have been driven down lower than at any time in the last two and a half years, notwithstanding all the progress the nation has made since then.

Just as nobody could foresee what would end last year's madness, so nobody can foretell just what will check the current madness. But something will.

Christmas club disbursements for 1930 will be of new high record proportions. Christmas bonus disbursements in the financial districts will not keep pace.

Andrew W. Robertson, chairman of Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co., says:

"Electricity is opening a new luxury era for Americans. Our industry is already more than 75 per cent electrified. The total results of electrification have been incalculably great. If electricity were to be withdrawn from industry there are manufacturers' products that would suffer as a result, or cost more. By 1940 or 1950 the electric trains in our great country will be incredibly swift.

"With virtually unlimited power there is no reason why the freight train could not run as fast as many of our passenger trains today, and passenger trains competing with airplanes at speeds perhaps as great as a hundred miles an hour or above."

Bendix Aviation Report Is Given

Chicago, Nov. 11—Bendix Aviation Corp. corrects its report for nine months ended Sept. 30 to show net of $1,718,184 after interest, depreciation and federal taxes equal to 81 cents a share on 2,122,633 shares, instead of $1,[illegible] previously reported, against $6,[illegible] or $3.26 a share on 2,11[illegible] shares in nine months of 1929.

This would make net for three months ended Sept. 30 $187,247, equal to nine cents a share on 2,122,633 shares, against $779,251 or 37 cents a share in preceding quarter, and $1,727,033 or 82 cents a share on 2,115,000 shares in third quarter of 1929.

Business was suspended for two minutes at 11 a. m. today in the Boston and New York financial districts in observance of Armistice Day. Stock and financial tickers were silent for the period. On the New York Coffee & Sugar Exchange the period of silence ended with "taps" at 11.02 a. m.

Today's News of Live Stocks in Wall Street

U. S. Steel's unfilled tonnage figures can hardly be called barometrical unless they are considered in conjunction with comparative rates of output maintained during the reported period. Just now it is perhaps more important that the figures be important psychologically than barometrically.

That these tonnage figures were intended to exert a psychological effect is extremely likely, since it was allowed to become known in advance that they would show an increase. In the old days of Judge Gary no one ever was able to obtain advance knowledge of what they would show. Changed days, these.

Woolworth Sales Have Uptrend

While considerable comment has been heard because October sales of Woolworth were about 4½ per cent under the corresponding month last year, conservatives in the company are said to have been pleased with the showing, because an increase of $4,068,988 was recorded over September, equal to 18 per cent. That continues the sales uptrend begun in August.

Chrysler's Deflation Has Been Substantial

Substantial deflation in Chrysler reflects the reduction in automobile buying during the past year and sharply curtailed earnings. However, Chrysler is still in a strong financial condition. The latest figures as of June 30, last, showed working capital in excess of $73,500,000, while cash and securities alone amounted to more than $44,500,000. Many now believe the stock has discounted all the unfavorable possibilities.

Otis Elevator and Building

Otis Elevator has been aided by the trend in larger cities toward replacement of small structures with higher buildings requiring elevators, as well as by renovation of old structures. Fulfillment of requirements resulting from those activities has kept earnings this year quite close to those of 1929. In the nine months $2.46 a share was shown compared with $2.66 in the corresponding period of last year.

Warren Pipe's Earnings Improve

Interests in Warren Pipe report that earnings in the third quarter were satisfactory and showed moderate improvement over earlier periods of the year. They insist that the chances are the company will be able to cover its $2 annual dividend in the current year.

Loose-Wiles Sales Studied

The upward trend in Loose-Wiles earnings this will be interrupted this year presumably because of the decline in sales of the more expensive fancy crackers made by the company. However, the reduction in earnings will not be substantial. The company has been doing well in the face of general business situation.

Last year net income was equal to $4.58 a share, compared with $3.77 in 1928. For the first nine months of 1930, the net income was $1,576,924, equal to $2.73 a share, against $1,791,582, or $3.15 a share, in the corresponding period of 1929. Estimates that this year's earnings will be between $3.50 and $3.75 a share.

$1.75 Dividends Paid by Bendix

Directors of the Bendix Aviation Corporation declared a dividend of 25 cents a share, payable January 2 to stockholders of record December 10. This makes total disbursements of $1.75 for the year.

Long-Pull Buying in Montgomery Ward

Important long-pull accumulation is taking place in Montgomery Ward by interests closely associated with the management of the company. Buying is largely based on the assumption that the present price of the stock has gone a long way toward discounting the unfavorable conditions affecting the company. At the same time, it is understood that the company is working on operating economies which may be favorably reflected in the future earnings when an improvement in business sets in.

Warner Under Accumulation?

Warner Bros. Pictures stock has yielded with the list, yet the buying was reported to be for the account of interests close to its affairs. It was reported that the management has substantially curtailed operating expenses.

Nickel Shows Gain for Day

International Nickel was one of the few active issues to close with a gain yesterday. The buying of this stock is chiefly for the account of banking interests who liquidated last year.

Market Nearing "Selling Climax"

What may prove to be the prelude to a substantial technical recovery in the market is taking place at the present time. That is to say the increased liquidation of high grade stocks on volume has most of the "ear marks" of a selling climax usually witnessed at the tail-end of a prolonged period of liquidation similar to that which the market is passing through at the moment.

Based on past performance and history repeats most often in Wall Street, the basis for a technical recovery is usually laid under conditions analogous to those now prevailing. Consequently, considerable interest is manifest in speculative quarters as to whether or not the market will follow precedent. During the past year or so, however, the market has outraged previous yardsticks to such an extent that many are no longer basing their market activities by what has gone before.

Aircraft Pfd. as Investment

Approach of United Aircraft & Transport preferred stock to a level where the yield is 6 per cent will probably attract investment demand. The stock has the right to purchase common stock at an attractive price.

Union Pacific Stock Investments

Further sharp decline recently in Union Pacific naturally reflects in large part recognition of the substantial depreciation in value of its holdings of non-affiliated railroad stocks. Union Pacific, however, is approaching a 6 per cent yield basis, a return which has not been available for several years. Its income from outside investments has not yet been reduced, although the Baltimore & Ohio dividend may be lowered. Union Pacific at the end of 1929 held 62,000 shares of B. & O. common.

Earnings Report Comparisons Made

Earnings reports, compared with a year ago, and dividend announcements by leading companies, shape up as follows:

	Since Oct 1	Additions yes day
Increased earnings	164	4
Decreased earnings	254	11
Unchanged dividends	372	12
Increased dividends	36	1
Decreased dividends	18	..
Omitted dividends	35	..

Gold Unguarded in "Wild" West

A banker returned from New Mexico, Arizona and Mexico says it is now the wild and woolly East.

"In Mexico and western States," he said, "messengers were carrying bags of gold and silver from one bank to another without gun or bodyguard. In New York when coin is transferred it has an armed escort. And they still write books depicting wild life in western States."

Industrial Problem Lies With Prices

"If we can maintain even 65 per cent operations, we can make a little money and hold wages at present level," said he. "But when prices go down with production, it is difficult to keep wages at peak. No one wants to see wages reduced, for that means so much shrinkage in consuming power, the big base for prosperity. Some lines are selling below cost, notwithstanding curtailed production. It seems we are permitted to co-operate in regulating production, but when we attempt to maintain prices that promise a fair return on invested capital and high wages, the law gets after us."

New Measure of Stocks Possible

"If this decline keeps up much longer," commented the Room Wit, "we may be saying such and such a stock is earning per share so many times selling price instead of selling so many times earnings per share."

NEW LOWS ARE SET IN BOSTON DEALINGS

Prices were worked to new low levels in dull trading on the Boston Stock Exchange today. The market rallied near the close. Changes ranged from fractions to 4 points or more. Issues selling at new lows were American Telephone down 4¼, Boston Personal Property off 1¼, and New Haven down over 2.

General Capital was a strong feature advancing 3 points. Point gains were recorded for Chicago Junction preferred, Eastern Massachusetts Street adjustment and Hathaway preferred.

Warren Bros. dipped over 2 points to a new 1930 low. Minor losses sent United Founders, American Founders, Utility Hydro & Rail, United Carr Fastener and Penn R. R. into new low territory.

John J. Pelley, president of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, said October earnings of the road are estimated at 90 cents a common share, making the net for the 10 months equivalent to about $5.85 a share.

October traffic was the heaviest of any month this year, except May, he said. Mr. Pelley added that by next May no wooden equipment will be used in regular service on the suburban lines entering the Grand Central Terminal in New York.

September production of leather boots and shoes amounted to 28,918,926 pairs, against 28,429,243 in August, an increase of 1.7 per cent, Commerce Department reports. Output in September, 1929, was 34,830,741 pairs.

During the nine months production amounted to 239,944,397 pairs, against 274,012,352 in first nine months of 1929, a decline of 12 per cent.

STATE STREET SIDELIGHTS

One argument frequently heard in State Street is that many capital increases and stock splitups in the years prior to 1930 were unnecessary. Some feel so strongly on this question that they go to great lengths to prove that it was an unloading process in which the public was the goat.

The action of Stutz directors in recommending a reduction in the outstanding shares is looked on as a forerunner to such changes by other companies whose shares are not wanted in brokers' loan envelopes by the banks because of the low quotations prevailing in the various markets due to indiscriminate splitups.

* * *

A New York commission house advises its Boston correspondent that an attractive medium for investment is Canada Dry, paying a $5 dividend. The last time the stock sold at current prices was in 1927, when only $3 was paid.

They brush aside the argument that legalized beer will do away with the company's product by showing that Canadian sales have been at the peak in 1929-30. Earnings for this year are estimated at $6.60. In conclusion, their analysis states that Canada Dry can pay dividends for a year or two if earnings amount to nothing.

American Fears Don't Last, Says Rukeyser

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

New York, Nov. 11—If the stock market responded promptly and accurately to the laws of mathematics, the wealth of the world would soon drift to the control of statisticians.

M. S. Rukeyser

But in this rough and tumble world of ours, stock prices reflect prevailing emotions, whims and fashions, as well as more sedate mathematical ratios. The recent sustained, drastic, though entirely orderly weakness, reflected the fact that many people were scared. It is an axiom that meritorious securities will not be available at such low prices when the investment and speculative public again becomes hopeful. Past performances indicate that the American people, descendants of courageous pioneers who developed a wilderness and conquered the Indians, do not remain scared long.

Those who conduct their financial operations on their emotions are a blundering lot. They showed a new high level of confidence in the future last year on the very eve of the panic, when business curves were already pointing downward. The same type will attain a maximum of pessimism at this other end of the business cycle just about when the bottom of business depression is reached.

These are hazardous days for the thinly protected marginal speculator, who staked his fortune on imponderable forces. The cash outright buyer is in a different position, and may go ahead confidently whenever he thinks that stocks are reasonably priced in relation to earnings, assets and dividend yield. Incidentally, the current yield on 90 leading stocks is now 5.44 per cent compared with 4.44 per cent for good bonds. The best stocks yielded somewhat more in the depression of 1921.

Incidentally, the bear markets have carried stock prices back several years, wiping out not only the fluff of bull speculation but also any allowance for the actual ploughing back into corporate treasuries of excess earnings in the meantime. Railroad stocks have fallen to the levels prevailing four years ago, industrials are back to the level of April 1, 1927, and public utilities are selling at the same average prices that prevailed on December 7, 1928.

In striking contrast to the panic which raged a year ago, the recent establishment of new low levels has been distinctly orderly. One important contributing factor to the new stability, in the face of liquidation, has been the new high speed ticker, which has kept the financial public informed without a lag running more than a minute or two. With the slow ticker of last year, reports were hours behind actual executions, and the technical efficiency not only added to the fright and bewilderment of sellers, but also operated to withhold bids from potential buyers who would have placed orders if they had known precisely what was going on. Another contributing factor to comparative stability is the fact that the short interest is larger than a year ago. Nevertheless, the manner in which stock prices have yielded indicates that the short interest, though larger than a year ago, is not as large as it would have been if the authorities had not given the impression a few weeks ago that certain aspects of short selling were socially wicked. The cushion of potential short covering, therefore, has not been as substantial as it would have been under natural conditions.

Though insisting that there are gorgeous bargains in bonds and mortgages for individual investors, Dr. B. M. Anderson, Jr., of the Chase National Bank, warns banks against loading up, pointing out that losses will be incurred if they buy bonds when money is cheap and resell them a few months or a year later when money is dearer and in greater demand by business. The individual investor, on the other hand, presumably can hold the cheap bonds until maturity.

F. L. Dame, president of the North American Company, in referring to the longer term outlook for the public utility industry, told me:

"One of the cheerful aspects of the situation is that industries which have been going ahead at a rapid pace and have not been able to take advantage of the developments in research which would improve the efficiency of their operations are taking this period of slackness and cheap money to improve their properties so that as business comes back the power companies are going to receive a considerable benefit from the added requirements."

In connection with the meeting on Wednesday of labor union chieftains at Chicago to consider a reduction in working hours, Milton W. Harrison, president of the National Association of Railroad and Public Utility Securities, speaking for railroad investors, suggested that, without increasing the total payroll, the railroads could spread around employment among a distinctly larger group by giving present employes shorter runs each month. Mr. Harrison's specific scheme would increase the number of employed by 75,000, but the net monthly remuneration of the present employes would be reduced. The steel companies and other industrials, following President Hoover's suggestion, have been following this system of increasing personnel through staggering employment.

Citiees in Florida Need Time to Pay

Jacksonville, Fla., Nov. 11—Extension of time is necessary in case of many Florida municipalities, which now find themselves unable to pay principal and interest on their funded debts, according to A. C. Biese, vice-president of the Barnett National Bank here.

CURB MARKET RALLY SHARP NEAR CLOSE

New York, Nov. 11—Curb stocks rallied sharply near the close today, with heavy buying responsible for the most sweeping price recovery in some weeks. While the momentum of the upturn finally tapered off somewhat, final quotations were generally above previous levels.

Strength was most pronounced in the utility group, where advances ranged up to 10 points, with Duke Power leading.

American Gas & Electric, and Commonwealth Edison were up more than 5 points each, while good sized gains were also noted in Electric Bond and Share, American and Foreign Power warrants, Associated Gas & Electric A and United Light & Power.

Investment trusts ruled irregularly higher with the best gains recorded in Ungerleider, Insull, Central States Electric and Electric Power Associates. Heavy selling came into Goldman Sachs, however, forcing it to the lowest figure ever quoted for this highlight of the 1929 bull market.

Standard of Ohio was the most buoyant member of a somewhat sluggish oil group with a gain of about 3 points. Humble, Standard of Indiana and Vacuum were fractionally higher.

Deere featured the miscellaneous section with a spurt of 4 points. Diamond match was also a strong spot scoring a 2-point gain.

SPECTATOR'S VIEWS GIVEN

By SPECTATOR

New York, Nov. 11—Selling of stocks held as collateral against bank loans has undoubtedly released thousands of shares on a market poorly prepared to receive them. As prices have receded the brokers have been compelled to demand more margins from speculative holders, and to liquidate the holdings of those unable or unwilling to respond. This automatically precipitates further liquidation and starts the new revolutions of the so-called vicious circle.

Swing Against Seller

One financial authority points out that in spite of the many unfavorable long pull factors, the widening spread between stock yields and money rates must act as a steady brake upon the effectiveness of selling. The Dow-Jones industrial shares are now yielding 6.69 per cent. At the peak of the market in September, 1929, the yield was 3.31 per cent and money rates were 8½ per cent to 9 per cent. Such a disparity is taken to indicate the odds are rapidly swinging against the seller, as they were operating against the buyer last fall.

Blue Chips Drop

The blue-chip stocks, so-called, have followed the general price decline in recent months as measured by their changing dividend yield. It is estimated that 30 'blue-chips' had an average yield at the October lows of 4.37 per cent, as compared with a yield of 3.10 per cent on April 1, 1930. Further declines since have further contributed to widen the leads obtainable from this select grouping of favorites which were the pacesetters in the sweeping bull market of the last two years.

Pressure Is Lifted From Bond Market

New York, Nov. 11—Pressure was lifted from the bond market to a marked degree today as the sharp break in prices to a new low level for the year yesterday attracted buying support.

The recessions in the price of railroad bonds brought a moderate inquiry for some of the legals and medium grade issues and the group presented a firm appearance, although the market generally was irregular. The turnover compared favorably with recent busy sessions.

45 Drug Stores in Chain Are Sold

Irving Trust Co., as receiver for Neve Drug Stores, has arranged for sale of 45 of the 58 stores which came under its control when it was appointed receiver. Negotiations are under way for sale of additional stores.

STRONG SUPPORT IS GIVEN LEADERS IN WALL ST.

New York, Nov. 11—Strong support was accorded pivotal shares this afternoon on the New York Stock Exchange. The best rally in several weeks was staged, but flattened out somewhat in a late rush to take trading profits.

U. S. Steel managed to finish the session with a gain of over a point. General Electric was a point higher and General Motors closed up over a point.

AMUSEMENTS ARE WEA K

Despite an official statement that Fox was earning ahead of last year's figures, it was driven off over 4 points, with weakness showing in other amusement issues. Warner Bros. was off over a point.

Westinghouse Electric finished up 2. Dow Jones averages showed a gain of 1.12 for the industrials and a point for the carriers.

American Telephone was 4 points below Monday's close. Standard Oil of New Jersey finished up over a point, as did also Texas Corp. and American Can. New Haven was down ove. 2.

Earlier trading had seen several prominent issues, mostly in the food, amusement and specialty classes, again tumble to new lows, but selling pressure was less severe. After considerable activity in the morning a decided lull ensued.

A flurry of short covering in the morning sent several issues up 2 to 4, but that advance was soon lost.

Several commission houses continued to feel that an important technical rebound could not be long deferred after the steady two months' decline. The source of continued selling was still regarded as puzzling. The weekly condition statement of reporting Federal Reserve member banks showed a gain of $24,000,000 in loan against securities.

Although this report was for the week ending Nov. 15, it again failed to bear out the theory held for several weeks in some quarters that selling represented heavy liquidation of imported collateral loans.

Of the total reduction of $187,000,000 in member bank loans on securities in the past month, $155,000,000 was in New York and Boston alone, and apparently represented reduction in loans to brokers rather than to individual borrowers.

The day's news included the federal reserve board's October report on department store sales, which showed considerable improvement over the September report, with a decline of only 8 per cent from the like month a year ago. Sales in September were off 11 per cent. The gain was described, however, as a little smaller than seasonal.

The September foreign trade figures also made their appearance, and were called less favorable. Trade with Europe showed the most marked decline of the present recession.

Dividend actions in the past 24 hours were more cheering. Jewel Tea paid an extra of $1. Chicago Great Western paid the first dividend on its preferred in 11 years. American Power & Light directors ordered a 10 per cent stock distribution.

TEXTILE BETTERMENT.

The recent improvement in the textile industry was shown by the Association of Cotton Textile Merchants statistics for last month. Stocks decreased more than 10 per cent, while unfilled orders gained about 23 per cent.

Credit conditions showed little change. Call money still held at 2 per cent, but was available in the outside market at 1½, or less.

Wheatsworth, Inc., has been mentioned as a logical acquisition for National Biscuit Company. As a company of independent earning power and recognized trade name, Wheatsworth is in line with recent additions to the National Biscuit Company ranks.

Directors of American Multigraph Company meet today to take final action on plans for consolidation with Addressograph International Corporation. If approved by directors of American Multigraph the plan will be submitted to stockholders November 25.

New company, if plans are approved, will be called the Addressograph Multograph Company.

SAVINGS FOR CHRISTMAS UP

Christmas Club savings have not fallen off in spite of the depression. Reports to the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks show an increase of Christmas savings in mutual savings banks in some states. A number of others have about held their own, and there will be some slight reductions. But for the nation the total is expected at least to equal last year, which set a record.

In New York the mutual savings banks alone will distribute $13,170,552, against $11,965,573 in 1929, a gain of $1,204,979. This will be distributed among 280,689 depositors, a slight increase from 273,251 last year. The substantial gain indicates Christmas saving for 1930 has been more determined than ever before.

All mutual savings banks, operating in 17 states, will have total Christmas funds of $35,573,391, belonging to 741,995 people, almost the exact number of last year's depositors.

Industrial Rayon Dividend Ordered

New York, Nov. 11 (AP)—Directors of Industrial Rayon Corp. today declared an initial quarterly dividend of $1 a share, payable Jan. 31 to stock of record Dec. 18, placing the stock on a $4 annual basis. Hiram Rivitz, president, said that with the ascertained earnings for nine months and estimating the last quarter the earnings will approximate $9 a share for 1930.

Winnipeg Wheat Is Rallied After Drop

Winnipeg, Nov. 11—A heavy break at Chicago while Winnipeg traders observed the Thanksgiving holiday yesterday and renewed weakness at Liverpool today brought about drastic declines in wheat market trading. At bottom levels the recession amounted to 3½ cents a bushel. Moderate buying brought values back fractionally.

Noted Speakers and Soloists Will Broadcast From 8 to 10:30 P. M. Tonight

Armistice Day, so significant to the Veterans of Foreign Wars, will be observed by them with memorial services at Symphony Hall tonight and the proceedings will be broadcast over Station WLEX in collaboration with the Boston Evening American. The program will be heard on the air from 8:00 to 10:30 p. m. Newcomb F. Thompson will announce.

The program which has been arranged includes city, state and national homage to the veterans. Musical entertainment will intersperse the speeches. The principal speaker of the evening is Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York. Others who will be heard on the air are four New England governors, including Governor Allen, who will extend the greetings of the Commonwealth. Mayor James M. Curley will speak as will other distinguished guests who will be heard over WLEX. Dr. Julian D. Lucas, department commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, will deliver an address of welcome.

Madame Ernestine Schumann-Heink has volunteered her services for the evening and the world famous contralto will offer appropriate solos for the occasion. The Boston Fireman's band of 100 pieces will be heard as will other soloists.

RADIO Personalities

When CHARLIE HAMP did his "Sunshine" act in Cleveland $1500 was his weekly stipend. His "Early Bird" program nets him even more. . . . One of Columbia's stars recalls the time when instead of reading his script he had to have it read to him. The young man is JIMMY McCALLION, age 11, of the Eskimo Pie program, who was too young to read when he started in radio. . . . Is there a Burbig at NBC? There must be, for some artist with that company is twisting the names of programs. According to this mimic, "Moonshine and Honeysuckle" becomes "Honeymoon and Shinysuckle." . . . ARTHUR PRYOR who hails from Kansas City, played a concert with Sousa in that city some years ago. The home town folk were calling loudly for their hero before the program started, and a riot ensued. The audience mistook the call for "Pryor" as being "Fire." . . . Each November, GRAHAM McNAMEE receives a barrel of apples from an Oregon admirer. . . . One hundred and sixty-eight times larger than Ann Leaf is the great pipe organ on which she plays seven times a week over the CBS. . . . Unique methods of trapping criminals are being unfolded to the radio audience over WMAK in Buffalo. The criminal should be thankful for them.

New Rift Between Mix and Wife Seen

Hollywood, Nov. 11 (US)—With Tom Mix, motion picture star, and his wife, Victoria, consulting their attorneys, it appeared today that their frequent separations during the past three years may lead to a permanent one.

Mrs. Mix would neither affirm nor deny the report she is planning to file suit for divorce.

Morgan Memorial Appeals for Bags

An appeal for additional Good Will bags was made yesterday by the Morgan Memorial, 89 Shawmut ave., to meet the present condition of unemployment which are overtaxing this organization.

Fred C. Morgan, treasurer of Morgan Memorial, says that one full Good Will bag will provide employment for 30 persons.

Concerning Radio

Edited by BILL WHIPPLE

If you were to take your dictionary and turn to the words listed under the "p's" eventually you would arrive at the word "plagiarist." The literal translation of this word is "one who steals the writings of another." It is not an uncommon word and is frequently used by authors and playwrights when they believe the child of their brain has been purloined by unscrupulous publishers and producers.

But from what we can gather in our searching the byways and highways of the radio world what the manipulators of typewriter keys have had to contend with through plagiarism is a mere bag of shells compared with what the radio continuity writer is up against these days.

Up to recently we have contended, and fully believed, that about anybody who had a novel idea for a radio broadcast and who was capable of writing the continuity as it should go on the air stood a pretty decent chance of making a little loose change by it.

We have become skeptical—yes, very skeptical. It seems that the woods are just teeming with plagiarist wolves, ready to pounce upon Little Red Writing Hood, who has a nice new original continuity idea in her basket, tear it from her inexperienced and unprotected hands and gallop to some advertising agency or broadcasting station and proffer it as their own.

It works something like this: Oliver B Overshoe has a real snappy idea for a 15-minute, three-times-a-week broadcast. Evenings and Sundays he plugs at it, puts his heart and soul in it and dreams of at last buying that new car he's wanted so long. It's a good broadcast and somewhere there is a market for it. However, he gets two or three of the first broadcasts completed, hops a train for the big city where he visits around at the agencies and studios.

Now we don't state those concerns are dishonest, but it can happen—mind you, we say it can happen — that some employe or visitor happens to either see or hear the continuity, grabs the idea and plagiarizes it. Or perhaps the ambitious one does get it on the air through some small local station, but if it really does have merit it won't be long before said ambitious one hears it come through on a chain tieup, and he can holler thief till he's black in the face and that's all the good it will do him.

There are just two kinds of people writing broadcast continuity today; they are the "in's" and the "out's." The "in's" are those who have a drag with those who can do them the most good—insiders; the "out's" are those who have ambition and ideas but who cannot crash the gate of the exalted ones, where they might get a break—they are outsiders.

It seems tough, but it's a fact. Plagiarism! The radio world is dripping with it. If you are imaginative and just must write, remember that government officials are still seeking a new national anthem to replace The Star Spangled Banner. You may not click, but your chances are better than crashing radio.

This Blighter Is Jolly Well Wrong, Eh, What?

A short wave radio enthusiast living at Kenton, Middlesex, Eng., reports reception of the World Series "baseball match" which was sent out from WGY's short wave station, W2XAF. "The match," he writes, "was between, I think, Yale and Springfield Athletics." Then in unconscious criticism of the radio reporter, he writes: "I never heard him (the reporter) give the names of the teams directly, and he referred to "Athletics" constantly. I gathered it was Yale and Springfield

COMING OUT OF THE ETHER. . . . If you don't believe it's Armistice Day, turn on the radio tonight. . . . The songs and speeches that waft across the air are all concerned with dedications and homages. . . . The Paramount-Publix hour, WNAC, at 10:15, is replete with martial music and wartime songs. "Dream of the Big Parade," "Guns," "Tipperary," "Buddy" and "Pal o' Mine" are included in the repertoire. . . . The Philco program, WNAC, at 9:30, pays tribute to the veterans and the boys who didn't come back. Each number on the program will typify different phases of war and battlefield. . . . A dedication program, but nothing pertaining to Armistice, will be heard over WBZA at 10. The broadcast is in honor of printing, and William Pfaff, president of the U. S. Typothetae, will speak. . . . The Happy Wonder Bakers split their dedication program by donating half in honor of New York and the rest for Armistice, WEEI, at 9:30. . . . An intense search through the Blackstone program, WNAC, at 8, reveals no dedication-ing. Frank and Julia run through a program of song and banter, but nothing concerns the holiday. . . . The Soconyland Sketch, WEEI, at 7:30, is the "Trent Affair," the Civil War episode that strained Anglo-American relations. . . . Eddie Legros, Canadian crooner, picks up his guitar and sings on the Gentle's Homlykers program, WEEI, at 8:30 tonight.

PORT OF BOSTON

By CARL MORRISON

Yesterday was what is known in marine circles as a "weather breeder."

The atmosphere was sharp, so clear of clouds or haze that the tip of the Provincetown monument could be seen from the Customs House tower with the aid of small glasses.

SAVES A DAY

Saving of a full day in time was reported by the Susan V. Luckenbach, which arrived in Philadelphia en route to Boston. This saving is due to new equipment in the form of a 1000 h. p. low pressure turbine. Formerly the ship averaged 12 knots and now she easily makes 14.2.

TURNS BACK

On the Cunarder Samaria, arriving here from Liverpool, carried 100 Bostonians and 195 for New York. Among the passengers were Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Crosby of Boston. Mr. Crosby, who is with the Ludlow Associates in the manufacture of jute, had sailed from here six weeks ago with a general mission of reaching India. Unsettled conditions there caused him to change his plans and he was able to negotiate his business in England.

A DAY LATE

The San Benito of the United Fruit Co. was a day late in arriving in Boston yesterday. The delay was due to bad weather which held up loading operations at Tela.

TODAY'S WHO'S WHO

The subject of today's harbor sketch is Roble G. Frye, deputy collector in charge of the division of liquidations and drawbacks of the customs house.

Roble G. Frye

This resident of Beacon Hill has been in the customs service for 45 years, starting in his department as a clerk. Twenty-five years ago he was promoted to deputy clerk.

Prior to his customs work, Mr. Frye was for three years vice-consul-general in Halifax. His present department rates high in the country for its accuracy and thoroughness. Mr. Frye is obliged to study several thousand court and treasury decisions each year, and thus has become one of the best informed men in New England on tariff matters.

This native of Belfast, Me., is fond of outdoor life. His hobby is mountain climbing as a member of the Appalachian Club. He has conquered more than 50 of the peaks in the White Mountain chain.

Twelve Years After

Massachusetts Learns Vital Lessons

Twelve years ago today the armistice was declared. The wholesale murder of human beings called war was over. Cannon ceased their slaughter. Destruction and rapine were done. Men ceased springing at each other's throats. A spirit of joy and thanksgiving descended upon people everywhere.

After a day or two of joyous celebrating, the world settled down to tabulate its enormous losses and to contemplate the means for its economic revival. The valorous youth of America turned their backs, forever we hope, upon the horrors and glories of the trenches and their faces toward the normal, peaceful pursuits of life.

The world had been made safe for democracy! To the support of that glorious principle, America had thrown the heroism of its people and its overwhelming resources. There never was a war in which men had laid down their lives so generously for an abstract principle of justice, and there never was a country in all history that so unselfishly forfeited all claim for compensation, territory or emolument.

But the dove of peace was quickly displaced by the vulture of European diplomacy. The war to end war was converted into a carnival of greed. They divided up the conquered territory, scrambled for mandates and trade routes, partitioned mineral fields and dominions among themselves and imposed upon the defeated foes the most savage "treaty" which history has ever known.

Instead of making the world safe for democracy, they created unsavory conditions which have permitted more autocracies and dictators than any similar period has experienced.

They laughed at Uncle Sam for his altruism. They branded him "Uncle Shylock" even though he wrote off fifty per cent of their debts to him. Instead of their friendship, he won their envy and malice. They encouraged and provoked a hostility against him which finds its manifestations not only in Europe but in the frequent anti-American outbursts in the Latin-American peoples on this very hemisphere.

The people of Massachusetts properly observe armistice day today because the humanely democratic purposes for which they entered the war and endured its sufferings and wounds have never been abandoned by them. They celebrate quite properly because the standards of their country have not been sullied by the jealousies and spirit of conquest which have been all too evident elsewhere.

In retrospect, with the experience of these twelve years to guide them, they are determined more than ever to let Europe fight its own battles in the future.

They are determined to preserve their independence and honor by remaining apart from the League of Nations and League Court, which have proven themselves to be not agencies of peace and justice but instruments for consolidating the spoils and booty of the last war.

They have learned that unpreparedness is not only a temptation to assault upon them but that it is costly in lives and money when the emergency of defense arises.

America finally marshalled the most commendable spirit and the finest military force of all times. What she did in the interest of war she must accomplish now in the interest of her own prosperity. Her unemployed need work. Their dependents need to be protected from the peace-time suffering of economic depression. If her political leaders and her financial patriots, instead of being reluctant and hesitant, will unlimber their resources and drive ahead with the indomitable courage and confidence expected of the doughboys across Flanders fields, the goal of good times, with steady jobs and high wages for all, would be won overnight.

Who Aids Drug Pedlars?

Secrecy of Raids Points Bad Situation

Federal agents from Washington swoop down upon Boston, seize 40,000 ounces of opium, morphine and other habit-forming drugs and allegedly break up a widespread ring of dope traffickers.

Boston was found to be a port of entry for drugs ultimately distributed by a ring which operated in Buffalo, Chicago and other Western cities.

So far, so good. But the press adds this significant statement in the news of the day:

> "The utmost secrecy was maintained on the arrival of the federal agents, not even the local federal authorities being taken into the confidence of the operatives working out of Washington."

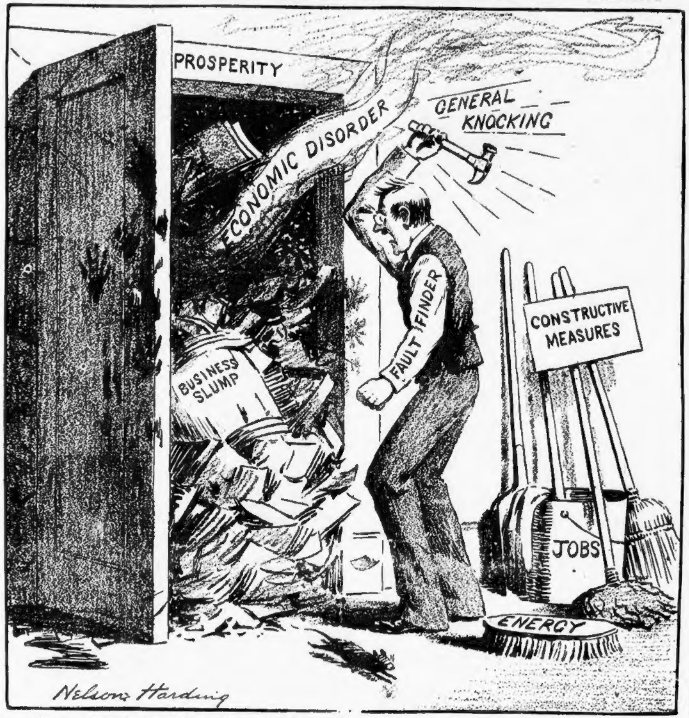
Why not? Were they not to be trusted?

The morale of federal enforcement agencies is at a disgracefully low ebb. The prohibition forces have been sapped by graft and corruption. The Coast Guard, once the pride of New England, has suffered severely in public estimation. And here in Boston, as elsewhere in the Nation, these various groups of government servants have been made nothing more or less than footballs of venal politics.

Having expressed their disgust with prohibition at the polls, the people well can expect that a plan of true temperance will be evolved by the leaders at Washington and that it will be established without interminable delay. In the meantime, these enforcement agencies ought to be overhauled and purified and the stench of them made no longer to offend the nostrils of honest citizens.

CAN'T CLEAN HOUSE WITH A HAMMER

By NELSON HARDING



Stop knocking. There's nothing constructive in that.
Conditions don't clear up because they're abused.
Put money to work at the cleaning up job
And use those utensils that ought to be used.

General knocking won't clean up the house
Abandon the overworked hammer and swing
The brush and the pail and the mop and the broom
And see the results these real cleaners will bring.

Listen, World!—Which?

By ELSIE ROBINSON

Warm Hearted Sinners or Snooty Saints

I WOULD much rather have an unfaithful husband than a mean, stingy one. And I'd prefer a good-natured wanton any day to a greedy, grouchy wife. For I do believe that warm-hearted sinners do much less harm in the world than snooty saints.

Elsie Robinson

That philandering husband, for instance. I admit he's a renegade when he deserts his home. But does he, after all, harm the home as much as the old meanie who sits around and makes it a hell on earth? Who's the greatest enemy of society—the man who's happy in the wrong place or the gent who isn't happy any place?

And the Bad Girl—mind you, I'm not endorsing bad girls, nor do I harbor any sentimental illusions about 'em. But I'd like to remind certain femmes that Sour Sanctity is as far removed from real goodness as Dashing Depravity. For, what's the use of virtue if all it seems to buy you is a pain in the neck?

The great thing in life is not to live safely, smugly, sanctimoniously. The great thing in life is TO LIVE. There is nothing particularly commendable in staying out of jail, keeping out of debt, never being talked about. Sometimes such achievements are proof of a virile spirit. Frequently, however, they're merely the result of playing safe. Which is a million miles from righteousness. For the essence of righteousness is action.

Do something—even if you do wrong! Don't sit back and pin halos on yourself, just because you are afraid to take a chance! TO LIVE—that's the great virtue. To live graciously, gaily, gallantly! To live so richly and bravely that you warm and quicken life for all other men. To live so gladly that you make other men desire life!

I'm thinking of two quotations. A dying man wrote one of them. Yet even approaching death could not strangle the brave laughter in Robert Louis Stevenson's soul.

"Gentleness and cheerfulness, these come before all morality; they are the perfect duties," he cried. "If your morals make you dreary, depend upon it they are wrong. I do not say 'give them up,' for they may be all you have—but conceal them like a vice, lest they should spoil the lives of better and simpler people."

And this other, from A. S. M. Hutchinson's fine book, "The Uncertain Trumpet": "My gospel . . . is simply that the sins of the flesh, evil as they are, abominable as they can be, are as nothing compared with the sins of the spirit, with meanness, with selfishness, with bitterness, with envy, hatred, malice and all uncharitableness."

And if those two quotations don't put a dent in your complacency, you're a smugger man than I am, Gunga Din!

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

Casino Cafe in Park a High Spot

NEW YORK, Nov. 11—The Casino restaurant in Central Park opened with a gusto, floundered a while, suffered a raid and emerged one of the five culinary high spots of the metropolis. The other four, to my notion, are the Ritz, St. Regis grill, Pierre's and the Colony.

Its popularity was enhanced considerably by the patronage of Mayor Walker. It gained much publicity as a haven to which His Honor fled to escape the rigors of City Hall. The Casino's ex-officio social arbiter is A. Drexel Biddle, Jr., of the Philadelphia Biddles.

Officially chairman of the Board of Governors, he sponsors such gala nights as the "Wall Street Evening" which swamped diners with eruptions of ticker tape. At the tables were many high in the goings on in Broad and Wall. Dorothy Parker often lunches there, too, dear me!

The Casino, aside from such bon vivants as Mayor Walker and M. Biddle, naturally attracts social trailers with a consuming ache to be "among those present" in the society columns. Also a sprinkling of stage stars who never overlook a chance for the spotlight.

The management hoisted its menu tariff to an almost prohibitive notch and thus brought big spenders on the run. Give a New York cafe a few Social Register names to juggle plus a reputation for being unusually expensive and it is set for a limited run at least.

The Casino is on a graceful rise surrounded by several python limbed oaks, its glass enclosed verandahs often filigreed with moonlight. In the offing is that most entrancing of all vistas—the jagged outline about the Plaza fountain.

In other days young buckaroos of the town used to race up 5th avenue in snow cutters for the yearly prize of a magnum of champagne, offered by the Casino and McGowan's Pass Tavern, for the first to reach them when a snow fell. The Casino is in Urban decor and drips luxury.

A testy gentleman ordering a supply of stationery this morning objected to the firm's label imprint inside the envelope flap. "Why should I advertise you?" he snapped. Which is a new lesson in self importance.

* * *

My own self importance, at times considerable, got a nice kick in the pants under a theater canopy the other evening after the play. A comely girl presented an autograph book to sign. I gave the signature an extra flourish chiefly for the benefit of a nosey cop looking over my shoulder. A few steps away the lass, glancing at it, sniffed:

"He ain't who I thought."

There are, and in such times when money is coy, on an average, 500 bank books lost in New York daily, if lost ads in the combined press are correct. Most are lost by ladies opening handbags.

* * *

Thumb nail success story: Nineteen months ago a young man who saved $525 clerking in a Broadway drink stand by day and studying journalism by night betook himself to a farm in Sullivan county to write a novel. It was finished a month ago, sold yesterday and will be published this spring. The dedication will honor the person who encouraged him to take a chance.

* * *

This happened in a Park avenue apartment building. A California visitor in buzzing for an elevator pushed the button of an adjoining apartment. A lady responded. They stared in amazement and rushed into each other's arms. The answer: First cousins who had lost track of each other for seven years.

After years of skittishness around public drinking fountains that gush a little spurt, I decided to test my skill last night. Rounding a turn of the Drive and with no one in sight, I bent over for a drink. Something was the matter with my head dip or neck arch for I came away looking as though I had been ducked in a rain barrel. No fool like an old fool.

In my day I could empty a cold bottle of Bud in a single gurgle—even standing on one foot. But there's nothing to worry about, I suppose. I'm just leaky.

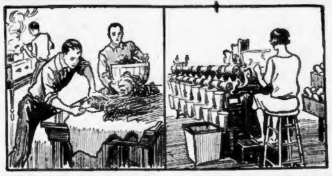
Speaking of Hats

And Other Important Matters



HAIRCUTTER AND CLEANER

FELTING MACHINE

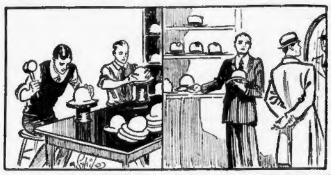
You are not, however, in the charity business, and we do not advise you to buy a hat as a charitable measure.

We advise you to buy a hat, if you need one, or a suit, or a pair of shoes, or a radio or a grand piano, because you get a bargain when you buy.

Today's market is a BUYERS' market.

Your money is worth more. Factories and stores know it is worth more. Never before have producers and distributors seen that as clearly as they do now. And never, in recent years, have they offered their products at lower prices than today.



BLOCKING

SALESMAN

They are not in the charity business, either. They are in the manufacturing and selling business, and they have cut prices in order to manufacture and sell.

They have their choice of doing that or getting OUT of business.

Today, too, the advertising pages of newspapers have become the real news pages. You may be mildly interested in the latest outbreak in Afghanistan; you ARE deeply interested in getting your money's worth when you shop. The news columns will tell you about Afghanistan, but they won't tell you how to make a dollar do the work of two.

The ads will—and, nowadays, that's NEWS.

Sheep Farming in Maine

New Venture May Be Boon to All New England

Governor William Tudor Gardiner of Maine and his two associates in the venture, C. H. Crawford and Herbert M. Tucker, are rendering a great service to their state and to all New England in taking up the raising of sheep on a large and scientific scale. Upon their ranch, on Swan Island, these men will test out their carefully studied plans, under which they expect to prove that sheep raising can be made a profitable venture in Maine. If their theories are correct, it means that many abandoned farms of New England will be turned into valuable properties. If they are able to so re-establish these unused farms, make them productive and a source of employment, they will have earned the approbation of the public. Their venture starts most auspiciously and it will be followed with intense interest. Not since the New England Council and its guiding spirit, Hiram W. Ricker, put its great force behind the movement to establish New England as an inviting haven for tourists, with the resultant influx of tourists and millions of dollars of added income to residents of the state each year, has there been started a project that promises so much for the well-being of the Pine Tree State.

The Swan Island sheep ranch will give Mr. Tucker, chief of the Bureau of Animal Industry of his state, an opportunity to put into operation the results of his years of study. For many years he has advocated the raising of sheep in Maine on a large scale as having great prospects.

Mr. Crawford is one of Augusta's leading business men, and as president of the new venture his abilities should make the venture a sure financial success and a real boon to all New England.

Capital Silhouettes

By GEORGE ROTHWELL BROWN

THE EDITOR of the Topeka Capital prints a column editorial explaining the Kansas election, and when we had finished reading it we didn't understand it, either.

* * *

* * *

OF COURSE, the Democrats in the Senate may be able to work harmoniously with the Republicans, but we'd feel a little more optimistic about it if they'd ever show a faint trace of ability to work harmoniously with themselves.

* * *

THE DRYS are going to demand enormously increased expenditures for prohibition enforcement as soon as Congress meets. Just how large a bond issue would F. Scott McBride say was demanded by his recent triumph at the polls?

FORMER Ambassador Gerard seems to think that when Germany eventually repudiates her reparations the rest of Europe will keep right on not paying their war debts to the United States.
